VARSITY

Great Race of the College Crews at Poughkeepsie Today.

Speculation Concerning the Probable Outcome of This Afternoon's Race.

Crews In Fine Shape But Weather Conditions Not Favorable.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 26.—The day of the four-cornered varsity race opened inauspiciously. There were heavy clouds, midst showers and generally threatening weather conditions early in the day, but towards noon the prospect brightened somewhat and the possibility of a clear sky by the time set for the race, 5:30 p. m., appeared much better. In spite of the threatening weather the city is full of people come from a distance, and Cornell, Columbia, Pennsylvania and Harvard each has its shouters among the crowds that throng the streets and the banks of the Hudson.

Judges on referee's boat—Columbia, Guy Richards; Harvard, George S. Mumford; Cornell, H. T. White, University of Pennsylvania, Reginald L. Hart. Timers—Columbia, Walter B. Peet; Harvard, R. C. Watson; Cornell, E. W. Kelley; University of Pennsylvania, Louis C. Maderia, Jr.

Judges at the finish—Columbia, E. B. Sturgis; Harvard, J. B. Moulton; Cornell, E. M. Howland; University of Pennsylvania, Joseph H. Ead.

In the final practices this morning Harvard showed the best form and Pennsylvania the speed, but the water was choppy and the wind a direct head one, so that conditions might count for nothing this evening.

Columbia went out first this morning for a brief spin and in form was the best she displayed yet. The crews improved greatly. The rough water did not bother the crew much, and the possibilities are for a hard fight with Pennsylvania or at least a place, if the water this afternoon is good. With the wind in the west, to which indications pointed at midday, Harvard will have the advantage of smooth water, shared by Pennsylvania, while Cornell and Columbia will have rough water unless the wind drops.

But to offset this apparent advantage gained by Harvard and Pennsylvania there is a tide condition that will aid Columbia and Cornell. It will be a strong ebb tide and as the current runs down the river it will encounter a rocky obstruction at Krum's elbow and will swirl out towards the center of the river, catching Cornell and Columbia boats at the start and giving them way while the two inside crews get smooth water.

An interesting statement of future racing at Poughkeepsie came from Capt. Bullard, of Harvard, today and is to the effect that if Yale expects to row with Harvard next year she must row here with the crews that are in today's regatta. Capt. Bullard says: "We have a two years' agreement to row Cornell and this is only the first year. We must row her next year. It is probable that we will match up things with Yale and she will want to row us."

"We can't row here and at New London, too," he said, "and if Yale wants to row I see no way out of it but for her to come here."

The betting up to noon was light. Among the reports to which betters paid some heed was a statement of Capt. Bullard, of Harvard. It has been said in newspaper peints that Harvard had done the course in 19:35. Capt. Bullard said: "It is not correct. We made very much better time than that and under adverse conditions. We rowed through rough water caused by passing boats." This statement is used by the betting men to increase the odds on Harvard.

RACE FORECAST.

Gossip About the Crews Who Row Today.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 26.—New men predominate in the crews which are to row this afternoon for the universities of Harvard, Pennsylvania, Columbia and Cornell. This is a departure from the practice in previous years when seasoned oarsmen have been preferred for the 'varsity boat races. Cornell showed up the lightest crew, but the men were in fairly good training and sit well in their boat. They averaged but 157¾ pounds apiece, while Harvard's average is 167¾ pounds; Pennsylvania's 166½, and Columbia 174⅞. If anything Pennsylvania's crew looked over trained; but as a whole when the four crews line up for the final test they are well matched.

Columbia's confidence is based upon her victory last year. Seven of the eight men in that winning boat are in again this year. There is no question but that the New Yorkers are faster than they were last year. Mr. Courtney is not boasting about his Cornell crew. He says the men are slower than a law suit and they positively refuse to hitch up their stroke and increase the speed of the boat at the same time. There has been an extraordinary change of sentiment about Pennsylvania. Until yesterday the men in the crew and their followers had no feeling that they would win, but they were certain of making a good showing. Some changes were made yesterday in the composition of the crew and as a result the boat trimmed better and moved better. Confidence began to grow. Physically the men are in better condition than any other crew of the four.

ANOTHER SICK CONVICT.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 26.—S. R. Dawson, who killed Walter Scott, his son-in-law, the day before Christmas, was Aoday given ten years in the penitentiary. It is not believed he will live it out.

POINT PLEASANT'S SADNESS.

Point Pleasant, W. Va., June 26.—Fire broke out in the millinery store of Anna Durton last evening and burned the Hoofs' Opera house and other stores, shops and dwellings, causing a loss of $100,000 with but little insurance.

HENLEY ENTRIES.

They Are Closed and the List Published.

Henley-on-Thames, June 26.—The entries for the regatta of 1896 closed last evening and the list was issued this morning. For the grand challenge cup there are nine entries, Yale, Dehoop, New College, Leander, Thames, London, Trinity Hall, First Trinity and Eton. The entries do not give the names of positions of the actual crews and they will not be handed in until four days before the race. Leander, however, will in all probability have the following crew: Bow, W. F. C. Holland; No. 2, H. Graham; No. 3, E. C. Sherwood; No. 4, R. Carr; No. 5, E. R. Balfour; No. 6, Guy Nickals; No. 7, T. E. Stretch; stroke, H. Gould.

All the members of the Leander crew are Oxford men, and Sherwood, Carr, Balfour and Gould were members of this year's Oxford crew. Gould was stroke of the dark blue eight which beat Cambridge after such a hard fight this year, and he was a member of the Eton crew, which made a fine showing at Henley last year. He is considered to be a wonderful stroke.

CLEVELAND'S BONDS.

Special Acts Authorizing Them Are Legal.

Cleveland, June 26.—Word was received by the city officials today that the supreme court of the state has affirmed the validity of the contemplated bond issues for public improvements amounting to nearly $8,000,000, authorized by special acts of the last legislature. The question was on the constitutionality of the special acts and had the decision been made against the city, it would have invalidated many millions of dollars' worth of bonds. The decision in favor of this city affects also a large number of acts passed in the interests of other cities and counties in the state.

BROTHERS QUARREL.

Fatal Dispute Which Will Cost Two Lives.

Louisville, June 26.—A special to the Post from Richmond, Ky., says: Charles and Richard Golden, sons of Harry Golden, a well-to-do farmer, living near Kingston, this county, while out plowing together this morning, engaged in a dispute over some domestic affairs, when Charles ran to the house and got his shotgun and returning, emptied the contents into the breast of Richard, inflicting a fatal wound.

Then, drawing his pocket knife, the frenzied man attempted to cut his own throat, almost severing his jugular vein. Both men will die.

SAFE IN ST. PAUL.

Glencoe Murderers in Ramsey County Jail.

St. Paul, June 26.—The Glencoe murderers, protected by Company D, First regiment Minnesota National Guard, arrived in this city at 12:50 p. m. today and were at once placed in the Ramsey county jail. The officials at Glencoe felt that while they had ample protection, it would be better to move the prisoners elsewhere.

Before leaving Glencoe, the two men, Clingman and Musgrave, had their preliminary examination and were bound over to the next term of the district court.

WAS A CONSPIRACY.

Suit Against a Millionaire's Estate Dismissed.

Cincinnati, O., June 26.—Judge Sage today dismissed the case of John W. Flora against the Nicholas Longworth estate. Longworth was a millionaire and one of the richest men in this city. Flora claimed to be the illegitimate child of Eliza Longworth who was married to William Flagg. Mrs. Flagg died without issue.

The testimony showed Eliza Longworth was 10 years old when John W. Flora was born. Flora had been employed many years by the Longworths and it was held that the suit was due to a conspiracy to secure one-sixth of the estate.

THE LION ROARS.

And Aims Its Growls at Venezuela.

London, June 26.—The Globe this afternoon referring to the Venezuelan situation remarks: Sir Julian Pauncefote in a communication to Secretary Olney probably contained the supplementary intimation that if Harrison (the crown surveyor of British Guiana) is not released at once, Great Britain will exact redress by other than diplomatic methods. President Crespo will do well to comply with Secretary Olney's friend counsel as Caracas must be made to understand that pending the readjustment of the boundaries, England is resolved to exercise all sovereign rights east of the Schomburgk line.

AKRON'S MURDER TRIAL.

Akron, Ohio, June 26.—Upon the heels of Flora Stone's testimony yesterday, that she recognized the voice of the murderer of her father and mother as that of Romulus Cotell, the state gained a great point today in securing the admission of the oral confession of Cotell to the officers of the law as evidence. Attorney Voris for the defense consumed nearly the entire morning in arguing that it was involuntary and should be excluded, but Judge Kohler ruled it competent.

A DOUBLE POISONING.

Chicago, June 26.—Lewis Roseland, of Pullman, ended his own life and that of his 3-year-old daughter last night by poison. This morning when his wife went to his room to call him, she found his dead body in bed, by his side lay the little girl's corpse. Roseland was employed in the Pullman car works.

KILLED BY DYNAMITE.

Louisville, Ky., June 26.—A special to the Post from Chattanooga, Tenn., says: At Peters, Tenn., a little town about thirty miles from here, there was a dynamite explosion this morning that cost one man his life and will be the death of at least two others. Three or four others were also badly injured.

RELEASED

Venezuela Sets the Imprisoned Englishmen at Liberty This Morning.

Friendly Intervention of the United States Hastened the Action.

British Have Never Before Attempted to Cross the Cuyuni.

Washington, June 26.—The latest complication in the Venezuelan question has been promptly settled through the friendly intervention of the United States. Mr. Andrade, the Venezuelan minister, called at the state department today handed to Mr. Olney a copy of a telegram he had just received from Mr. Rojas, the Venezuelan minister of foreign affairs, which stated that Mr. Harrison, the crown surveyor of British Guiana, who with his party had been placed in arrest by Venezuelan officials, had been promptly released. The telegram to Minister Andrade follows:

"It was yesterday when the national commission telegraphed of the occurrence. Harrison and nineteen men more crossed on the left bank of the Cuyuni to open a road. The sub-commissary of Acarabisi protested in writing. Harrison insisted and the sub-commissary took him to the post of Eldorado. As soon as the government was informed thereof it ordered the release of Harrison and asked details."

It is undoubtedly true that the prompt action of the Venezuelan government was in a measure due to Mr. Olney's intercession through our minister, and it is believed that the main issue will be even more easy of settlement, now that the latter government has been so prompt to disavow an act she could not justify.

Minister Andrade says that the Cuyuni river has been the provisional boundary and has never been before crossed by the British. All are encroachments on Venezuelan territory, and the rights of Venezuela to territory on the left bank of the Cuyuni have been respected by the British. Posts have been erected by the Venezuelans on the left bank and by the British on the right bank, and while the country on the right bank is in dispute, that on the left bank has never been disputed until Harrison attempted to cross the river against the protest of the Venezuelan authorities.

DULUTH OARSMEN.

They Create a Sensation at Minnetonka.

Minnetonka Beach, June 26.—The excitement increases at Minnetonka as the hours go on, and the arrival of the Duluth crew last night put everybody's nerves on edge. They come here in superb condition and after practice work of several months, the last month of which has been steady and uninterrupted. They are fine looking fellows, have plenty of weight and are in splendid condition, according to their coach. They look every inch like oarsmen and the Minnesota eight, whose members have to struggle through a whole day's work in the city before they enter their shell, will have to do some very tall work to give a good account of themselves in the race at 6 o'clock tomorrow night.

The final spin over the course will be taken this afternoon, and tomorrow the crews will rest all day until the time comes for taking their shell. The Duluth men are thoroughly acquainted with the course, having rowed over it time and time again, so the Minnesotas will have no advantage in this direction. The drawing for position has not yet been made, but probably will be tonight.

The race will start at 6 or 6:15 tomorrow evening, the usual hour. Heffelfinger, the well-known footballist, will officiate as starter, but the judges will not be selected until tonight.

BANDS FOR BOURBONS.

Preparations to Welcome Hosts of Democracy.

Chicago, June 26.—Preparations are making to have members of the Iroquois club and other Democratic organizations meet incoming delegations to the Democratic national convention. Wherever a delegation arrives in a body an effort will be made to meet them at the stations with an escort consisting of a marching club and a band of music to escort them to their respective headquarters.

Chairmen of delegations which will come in a body are requested to write or telegraph the train and time of their arrival to Harry Wilkinson, secretary of the reception committee, at the Iroquois club, this city, and they will be notified in return of the specific preparations made for their reception.

Delegates not in a body will be met by committees and directed to their quarters, if application is made to the reception committee, as above indicated.

REPUDIATES OHIO'S PLATFORM.

Columbus, Ohio, June 26.—The Westbote, the German Democratic daily paper of this city, repudiates the Ohio Democratic state convention silver platform.

LUTHERAN LEAGUE.

Lancaster, Pa., June 26.—The executive committee of the Lutheran League of America, met here this morning and decided to hold the national Lutheran league convention at Chicago Nov. 17 next to continue three days.

PLOUGH IS PRESIDENT.

St. Paul, June 26.—A. B. Plough, vice president and general manager of the St. Paul & Duluth, was today elected president of the St. Paul Union Depot company at the annual meeting.

HANGED

Ford, the Negro, Suffers Death at Washington For Murder.

Crime One of the Most Brutal in Washington's Police History.

Murderer Made a Statement When Upon the Scaffold Trap.

Washington, June 26.—Irving L. Ford, the negro, whose brutal murder of Elsie Kreglo, on May 4 last, formed one of the most atrocious crimes in the police annals of Washington, was hanged in the jail yard here at 11:33 this morning. Ford made a statement denying that he had attempted to outrage his victim.

Ford also expressed regret for the murder and claimed he was under the influence of liquor and did not know what he was doing when he committed the crime. He was cool to the last and walked on the scaffold with a firm step and stolid countenance.

STORY OF THE CRIME.

Ford's crime aroused the greatest indignation in this city, and lynching was talked of. His victim was a young white country girl, about 16 years of age, who lived with her parents about a mile from the city limits. She was attending a country ball a short ways from her home, when accosted by her slayer, who attempted criminally assault her. She desperately resisted him, and a terrific struggle between the two ensued, during which the negro cut several ugly gashes across the throat of his victim with a knife. The girl's screams brought assistance from her family, who found her bleeding and exhausted from the wounds. She died almost immediately without giving any information about her assailant.

A number of arrests were made, as the surrounding country was searched by posses of determined men, but it was several days before the police succeeded in obtaining clues that seemed to fasten the crime on Ford. The latter managed to get as far away as Harper's Ferry, and after an exciting chase, during which the prisoner jumped into the river in an attempt to drown himself, he was captured and brought to the city. Here he was at first defiant and denied everything, but finally confessed, first that he murdered the girl, and then that he had made an effort to ravish her. Ford was about 30 years old, and a man of low, brutish instincts.

INTERNATIONAL RACE.

Oarsmen Showing Up in Good Form.

Henley-on-Thames, London, June 26.—Yale was on the water at 10:15 this morning, went down the river and around Regatta Island and then rowed over the course in 7 minutes 16 seconds. The first quarter was made in 1 min. 15 sec., and the half in 3 min. 33 sec. For the first half minute the stroke was thirty-four and for the balance of the spin the stroke was twenty-nine to the minute. This is considered a much better performance than that of yesterday. From first to last the boat ran well and the men were all in fine condition. In spite of this, however, "Bob" Cook is by no means satisfied. The crew went to their quarters immediately after the trial.

Trinity Hall went over the course in 7 min. 15 sec. with a stroke varying from thirty-six to thirty-seven. They did the first half in 3 min. 30 sec. and the last half in slower time. Trinity Hall, as was the case with the Yale crew, had quite a strong wind astern, but the conditions favored Trinity, owing to the thwart rigging of the seats. Leander did the first half in 3 min. 22½ sec.

SILVER DEMOCRATS.

White Metal Delegates Have a Big Lead.

Chicago, June 26.—The Tribune says: A canvass of the delegates of every state and territory on the currency question shows 578 delegates to the Democratic national convention to be, either by instructions or personal preference, for the free and unlimited coinage of silver at 16 to 1, against 328 delegates instructed for or favoring the continuance of the present gold standard. The estimate is based on the observation of the unit rule by the delegates from states which have so instructed.

RAILROAD IN DIFFICULTY.

San Francisco, June 26.—The Central Trust company, of New York, has commenced suit in the United States circuit court against the California & Nevada Railway company for $367,050, alleged to be due for interest on bonds issued in 1876. A new receiver is asked and the suit includes foreclosure.

Our friends say their children have kept strong and well all winter by taking Scott's Emulsion. Many children do not assimilate enough fat with their food, hence they need this easy fat food, and thrive on it. It is for all children that are not absolutely strong. The combination of Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites as prepared in Scott's Emulsion is marvelous in its power to arrest wasting.

The 50 cent size is especially useful as a trial size for babies and children.

CURED

Of Nervous Debility and Loss of Vitality.

A Prominent Boston Official Tells How He Was Restored to Health and Vigor.

Famous Everywhere, From Their Cures, Are Dr. Charcot's Kola Nervine Tablets.

"Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Bureau of Statistics of Labor. Claflin building, 20 Beacon street, Boston, Dec. 31, 1895. Gentlemen: Your Kola Nervine Tablets (Dr. Charcot's) have been used both by myself and a member of my family. In my own case I had a good chance to test them, as I began their use after a period of brain labor and close application, covering some eighteen months. This work was in connection with the state census of Massachusetts, and when the strain was removed I found myself quite "run down," as the saying is, with a continual "tired feeling" and muscular pains that affected one part of my body and then another. The Kola Nervine Tablets have formed an important part of a treatment which leaves me today in my usual condition of activity. The member of my family suffered from heart trouble and shortness of breath, and the Tablets were used freely in critical times with manifest increase in strength and a consequent amelioration of symptoms as a result.

It is so seldom that a medicine is a specific for certain ills and does all that is claimed for it, it is a pleasure, as well as an humanitarian duty, to recommend your preparation of Kola, and advise its use. Very truly,

Charles F. Pidgin, Chief Clerk."

AMERICAN WOOL.

Not in Very Good Odor in England.

Washington, June 26.—There has been an altogether unprecedented falling off in the heretofore large cloth trade for the great Bradford district in England with the United States, and United States Consul Meeker has made it the subject of an interesting report to the state department. This decrease ranged from $247,779 in February to $1,705,502 in May, being a decrease for the latter month of 70 per cent, which is without precedent in the history of the consulate.

To counteract the depression, recourse has been had to the device of interesting the fashionable world in the products of the Bradford mills through the patronage of the royal family. It is hoped in this manner to popularize the home made fabric and have them take the place of the goods now imported in quantities from France and Germany. To this end samples have been sent to Marlborough house with the intent to have the princess of Wales select therefrom materials for the trousseau of one of the young princesses who is soon to be married, while the queen herself has given an order to some of the old persons in the district who still turn out goods by hand looms in their cottages in the ancient way.

The consul also says that American wool is meeting with a bad reception in Bradford, where it does not take well, because the workmen are not used to its handling, and also because it is not considered as well suited to the staple fabrics of the district. A lot of 100,000 pounds of Ohio wool brought 19 cents, although 23 cents was asked for several hundred thousand pounds of far Western wools, which were sent back to the United States because the prices asked could not be realized, and another large quantity of United States wool is now lying in warehouse waiting for the market.

COUNTY CONVENTIONS.

At St. Cloud there was a warm contest, but the thirteen votes of the convention were secured by Governor Clough.

At Mankato there were 130 delegates present from Blue Earth county and the entire state delegation of twenty-one delegates is instructed for Clough.

At Fergus Falls the Otter Tail county convention was a big affair and the delegation will vote for Clapp for governor, and Houpt for attorney general, as a unit.

At Wadena the Clough party dominated the convention in spite of a combine.

At Wells the Clapp delegates selected are eleven in number and the Clough men are only five.

MATABELES DEFEATED.

Buluwayo, Matabeleland, June 26.—Laine's troopers have surprised and routed a large body of insurgents on the Beling range and have killed Chief Salemba and his three sons, besides recovering the cattle and loot which the natives had obtained in their various raids upon the property of the whites.

FIRE ON SHIPBOARD.

Liverpool, June 26.—Fire broke out last night in the hold of the British steamer Lucerne, Capt. Steward, loaded with a general cargo for Montevideo. Five hours elapsed before it was decided that there was no way of smothering the flames except by scuttling the ship. This was done this morning and the Lucerne is now being pumped out, preparatory to refloating her.

MONTANA M'KINLEY CLUB.

Helena, Mont., June 26.—Thomas B. Miller, of this city, a leading Republican, has just perfected an organization of the first McKinley and Hobart club in the Northwest. The club starts off with a membership of 100 and Miller says within a week the Helena club will have 500 members and that in a month there will be associate clubs in every town in the state.

KANSAS POPULISTS.

Topeka, Kas., June 26.—A number of Populists have chartered from one of the railroads two Pullman cars to carry Kansas Populists to the Chicago convention.

JESUIT STATION RELIEVED.

Salisbury, Matabeleland, June 26.—Taylor's patrol has returned here after having relieved the Jesuit station at Chissiwassa, which the priests had defended without loss of life on their side.

TURKEY

Powers Will Insist on a Christian Governor For Crete.

Persians, Druses and Armenians Driving the Turks Before Them.

Captain Vallar, a Russian, Makes Some Statement of Atrocities.

New York, June 26.—A special to the Herald from Constantinople says: Denial is given by the sublime porte to the embassy's statement that Turkish troops fired upon Armenian prisoners. Complete accord exists between the representatives of the great powers on the subject of securing the appointment of a Christian governor for Crete, and the fulfillment of the treaty of Haleppa. Each ambassador will send an individual note to this effect.

Another sanguinary outbreak has occurred at Van and 400 are reported to have been killed. The Persians are promoting the disturbances and fomenting the revolt throughout Armenia. The Druses have now received Bedouin support and are driving out the Turks.

Diplomatic pressure is being brought to bear upon the porte increasing the chances of peace. The following statement has been received from Capt. Vallar: "I have witnessed hideous atrocities. Armenian girls and women were publicly sold at auction. A mother threw her two daughters into a well before my eyes, to save them from the Turks. Evidence of Turkish official complicity have been obtained by me. The foreign press should be ashamed to remain indifferent."

Capt. Vallar died from humiliating role accepted by France. The porte continues to hang Armenians publicly. It is understood that Russia will prevent the publication of Vallar's report.

FAIR WILL CASE.

Nettie Craven Was the Millionaire's Widow.

San Francisco, June 26.—Mrs. Nettie A. Craven has at last revealed her relations with the late James G. Fair. In the presence of a score of attorneys and a court room full of people, she told Judge Slack last night that she was the widow of the dead millionaire. The marriage was by contract she swore and took place May 20, 1892, at 823 Sutter street, where Mrs. Craven was then living. The record of the ceremony with Fair's signature attached was in her possession, she said, and would be produced this evening.

Like all previous developments in the famous will contest few of the circumstances attending the marriage are known. Mystery pervades the proceedings. According to Mrs. Craven the contract nuptials were celebrated in the evening. The record of the affair was drawn by herself at her husband's request, who feared it might be disagreeable to his children. Mrs. Craven maintained silence concerning the ceremony. Of the courtship and honeymoon she would not speak.

The revelation was made in connection with two deeds recently filed by Mrs. Craven in which the late senator is said to have transferred to her property worth $1,000,000.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

With the state nominating convention at Fargo less than a month off the Republican fight is getting very warm. The friends of Governor Allin are moving heaven and earth to secure his renomination, and are trying to effect winning combinations. The combine behind the executive is a strong one, and some good schemes are being put up. Col. Robinson, owner of the Argus, chairman of the state central committee and national committeeman for North Dakota, is lending all his influence to place Allin in the gubernatorial chair for another term. He is ably assisted by Jud LaMoure, Gen. Hughes and other able party leaders. Billy Budge, of Grand Forks, who is frequently spoken of as the next governor, and who, is by all odds, Allin's strongest opponent, is making a quiet fight for the place. He is especially strong with the old timers. He is a Scotchman by birth.

James Dunham, the California murderer, who is charged with killing his wife and five members of his family, was in Grand Forks Wednesday night and was seen near the Riverside hotel about 6 o'clock. The discovery that Dunham was in this country was made by Detective Bellis, of Fargo, who recognized him from the description sent out from San Francisco. He remained in Fargo several days and then rented a bicycle and left town. Mr. Bellis traced him to that city and found that he was here last night. He was unable to get any trace of him to collect the large reward offered for his capture. He is described as a good looking man about six feet tall, dressed in a brown suit, hat and shoes of the same color. He wore a gray crushed hat.

Col. Tuller, chief of supplies for the North Dakota National Guard, made a flying trip to Lisbon and completed final arrangements for the appearance of the battery at the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration in Fargo on July 1. The whole battery, accompanied by the First regiment band, will be there. They will bring trained horses with them and give an exhibition drill, firing their cannon on the run. It will be one of the most attractive features of the monster celebration. Other arrangements are progressing rapidly and 20,000 visitors are expected. One fare rate has been given by all roads.

The report of the sale of the assets of the North Dakota Milling association was made to Judge Thomas at Fargo Wednesday afternoon, and an order confirming the sale was recorded. Assets were sold to a syndicate of creditors, and B. R. Lyon, formerly receiver, will be retained as general manager of the corporation. The sale includes the entire property in both Minnesota and North Dakota.

Julius Porter, the 12-year-old son of Edward Forler, who lately arrived from Starbuck, was drowned in Boundary creek, near Scotia, Tuesday, while boating.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

A sensation was created at Wilmot last Saturday when it was discovered that a wedding which had been arranged for that evening had been indefinitely postponed by the disappearance of the bride prospective, A. J. Bettner, formerly an artist of this place, came here two weeks ago with the expectation of being married to Miss Lena Remund, of this place. Everything was in readiness for the marriage, when the young lady suddenly changed her mind, and took the afternoon train from Milbank to Minneapolis. The disappointed bridegroom elect took the midnight train for his home at Auburn, Iowa.

At Castlewood an extra term of court was held for the purpose of trying Otto Jacobson, charged with incest with his 14-year-old daughter. Jacobson was found guilty, and sentenced to the state penitentiary for eight years.

Regardless of hard times the people of South Dakota are paying their taxes at Pierre. On an estimate of receipts of $95,000 for the quarter ending May 31, the state received $98,500.

BOLD BANK ROBBERS.

Dig a Tunnel 102 Feet and Are Discovered.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 26.—The boldest attempt at bank robbery ever made on the Pacific coast has just come to light. The object of the attack was the heavy steel vault of the First National bank, one of the largest financial institutions of its kind in Southern California, and to reach it the robbers dug a tunnel 102 feet in length, extending from a street adjoining from the First National and running thence under the cellars of three other banks.

This tunnel had progressed to a point directly beneath the vault when the police authorities were apprised of its existence. When the scheme was discovered the burglars had begun to remove the brick masonry supporting the steel vault. The work is believed to have been done by a gang of at least five or six persons, but only one suspect, James K. Stephens has thus far been arrested.

HARTMAN'S HOMECOMING.

Butte Welcomed the Silver Man With Enthusiasm.

Butte, Mont., June 26.—The greatest ovation ever accorded a citizen of Montana, was that given Congressman Hartman upon his arrival from St. Louis. He was met at the depot by thousands of people and a band and after he entered a carriage the horses were unhitched and a rope attached to the vehicle.

Several hundred enthusiastic silver men from all parties pulled the carriage a mile up the hill to the city. The people went wild. Buildings were decorated and people with brass bands paraded the city all day.

THE FACT THAT DOCTORS

A NEWSPAPER JUNKET.

Washington, June 26.—The annual Cape May special tour of the newspaper men of Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia, given by the Pennsylvania road, left Washington today at 9:30 and will reach Cape May, N. J., at 3:45 p. m. An elegant special train carried the newspaper men and their wives, who will be the guests of the Pennsylvania company at the Stockton hotel until Monday, when they will return by the same special. Arrangements have been made with unusual care, and a repetition of an enjoyable trip is assured.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

At Montreal the superior court has rendered a decision upholding the secrecy of the Roman Catholic confessional. The case arose out of a priest refusing to reveal in court what had been told to him during a confession.

Latonia track races opened at Cincinnati yesterday. The winners were Iolin, Prestus, Mayflan, Ben Brush and Ben Eder coupled for first, Belle Bramble and Alma Goodwin.

At the New York races the winners were Amanda V and Oracle dead heat; Redomonde, Ferrier, Charade, Set Fast and Successful.

At the St. Louis races yesterday the following horses won: First Deal, Benamela, Weenatchee, Tippon, Lady Hamilton and Don Carillo.

Ex-Senator Ohl, of Mahoning county, Ohio, has been acquitted of the charge of bribery.

At San Francisco James J. Corbett and E. J. Lynch, Sharkey's backer, met yesterday and negotiated for a finish fight for $10,000 and the largest purse offered by any club. Sharkey was not present and the agreement was not signed but there will be another meeting today when the arrangements will be completed. One of the stipulations already agreed is that the fight must take place within six months.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of five hundred seventy-five and 20-100 dollars ($575.20), which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Huntington W. Merchant, unmarried, mortgagor, to Annie E. Godwin, mortgagee, bearing date the 11th day of March, 1893, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 30th day of March, 1893, at 8:10 o'clock a. m., in Book 125 of mortgages, on page 52; which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Anne E. Godwin, mortgagee, to Henry H. Lockwood by written assignment dated the 28th day of April, 1893, and recorded in the office of said register of deeds on the 21st day of June, 1893, at 4 o'clock p. m. in Book 83 of mortgages on page 462; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: All those tracts or parcels of land lying and being in the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: All of lots numbered twenty-four (24), twenty-five (25) and twenty-six (26), in block numbered four (4), of the Merchant's Park Division of Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the 25th day of July, 1896, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of five hundred seventy-five and 20-100 dollars and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

WEST END

Red Hot Iron Ran Twenty Feet Through M. C. Fate's Leg.

Was Half Pulled and Half Torn Out of the Flesh.

Leg May Have to Be Amputated---Dr. Forbes' Last Sunday.

The rolling mill of the Duluth Manufacturing company was the scene yesterday of a peculiar and distressing accident. M. C. Fate, a 17-year-old lad, nephew of George Patterson, foreman of the mill, was pierced through the leg, close to the thigh, by a red-hot iron as it left the rolls. The heated metal passed through the leg a distance of about twenty feet before assistance was received and the rod separated from the limb. The separation was then only made by half tearing and half burning the flesh until the rod was pulled out.

The young man was taken to his home on Fifty-ninth avenue south of Raleigh as soon as possible and several physicians summoned. Although the limb has not been amputated, it is a question whether amputation will not be necessary to save the boy's life. He is reported to be resting comfortably today.

HIS LAST SUNDAY.

Dr. Forbes will preach morning and evening at Asbury church next Sunday for the last time before he goes East. In the afternoon he will open the new Methodist church at Proctorknot. The building is not yet completed, but service will nevertheless be held there on Sunday afternoon.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Frank Green has gone to Hibbing to superintend a piece of railroad work which the firm of Green & Barbrick are doing for the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company.

Charles Towner, Sr., arrived home this week on the Iedia after an extended trip through the country.

Miss Clara Murphy has gone to Grand Marais for a visit with her brother.

E. R. Hamilton, agent of the Agricultural Insurance company, is in the city visiting Scott & Olafson, the local agents.

John G. Abowski, living on Wadena street, was arrested and taken to Duluth this morning for refusing to pay license on a dog of which he is said to be the owner.

Mrs. A. Boyd has left for a visit in Iowa, Missouri and Pennsylvania, after which she will go to Kingston, Ont., to reside in the future.

Lost, strayed or stolen, a Fourth of July celebration. The finder will please return same to Col. J. R. Randall, president of the day, and receive liberal reward.

HARKER WAS DISGUSTED.

Alderman A. J. Harker was in the Republican convention yesterday and is one of the most disgusted men in town. He is a great admirer of Congressman Towne. It was noticed that he voted for Benham for chairman and when the call on the adoption of the report naming delegates he did not vote. The truth is that he left in disgust. He had been assured that he would have a voice in the selection of the St. Cloud delegation and then when his vote on organization had been secured the machine according to its customary tactics quietly dropped him overboard.

As he was leaving the hall he remarked that he had seen all of that kind of work that he wanted to. Chairman Getty heard him and told him he was acting foolishly in leaving and that he ought to go to the leaders and demand that he be placed on the delegation.

The whole truth of the matter is that the machine was afraid of Alderman Harker, knowing his friendship to Towne. Mr. Harker was seen this morning.

"Say, I would like to have a patent on that machine," said he, "stock in it would be a pretty good thing, for if it works as nicely next November as now, stock will be away above par. I refused to cast my vote on the committee report because I did not care to be a straw man or a dummy sitting there and voting as the machine waned things done."

HAVE FREE PASSES.

Jim Hill Takes Care of Clough Delegates.

A Herald reporter met the ticket agent of one of the St. Paul roads this morning and asked:

"How many of the Duluth delegates to the Republican state convention does your road expect to carry?"

"Not one, and it's a d——n shame," he said. "They all have passes over the Great Northern."

Great is Jim Hill and his railroad. Would an anti-Clough delegation have been passed free? Nit.

HE GOT THE PLACE.

London Fun: Merchant—Have you had any experience in chinaware?

Applicant—Years of it, sir.

Merchant—What do you do when you break a valuable piece

Applicant—Well—er—I usually put it together again and place it where some customer will knock it over.

Merchant—You'll do.

Ionic Lodge Banquet.

Ionic lodge, A. F. & A. M., gave its semi-annual banquet last evening at the Masonic Temple. Before the feast, ceremonies were held in the lodge rooms. The tables were arranged around three sides of the large music hall and were beautifully decorated with flowers. Judge Page Morris acted as toast-master. The toasts and those responding thereto were as follows: "A Mason's Duty to His Country," Hon. Charles A. Towne; "What the Rough and Perfect Ashlers Teach Us," George E. Arbury; "Absent, But Not Forgotten," William C. White. A number of the officers and members of Palestine lodge were entertained as guests.

Off For Canton.

Monroe Nichols left today for Cleveland, where he will meet the other delegates who are on the committee to formally notify William McKinley of his nomination for president by the Republicans. From the time of reaching Cleveland they will be under the tender care of Marcus Aurelius Hanna. He will provide a special train to take the delegates to Canton, the home of the nominee.

A SLAVE CAUSED WAR.

Lippincott's Magazine: In 1835 a young woman, with a party of Indians visiting Fort King, was seized and carried off as a fugitive slave, on the ground that her mother was an escaped slave who had taken refuge with the Indians many years before. That her father was an Indian and she had been raised an Indian did not count for anything. Legal claim of ownership in the mother embraced her also, that was law at the time—the white man's law.

Naturally, the young husband, untutored savage that he was, could not recognize its justice. Proving both eloquent and brave, he soon had every Indian in Florida on the warpath, nor was it long before his name, Osceola, was heard with terror in the exposed white settlements. There ensued a war long, costly and bloody out of all proportions to the numbers engaged. It is probable the Indians did not number 1500 warriors, but in the four years required to conquer them 1500 white lives were sacrificed.

With the Indians it was a battle a outrance. They had many wrongs to avenge, which lost nothing in the fervid coloring of Osceola's eloquence. Defeat meant transportation to an unknown country far toward the setting sun. Osceola claimed to have been the friend of the white man until white treachery and cupidity culminated in the brutal seizure of his wife; in digging up the tomahawk he preached a war of extermination—till every white man was driven from Florida, or every Indian died in the attempt.

DECLINED!

Wheat Was Again Dull and Weak Owing to Bearish Conditions.

Receipts Again Heavy and Rain in the Winter Wheat Country.

Declines Were Reported in the Markets at Liverpool and Berlin.

Wheat was dull and lower today. The same general reasons for the previous day's weakness were again in operation, and there was no particular change in in the situation which had previously and still convinced a respectable proportion of the operators that wheat was cheap enough to buy. The Northwestern receipts were again heavy, as compared with those of the year before. Rain was not quite as general in the Northwest as it was yesterday, but in the winter wheat country every state showed more or less rain. St. Louis sent bearish dispatches about threshing, mentioning one 25-acre field as yielding an average of thirty-one bus per acre. The orders at Chicago from outside points, however, to buy wheat came chiefly from St. Louis. That buying was said to be based upon no more significant grounds than the covering of the short end of a spread between that city and Chicago, the original difference between the two markets having been 3c and it having narrowed to about ¾c. Trading was slow and of no particular significance except that the majority of traders appeared to favor the selling side. Liverpool was off 2d and Berlin 1¼@1½ marks. Northwestern receipts were 416 cars, compared with 515 cars a week ago and 157 carloads on the corresponding day of the year before.

July wheat opened here ¼c lower at 55½c, recovered to 55¾-⅞c shortly after the close of the hour and ruled dull, declining again to 55¾c. September opened ¼c lower at 56¾c, regained the loss and then eased off with July. There was good business in cash stuff, shippers buying 150,000 bus at the July price and the mills taking 20,000 bus at ¼c over July. There will be no material change in wheat stocks this week, the receipts about equalling the shipments. The close was ¼c lower than yesterday for July and ⅝c lower for September. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 56c; July, 56⅝c. No. 1 northern, cash, 55c; June, 55⅜c; July, 55½c asked; September, 55¾c asked. No. 2 northern, cash, 51⅝@53⅜c. No. 3 50¾@51½c. Rejected, 46¾@51¾c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 56¼c; No. 1 northern, 55¼c. Rye, 30½c. No. 2 oats, 16½@17c; No. 3 oats, 16@16½c. Flax, 78c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 204; oats, 7; rye, 7; barley, 22; flax, 8. Receipts—Wheat, 202,285 bus; oats, 16,645 bus; rye, 4384 bus; barley, 33,417 bus; flax, 17,781 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 161,914 bus; oats, 1071 bus; flax, 614 bus.

THE LIVERPOOL MARKET.

Silver certificates, sales $40,000, at 60@60⅝c. Bar silver 60¾. Mexican dollars 53¾. Government bonds steady. New 4s registered, $1.17; coupon, $1.17; 5s registered, $1.13; coupon, $1.13; 4s registered, $1.03½; coupon, $1.06¾; 2s registered, 94¾; Pacific 6s of '95, $1.00½.

CATTLE AND HOGS.

Chicago, June 26.—Estimated receipts hogs today, 26,000; left over, 2000. Market active and steady at yesterday's closing. Light, $3.25@3.50; mixed, $3.00@3.40; heavy, $2.80@3.25; rough, $2.80@2.95. Cattle, 4000; including 1000 Texans. Market steady; choice beeves scarce. Beeves, $3.50@4.40; cows and heifers, $1.40@4.10; Texas steers, $2.65@4.00; stockers and feeders, $2.70@3.75. Sheep, 8000. Steady. Hogs, official receipts yesterday, 31,457; shipments, 6758. Cattle, official receipts yesterday, 9612; shipments, 1963. Sheep, official receipts yesterday, 13,582; shipments, 1260. Estimated receipts hogs tomorrow, 16,000.

NEW YORK GRAIN.

New York, June 26.—Wheat, June, 61¾c; August, 62c; September, 62¾c bid; December, 64¾c bid. Corn, September, 34½c. Oats, September, 29¾c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Minneapolis, June 26.—Wheat closed, June, 53¾c; July, 52¾c; September, 53⅝c. On track—No. 1 hard, 54½c; No. 1 northern, 53¾c; No. 2 northern, 52½c. Receipts 212 cars.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade, Chicago, June 26.—Wheat continues to sag lower, but the main part of the decline of the past few days has occurred over night. Reports from the harvest fields are encouraging and give rise to the belief that the yield will be larger than expected. Outside trade is very light and mainly confined to evening up July contracts. Northwest receipts are less than last week, though still very large, but Duluth and Minneapolis will show a decrease this week despite the large movement. Most of the news was bearish today, and the decline was only fractional and stubbornly contested.

Corn and oats were without special feature, except liberal covering by shorts.

Provisions—The market was mainly devoted to changing over July to September stuff. Every exhibition of strength is met with renewed short selling.

Puts, September wheat, 56c.

Calls, September wheat, 56⅝-¾c.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Market Today Was Higher at the Opening.

New York, June 26.—The stock market opened higher, but the gains were unimportant except in Sugar, in which large transactions rose 1¾ per cent to 114 5-4. The top figure induced realizing and the price quickly receded to last night's closing. The general market was generally favorably influenced by higher London prices and some foreign buying.

The drive against Sugar caused an easing off of values in the general list, with Tennessee Coal and L. & N. sustaining the more important concessions. The market at 11 o'clock was steady and recoveries had been scored, particularly in Sugar, which rose 1¾ per cent to 114⅝.

Leather preferred loomed into prominence during the second hour and under heavy sales declined 22 per cent to 58½. Trading generally was largely confined to the industrials and sympathetic concessions were noted in Sugar and Tobacco. The railway sales held steady at about the low point. The sales to noon were 117,400 shares.

Proclamation

To the Business Men of the City of Duluth.

Saturday, June 27th, being selected as Bicycle Derby day, and it being desirable that as many as possible attend and witness the races, which will be held on London Road, I would respectfully suggest that all employes be granted a half holiday on that day, so as to enable them to take part in the harmless sport, and have an enjoyable time.

In connection with the above I would respectfully request the dear people of the city to make their purchases in the forenoon, so as to enable the business men, without any loss of trade to them or inconvenience to the public, to close their places of business and grant the above request, giving their employes a chance to enjoy the healthful and harmless pleasure of participating in or witnessing the races.

Hoping that this request will be accepted in the spirit as given, I am your obedient servant,

HENRY TRUELSEN, MAYOR.

ORDER TO HEAR PETITION FOR LICENSE TO SELL LAND OF MINOR.—State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis—ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, June 25th, 1896.

In the matter of the guardianship of Luke E. Marvin, minor:

On reading and filing the petition of Luke A. Marvin, guardian of said minor, representing among other things that the said ward is seized of certain real estate in Morrison County, in said state, and that for the benefit of said ward the same should be sold, and praying for license to sell the same; and it appearing to the satisfaction of the court, from said petition, that for the benefit of said ward said real estate should be sold.

It is ordered that all persons interested in said estate appear before this court on Saturday, the eighteenth day of July, A. D. 1896, at ten o'clock a. m., at the probate office, in Duluth, in said county, then and there to show cause, (if any there be), why license should not be granted for the sale of said real estate, according to the prayer of said petition.

And it is further ordered that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said county.

Dated at Duluth, the 25th day of June, A. D. 1896.

By the Court,
PHINEAS AYER,
Judge of Probate.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—Default having been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Huntington W. Merchant, mortgagor, to Frank R. Webber, mortgagee, bearing date the 20th day of September, 1893, with power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis, state of Minnesota, on the 17th day of April, 1894, at 4 o'clock p. m., in Book 81 of mortgages, on page 52; which default has, by reason of the failure and neglect of said mortgagor to make payment of the entire principal and interest, by said mortgage secured, been continued to the date of this notice.

And whereas there is actually due and claimed to be due and payable, at the date of this notice the sum of two thousand two hundred and five and 28-100 dollars ($2205.28) and whereas the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative and no action at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover said debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, lying and being in the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota and described as follows, to-wit: The northwest quarter of the southwest quarter (nw¼ of sw¼) of section thirty-two (32), township fifty (50) north of range fourteen (14) west according to the government survey thereof with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging. Said sale will be made by the sheriff of said county of St. Louis at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the 10th day of Aug. 1896, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of two thousand two hundred and nineteen and 91-100 dollars and interest, and taxes and insurance, if any, on said premises and fifty dollars attorneys' fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

MR. HARTLEY'S CANDIDACY.

The mask is off. There is no reason to doubt that the Hon. Guilford Goldite Hartley is an active candidate for the Republican nomination for congress. Heretofore he has been regarded as standing in the position which Gen. Harrison occupied not many months ago towards the presidential nomination—that of a receptive candidate. But it is evident in the future that he will be a full fledged, active and aggressive candidate. His headquarters have not been opened yet, but this matter will undoubtedly be decided upon within a few days, and as a faithful and enterprising news chronicler, The Herald will inform the anxious public of its location.

The course of yesterday's county convention gave complete evidence that Mr. Hartley intends to be in the race at St. Cloud for the—it must be confessed—rather empty honor of the Republican nomination. Of Mr. Towne's election there is no doubt, and it is therefore rather astonishing to see a man of usually good sense like G. G. willing to buck fate in this manner. It is true that Mr. Hartley was not present in person at yesterday's convention, but he had representatives on hand to look after his interests, and the result of the skillful work which they performed under his direction is seen in the makeup of the delegation to St. Cloud. It is largely a Hartley delegation, and among its members is the manager of the News Tribune, who is also at the present time combining with his ordinary duties the important work of managing the Hartley boom. He may be depended upon to spread the boom among the doubtful delegates to St. Cloud and to persuade them that there is no other Republican in Duluth who combines so many elements of strength, from the goldbug standpoint. There is every reason to believe that before the date of the convention, The Herald will be able to announce that the St. Louis county delegation is not "largely a Hartley delegation," but that it is a solid Hartley delegation. Then with the battle cry, "Hartley and Gold—One and Inseparable," the Republican party in the Sixth district can march forward to the fate that the gods have reserved for it this year.

AN ABLE MAN GONE.

The death of Sir Leonard Tilley, a well-known Canadian statesman, is announced almost simultaneously with the result of the Canadian elections. Two days after the Conservative party was overwhelmingly defeated at the polls Sir Leonard Tilley, who was one of the oldest Conservative leaders and was one of "the fathers of confederation," passed away at a very advanced age. He was for many years a member of Sir John A. Macdonald's cabinet. For a long period he and Sir Charles Tupper were Sir John's right hand men. They were his chief lieutenants in the Maritime provinces, and under their leadership Nova Scotia and New Brunswick were kept in the Conservative column.

Sir Leonard Tilley then occupied the office of minister of finance, and he was an able finance minister. Not a man of much scholarship, he had acquired an education by reading and contact with his fellow-men, and by careful study and natural aptitude for financial problems became better posted than any other public man in Canada upon the finances of the Dominion and the best solution of the numerous financial questions which arose from time to time. His "budget speeches" were models in many respects. He had a happy faculty of so weaving a mass of figures into an argument that they never became wearisome and his strong, resonant and pleasing voice charmed his auditors. After the elections of 1878, when the Conservatives returned to power after a four years' Liberal administration, the so-called "national policy" of protection was introduced, and Sir Leonard Tilley was the author of the tariff bill that was framed in accordance with this policy.

Ill health compelled him to retire from active participation in politics several years ago, and he was rewarded with the appointment of lieutenant governor of New Brunswick. Few public men ever enjoyed the confidence of the people so fully as did Sir Leonard enjoy the confidence of the people of his native province. His honesty was unquestioned. His reputation was never tarnished by even the breath of suspicion, and he closed his brilliant career retaining unbroken the confidence and esteem of the people.

A SIGNIFICANT LIST.

If the local goldbug politicians who are attempting to belittle the great popular demonstration on Wednesday evening in honor of Congressman Towne will read over the list of the vice presidents of the meeting, which was published by The Herald yesterday, they will find ample cause for reflection. The list of well known Republicans, who by accepting official connection with the demonstration gave notice that they have decided to place duty to the cause of bimetallism above party, and will work and vote for Mr. Towne's re-election, contains but a small fraction of the names of those who have decided that they must quit the party, because it has completely reversed its position upon the great issue of the day and has sold itself to the gold syndicates of Wall street and Lombard street.

There is a significance in the action of those Republicans who are thus forced to leave their old party associations, which the party managers will undoubtedly appreciate at its full value. It is the first rumbling of the storm which will reach its height in November, and which will smash the old parties into pieces. These Republicans are the representatives of a vast army of Republicans all over the country who are ready to support the candidates whose election will contribute to a victory for bimetallism and for the restoration of silver to its former place alongside gold as the standard money of the nation. They are unable to swallow the gold dose prepared by the party managers at St. Louis. They will refuse to abide by the bargain entered into to deliver this country into the merciless grasp of the Rothschilds and the other money lenders who have cornered the gold of the world and would compel the people to measure the value of their products by the dishonest and steadily appreciating gold standard.

In November these men will go to the polls and vote against the party which has broken its promises, abandoned its sound and time-honored doctrine, and has wandered from the Republicanism of Blaine and Garfield and Grant and Lincoln, and they will unite with the patriotic men from other parties to elect a president and a congress that will establish an American monetary standard.

BUSINESS MEN ALL RIGHT.

The political reporter of the Minneapolis Journal, who has been in Duluth several days searching every nook and corner of the city for Republicans who do not agree with Mr. Towne's views and will not add his re-election to congress, has sent word to his paper that Mr. Towne "has lost almost the solid business support of Duluth," and that not "a single leading business man in Duluth" is supporting him. In substantiation of this wild-eyed and reckless statement, he quotes two goldbug politicians, and gives this assertion with the apparent idea that this should be considered authoritative.

"Jerry J" is a very nice young man, but he looks at the political situation through colored spectacles. There is a golden tinge to everything that he views, and therefore The Herald is not astonished that close association with the small goldbug contingent here, and looking at the situation through their glasses, has led him to false conclusions in regard to public sentiment. Any man who will, without prejudice, sound the sentiment of the business community will find that, outside of the bankers and the little cliques with which they are connected, and a few merchants who have never leaned towards bimetallism, the business men are earnest supporters of Mr. Towne, and will lend their influence towards returning him to congress. If there has been any change in sentiment, it is in favor of Mr. Towne and the cause which he represents in this campaign.

Not only is a large proportion of the business men with him, but the professional men, the workingmen, those who labor with their hands and with their brains, are his enthusiastic supporters. His courageous, manly attitude, his earnest determination to fight for the people's cause; his great services to the Sixth district in congress; his splendid work upon the rivers and harbors committee in behalf of the Duluth harbor and the great lakes, commend him to the earnest support of every business man in Duluth, and "Jerry J" and the other goldbug writers will find, when the votes are counted next November, that Mr. Towne did not count in vain upon strong support from the business community.

JUDGE TRUMBULL'S DEATH.

The death of Judge Lyman Trumbull at Chicago closes the career of a distinguished and able statesman. He was a native of Connecticut, but removed to Illinois when a young man and began to practice law at Belleville. His ability was quickly appreciated, and four years later he was elected secretary of state of Illinois. Seven years afterwards he became a justice of the state supreme court. Elected to the United States senate in 1854 as a Democrat, he parted company with his party and his colleague, Stephen A. Douglas, on the slavery question, and he became one of the founders of the Republican party. Friends sought to nominate him for president in 1860, but Abraham Lincoln was nominated, and he had no more earnest supporter than Judge Trumbull.

In the following year he was re-elected to the senate and was one of the first to propose the constitutional amendment against slavery. He voted for acquittal in the impeachment trial of Andrew Johnson, and thereafter acted with the Democratic party. In recent years he has been a strong advocate of bimetallism. As a lawyer he had a large practice, and he ranked among the leading members of the bar of Illinois. Despite his great age he was strong intellectually and physically almost to his death, which was occasioned by a cold contracted while attending the funeral of an old friend.

TO VOX POPULI, ETC.

The Herald has received several communications within the past week to which the signatures were not attached. It is a standing rule that the writers must send their names, not necessarily for publication, but for the information of the editor.

Another point: At this season, with a political campaign open, which will encroach to a large extent upon the space at The Herald's disposal, correspondents must make their communications brief or they cannot be published.

The Herald desires to give a hearing to everyone who has anything to say that is worthy of publication, but it must insist that the writers shall express their thoughts in as few words as possible. Those who indulge in long-winded communications need not expect that they will find a place in these columns, unless there are exceptional circumstances which warrant a digression from the standing rule on the subject.

The Illinois State Register views the sentiments of a great many people as follows: "It is about time that the demoniac idea of howling for thirty or forty minutes at a national convention be broken up. It is not an outburst of applause. It is a foolish idea of assembled thousands to work up enthusiasm and to deceive opposition. There is not a case on record that we know of where it has accomplished any good. It is beneath the dignity of a national convention. It is nonsensical in the extreme. It is tiresome to all sensible people, and is only a source of satisfaction to the hoodlum element that breaks into the convention. It was inaugurated in this country a few years ago, it reached its climax about four years ago—at least, it would seem to be its climax—it is only tolerated at the present time, and should be quenched in times to come."

The Boston Transcript: sarcastically remarks that Chicago culture and patriotism have come into a curious collision. They have learned in the most occult circles of the Western culture that "Say" is not at all an elegant word to use in addressing anybody. But as "The Star-Spangled Banner" begins "O say can you see," they are in straits between their desire to be patriotic and the necessity of lingual elegance.

The New York Ladies' Burglar-Scaring society, which was suggested by an exchange the other day, will need a branch or a department for those New York women who stop pickpockets. The latest heroine is a German girl whose pocket was picked by a strong young man of 25 as she was looking into a store window. She seized him and held onto him until a policeman came, and she got back her purse with its contents, $21.75.

The gold Democrats of the East are now fighting the idea of nominating Henry M. Teller at Chicago. They know the silver men will control the convention and they are afraid that Teller will be nominated and, uniting all the silver forces, be elected. As goldbugs first and Democrats second, they would prefer to see a Republican goldbug president elected.

How can free silver coinage enrich the mine owner and at the same time result in a 50-cent dollar? Ask your goldbug friend to answer this question.

If "the present gold standard" for which the un-Republican platform declares is what we have now, for heaven's sake give us something else.

The machine won in yesterday's county convention, and elected Clough delegates who will travel to St. Paul on Jim Hill's passes.

Duluth is an ideal summer resort these days.

WILL THE PEOPLE REBEL?

The Time at Hand to Upset the Machine.

Minneapolis Times (Ind.): The county conventions now being held throughout the state are demonstrating the power of the Republican machine. It is still probable that a majority of the delegates to the Republican nominating convention on July 1 will be against the nomination of David Clough for governor; but if so, that majority must be fastened and confirmed by the revolution of Hennepin county against Merriam and his methods.

Twice in the history of the state, the Republican party of Minnesota, the power of the Republican machine has been nearly broken by the revolt of the people against corrupt political methods. In 1872 the granger movement in alliance with the Democratic party came within a little more than 2000 votes of electing its candidate for governor of the (at that time) most popular Republican in the state—Cushman K. Davis. Again, in 1886, Dr. A. A. Ames, of this city, led the Democratic phalanx within sight of the promised land of victory, Andrew R. McGill being elected by less than 3000 plurality.

The people instinctively know the long lease of power which the machine has enjoyed in this state has been productive of untold corruption in the public offices. For thirty-six years there has been no examination of the books and accounts kept by the party in power in Minnesota. Year after year one Republican governor has succeeded another. Sometimes a wheel of the machine has been broken, only to be replaced by a new one of the same political casting, but the dynasty has never changed.

It has been known that certain rings and combines have grown suddenly and enormously rich. It is now coming to be thoroughly understood that that marvelous heritage of pine timber so abundantly distributed over the state by nature for the uses of the people, has been dissipated and squandered through the connivance of the several state auditors, who have succeeded each other since 1858, McIlrath, Whitcomb, Braden and Hiermann—the last named only being an ostensible Democrat—have succeeded each other, each one entering upon the office comparatively poor, are leaving it rich, and three of them immediately leaving the state upon the completion of their term—carrying their ill-gotten gains to the East or to the Pacific coast. No one has examined their books or sifted their accounts. The same office force has been retained year after year. As an old clerk or deputy grew fat, rich and plethoric upon his divy, he, too, has taken his departure for other climes—no questions asked by the people, or their agents, the several governors, sworn to execute the laws.

And during the last ten years, another item of public wealth, representing millions of money which should be the heritage of all the people—the iron lands of Northern Minnesota—have been monopolized and manipulated by private men, by syndicates and combines of sharp and conscienceless speculators.

And the people have slept. Year after year, the state capital machine, with Merriam, Nelson and now Clough for managers, has fixed the biennial slate. These men and their underlings have howled themselves hoarse in proclaiming their honor, rectitude and patriotism.

The people have yawned, turned over on their hard couches, paid their taxes as promptly as they might, gone to the polls like sheep to the shambles—and again voted the machine into renewed power.

Will they continue this program of imbecile supineness to the end? Will they, in this year 1896, again send dishonest delegates to the Republican state convention—delegates who will accept wages from Merriam's bank, transportation facilities from the Great Northern railroad, favors from the agents of the trusts and combines? And then, after these common plunderers, gorged upon corruption have placed in nomination the men who are open and avowed bribegivers, will the people walk up to the polls and indorse the choice of their corrupt agents?

We shall see what we shall see. If David M. Clough shall be nominated for governor at St. Paul on July 1, the first skirmish in the battle of public honesty against public dishonesty will have been won by the corruptionists. The people's heritage is rapidly dwindling, and will soon be absorbed. Will the electors—bamboozled and hoodwinked once again by the partisan slogan—go to the polling places under command of their corrupt leaders, and confirm the corrupt contract made and entered into by the Merriams, the Cloughs and the Bob Dunns of the state house ring? The Times does not believe it. The nomination of Clough will blaze the way for the election of a respectable and upright candidate on a Democratic or People's party ticket.

ANSELL'S WISH.

Oh, beautiful golden-winged butterfly,
If I had wings like those,
I'd fly away to the land of flowers
And sleep in the heart of a rose.

And then when the glorious sun would throw
Its rays o'er all the land,
I'd sit on the edge of a lily cup,
And bathe in the stream so grand.

And then down the beautiful stream I'd float,
Till I'd reach the ocean wide,
I'd dive to its depths and rise on the crest
Of the foaming waves so wild.

For oh, how I love the beautiful sea,
The beautiful birds and flowers,
I love all that's good that God hath made
In this beautiful world of ours.

SHOWED HE WAS CONSCIENTIOUS.

Princeton Union (Rep.): Congressman Towne has shown the stuff from which he is made. He is a firm believer in the principles of bimetallism and though he could have easily secured a renomination and election by remaining in the party, he withdrew when the national convention declared in favor of monometallism. He showed that he was conscientious by his action and "would rather be right than be congressman." He announces that he will be an independent candidate and the situation is not simplified by this announcement. He has a strong following, both of personal friends and admirers and others who hold similar views on the money question.

THEY ARE HONEST.

Wells Forum: Congressman Towne says he will leave the Republican party and stump the state for free silver if the party adopts a gold standard plank at St. Louis. He says he would rather be right than be congressman. Such men as Towne are not freaks as some would have the people believe; they are honest in their convictions and are with the common people.

THERE ARE OTHERS.

Little Falls Transcript: J. R. Bennett, Jr., who has been active in St. Cloud political matters, has followed Towne out of the Republican party on the silver issue.

A DISHONEST DOLLAR.

Denver Republican: The gold dollar is a dishonest dollar because it has appreciated. Its purchasing power is 100 per cent more than what it was when silver was demonetized. It is, therefore, wrong to speak of the silver dollar as a 50-cent dollar. The truth is that the gold dollar is a 200-cent dollar, just as Governor Altgeld, of Illinois, has declared. Such a dollar is necessarily dishonest, for it is a wrong to compel a debtor to pay more than he contracted to pay as it is to compel a creditor to accept less than he contracted to receive.

FREQUENTLY MENTIONED.

Princeton Union: G. G. Hartley's name is frequently mentioned as a congressional possibility since the national convention.

MACHINE

It Won Out In Every Instance In Yesterday's Convention.

Hot Fight For Fairness Made But Clough's Forces Ruled.

Delegates Will Go to St. Paul on Jim Hill's Passes.

Well, the Republican county convention is over, the machine delegates were elected, all solidly instructed for Dave Clough, and they are now making preparations to go to St. Paul next week in state, which only a machine delegation could afford. Arrangements are being made for the delegation to go to the convention in a special train, kindly furnished by Jim Hill, the friend of pure politics and of Jim Hill. They will all have passes. The ring won out in every respect, but it was not without a gallant fight by J. W. Reynolds and O. D. Kinney, which kept the convention going until nearly 7 o'clock last night.

When The Herald went to press last night the committee on credentials was just about to go out. It was out for nearly two hours, because there was a big fight on as to whether O. D. Kinney should be seated in spite of James A. Hanks' contest. Finally the other delegate was called in to settle the matter, and as he was a good Clough delegate, he decided in favor of Mr. Hanks, who was another good Clough delegate. All contests were, of course, decided in favor of the ring.

When the committee's report was read Mr. Reynolds excepted to the ruling on Kinney and Hanks, on the Second ward in Ely, where Mr. Sellwood's men closed the polls before the time, and shut out anti-Clough voters; on the village of Sparta, represented by Neil McInnis, on the ground that he was not an elector of that village, and on the fourth precinct of the Third ward. In the latter precinct J. L. Dow had the proxy of an absent delegate, but the committee had ignored it.

RULED FOR THE MACHINE.

H. W. Coffin moved to lay the amendment on the table. It was put to a vote, and the chair ruled in favor of the machine, as he did on all votes during the convention.

Dr. Bates, of Virginia, said that the motion to lay on the table was not in order, as its effect was to lay the whole matter on the table. The chair ruled that that was not its effect, and a division of the house being called for, the ring won by a vote of 80 to 27, and Mr. Reynolds' amendment was laid on the table.

Mr. Dow could not see why he was ruled out. He thought the majority was taking an unfair advantage of the minority. The ring having the whole thing in its power magnanimously put Mr. Dow in.

Mr. Reynolds then wanted to put O. D. Kinney in with half a vote, and though Mr. Kinney said he was satisfied the convention seated him with half a vote, Mr. Reynolds representing that the convention without him would be like the play of "Hamlet" with Hamlet left out.

B. F. Howard's motion to make the temporary organization permanent was carried, and the warmest fight of the day was precipitated by E. R. Radcliffe's motion that the chair appoint two committees of seven each to select delegates to St. Cloud and St. Paul.

J. W. Reynolds was on the floor in a second, and compelled the chairman to recognize him.

"This motion is innocent on its face," he said, "but in reality it disposes of the business of this convention. We have to be careful to have delegates selected who will represent the sentiment of St. Louis county. If this motion is carried delegates who are already picked out will go to these conventions, men who do not represent the sentiments of the convention or of St. Louis county. There are a number of candidates aside from Clough, but this convention has been organized for Clough, the chair will appoint committees of Clough men, and the delegations will be unanimously for Clough."

APPLIED GAG RULE.

B. F. Howard then moved that the speakers be limited to five minutes, and Chairman Benham set his lips together and said: "The chair will take it as the sense of the convention that Mr. Reynolds shall not take more than two minutes more."

This aroused a storm of indignation, in the midst of which the chairman subsided.

"You see what I said illustrated," continued Mr. Reynolds calmly. "They do not want this matter discussed. I do not believe that St. Louis county is for Clough, and the candidates selected by this convention will never be elected."

The chairman tried to cut Mr. Reynolds off, but the convention would not have it.

"Those who believe that these delegates should not be selected by the ring," said Mr. Reynolds, "should vote this motion down."

B. F. Howard said that the convention could make any amendments in the list of delegates it desired, and the motion, when put to a vote, was pronounced by the chair to have carried. The chair then selected two committees of good Clough men, and they retired to select their delegates.

While they were out the newsboys came in with The Herald, which met a ready sale when the delegates found full lists of both delegations on its front page. Soon after the committees came in to report, and by this time nearly all the delegates had copies of The Herald, and when the chair started to read the list of state delegates an amused smile went over the convention when they saw that the list tallied.

"B. F. Howard," read the chairman of the committee.

"Check," answered a delegate reading The Herald.

"E. S. Radcliffe," read the chairman.

"Check," answered half the convention in thundering tones.

And so it went, through nearly the whole list with three exceptions, which changes had been made by the puppet committee.

When the report was finished J. L. Dow moved to adjourn. The chair put the motion and then declared it lost. J. W. Reynolds was right on his feet.

ANOTHER HOT ROAST.

"I have been a Republican for years," he said. "I have tried to do my duty as I saw it. What we are now asked to endorse is the evil element in the Republican party. (Cries of "It's rotten.") An acquaintance of sixteen years with state politics shows me that it is the worst influence that ever disgraced the Republican pary of this state or any other. What are we here for? To carry out the will of a corrupt ring and a few local state officers? If that is the purpose then vote for this report. Is it not flaunted in the face of this convention? Who is running the campaign under which this organization is made? It is the Minnesota Iron company and a few local state officers.

B. F. Howard here attempted to interpose, but a yell from the convention quieted him.

"I do not believe you can get so many Republicans as this together and entirely shut off justice and right." Here the speaker took up a copy of The Herald and held it up. "If there is any doubt does not this show that the whole thing is cut and dried. Before the committees have reported, the evening paper publishes a list of delegates which is exactly the same with but two or three exceptions. I complain of this proceeding because it is part of the ring rule. In St. Paul is the headquarters of the worst machine that ever disgraced Minnesota. We are asked to perpetuate and endorse it. If you believe in integrity and right, I ask you to vote down this report as an outrage and insult to the people of this county. It is a fight of the machine against the people, nothing else, and you can all see it. If you adopt this report I believe that down goes the Republican party in this city, for you cannot long run politics on any principle but honesty. I move that the report be laid on the table."

There was a rush of seconds, and the chair put the motion. There was a whirlwind of "ayes" in favor of the motion, and another, only slightly smaller, against it. The chair, of course, ruled in favor of the Clough forces, and a division was called for.

CHAIR TO THE RESCUE.

Chairman Benham called for someone to defend the machine, but not a head appeared. So Mr. Benham vacated the chair and answered it himself.

"I know of no Merriam-Clough machine," said he. "We refuse to be terrified by words. Mr. Reynolds has charged the use of money, and all sorts of corrupt practices, but he has brought nothing to support them. There is nothing here but honest politics, and we all know Mr. Reynolds as a kicker."

O. D. Kinney arose quietly and said: "I do not know what Mr. Reynolds may be, but I know one man who is not a kicker. The chairman has said that this has been a campaign on the merits of the Republican party. I deny it. I have not heard one word why Clough should be made governor. Is it for his fitnes for the place? God save the mark! Is it because of his honesty? It smells to heaven! I'll tell you what this campaign has been. It has been like many other campaigns in this state. For instance, most of you know how Senator Nelson was elected. Those of you who do not I refer to Hon. Neil McInnes, (laughter), who can tell you all about it.

"This campaign has been the result of an agreement by my friend Sellwood here to deliver this county for Clough. The other part is officeholders, and that is its whole strength. They proposed to turn down W. E. Lee against whom not a word has been said, and back up Dave Clough, in favor of whom not a word has been said. I fail to see why we should turn down a man from this district in favor of a man from outside."

J. W. Reynolds arose to deny that he had charged the ring with using money.

The roll was called, and the motion to table was lost by a vote of 78 to 36½. Mr. Reynolds moved to cut off the last twenty-two names and add twenty-two names which he read. The motion was lost, and the report was carried.

INSTRUCTED FOR CLOUGH.

B. F. Howard moved that the delegates be instructed to use all honorable means to secure the nomination of D. M. Clough, and Mr. Reynolds' amendment to instruct for any of the other candidates was lost. The original motion was carried.

The congressional delegates went through without contest. During the fight over the state delegates B. F. Howard had been engaged in altering the congressional delegates so that they would not tally with The Herald's list, but the list is the same with half a dozen exceptions. The two corrected lists are as follows:

State delegates: B. F. Howard, E. S. Radcliffe, Victor Dash, Thomas Clark, Joseph Sellwood, T. M. Pugh, Ellsworth Benham, A. Snyder, Paul Sharvy, B. Marshall, C. M. Burnett, J. M. Smith, J. O. Hancock, W. A. Hicken, J. H. Mork, A. Miles, William Getty, G. R. Hall, John Pengilly, A. H. Bowden, George Jensen, A. L. Warner, W. P. Mars, George W. Wallace, J. G. Cohoe, C. F. Porter, L. S. Lerch, H. J. Shelton, James Dingwall, E. G. Swanstrom, F. G. Colvin, J. H. Norton, W. A. Cant, L. A. Larson, A. N. Hopkins, W. F. Marcus, A. Johnson, W. W. Browne, Neil McInnes, J. R. Eby, C. Tremblay, J. F. Armstrong, Louis Helbing.

Congressional delegates: E. Benham, B. F. Howard, J. B. Stevens, S. F. Fullerton, Paul Sharvy, C. G. Shipman, Ed Ball, R. T. Lewis, Dr. Magle, C. T. Crandall, A. P. Cook, L. M. Willcutts, H. C. Hawkins, Stuart Bates, A. D. Thomson.

CLOSING EXERCISES.

Sacred Heart Institute Program at the Lyceum.

The closing exercises of the institute of the Sacred Heart were held at the Lyceum last evening and the theater was filled. The program was a long one and was finely rendered. It consisted of musical numbers, drills, etc. The entire string instrument class gave a selection which was one of the finest. In this those taking part were: Miss Catherine Fiebiger, Misses Antoinette Stinsen and Jessie Sheridan, Master Joseph Lonerman, Misses Agnes S. Shaw, Marie Kribs and Barbara Foley, Mrs. P. Hogan, Misses Mary Naughton, Brigetta Martin, Hattie Hansen, Margret Wolke, Nellie Ryan, Master Walter Gunnis.

A quartet, consisting of Miss Antoinette Stinsen, violin; Misses Agnes Shaw, Marie Kribs and Barbara Foley, mandolins, and Miss Hattie Hansen, piano, gave two delightful numbers, "Caprice," in E minor, and "Elsa," by Henlien. The piano numbers were: Trio by Misses Mary Summers, Maud Tremblay and Mabel Cannon; duet by Misses Hattie Hansen and Margaret Wolke; trio by Misses Barbara Foley, Edna McGarry and Julia Meagher; trio by Misses Teresa Fogarty, Julia Meagher and Helen Mackey; solo by Miss Catherine Fiebiger.

There were also several vocal numbers. Miss Margaret Jones and Miss May Lyons sang "The Lily and the Rose." The pupils sang "When Life is Brightest" for an opening number, and during the program "Infinite Joy" and "On Moonlit Stream."

The drills and tableaux were very pretty. The series of scarf fantasies, consisting of poses and tableaux movements, were very beautiful and received great applause. Those taking par: were: Misses A. Stinsen, H. Hansen, M. Callahan, B. Oswald, C. O'Donnell, M. Jones, M. Miller, E. McGary, J. Grady, C. Pierce, A. McIntyre, M. Sweeney, J. Pember, G. Burke, B. Foley, Ellen Walsh, C. Smith, M. Lyons.

The "Good Night Drill" was very pretty. Eight little misses in white robes and night caps went through an attractive series of movements. The little girls were: Stella Miller, Katchen Geist, Mamie Cannon, Gracie Cannon, Nellie Marshand, Selena Waller, Myrtle Cadbois and Marie Williams.

"The Queen of Beauty" was presented in a very beautiful manner by Misses Margaret Kalkman, representing the goddess of the beautiful; Katchen Geist, as Dawn; May Whelan, as Day; Estelle Miller, Twilight; Polly Reyanka, Night; Alice Lambert, Sea; Estelle Maher, Forest; May Manheim, Flowers, and Margaret O'Brien, a little child.

There were several recitations. Miss Ada Kennedy recited "Mary, Queen of Scots," with fine effect. Miss H. Gruetier also recited two fine numbers.

Bishop McGolrick delivered an address commending the work of the school and teachers. Owing to the lateness of the hour the distribution of medals was postponed to some later daze, to take place at the academy. The following will receive them:

Gold medal for good conduct, senior department, awarded to Miss Mary Lyons, donated by Rt. Rev. Bishop James McGolrick; gold medal for good conduct, junior department, awarded to Miss Barbara Foley, donated by A. G. Brown; gold medal for Christian doctrine, senior department, awarded to Miss Jennie Pember, donated by Rev. E. J. Lawlor; gold medal for Christian doctrine, junior department, awarded to Miss Mary Manheim, donated by Thomas Madden; gold medal for general progress, academic department, awarded to Miss Mary C. Miller, donated by M. S. Burrows; gold medal for order and neatness, awarded to Miss Hattie Hansen, donated by Capt. John Flynn; gold medal for progress in music, awarded to Miss Catherine Fiebiger, donated by O. C. Hartman; gold medal for eighth grade, awarded Miss Catherine Pierce, donated by Michael Kelly; gold medal for sixth grade, awarded to Miss Maria Monko, donated by John Kiloran; gold medal for fifth grade, awarded to Miss Margaret O'Brien, donated by Michael P. Roach; gold medal for fourth grade, awarded to Miss Brunhilda Oswald; gold medal for first grade, awarded to little Miss Rose Gadbois.

Fare for the round trip, 25c and 35c, except Sundays, when fare will be 25c to either place.

Every pleasant evening, at 7:30, she will leave the foot of Fifth avenue west, touching at West Superior, for a trip around the horn and bay, returning at 10:30. Fare for the round trip, 25c. Music will be furnished for dancing.

Skin Came Off

I had an obstinate skin disease, called Eczema. My body, head, and arms were covered with spots like drops of mortar, which came off in layers of dry scales. I suffered for over a year without relief, consulted several doctors without aid, and had almost given up hope. I saw an advertisement about CUTICURA REMEDIES; took them, and in eight weeks I was as well as ever, for my skin is as nice and clear as a baby's.

LIVELY

Proceedings at the Populist Convention Were Anything But Tame.

J. H. Baker and J. W. Nichols Entered Into a Hot Discussion.

Selection of Delegates and Alternates---Speech By Ignatius Donnelly.

At the Sixth district convention of the People's party, yesterday afternoon, the following delegates to the national convention were elected:

Delegates-at-large, P. J. Seberger, of Stearns county; district delegates, J. A. Keyes, M. Wesenberg, of St. Louis county; F. A. King, of Itasca county; D. Cochran, of Wright county; C. W. Taylor, of Aitkin county; J. Mayhew, of Stearns county; alternate at large, W. H. Smallwood, of St. Louis county; district alternates, F. D. Culver, J. J. Hibbard, J. W. Nichols, of St. Louis county; W. R. Cater, of Mills Lacs county; L. A. Paddock, of Wadena county; W. S. Belt, of Wright county.

The election of delegates did not pass off without some argument arising from a misunderstanding of the method of balloting, and the formation of several minor centers on the floor.

After the convention adjourned a little St. Louis county hair was swept up. It was scattered during several little tornadoes that were local to that delegation. During the call of the counties, Delegate Baker got the floor and objected claiming that the delegates did not understand how to cast their votes. He maintained that each vote should be for the full number of delegates to the national convention. The chair did not agree with him, upon which Mr. Baker relieved his feelings by saying that he had never before seen so much ignorance at any one time and place as was gathered together in the convention. He was applauded to the echo. The convention agreed with him. The delegates as individuals were exasperated with the way they conducted business as a body.

After this sally by Mr. Baker, balloting proceeded again until objections were raised that P. J. Seberger and J. W. Nichols, who were being voted for as delegates had not been nominated in caucus.

Delegate Baker seized this opportunity to make an onslaught on Mr. Nichols. He informed the convention that Mr. Nichols was to blame for the misunderstanding. He said Mr. Nichols needed more experience. He also insinuated that Mr. Nichols was willing to take advantage of any misunderstanding that might result in his election as a delegate.

NICHOLS WAS MAD.

Mr. Nichols arose, his face pale with anger, and said if he could not be elected honestly he would not act as a delegate. He told Mr. Baker through the chair that he had campaigned as much as the first named gentleman had.

The balloting proceeded after this without serious interruption. When the result was announced, Delegates C. M. Thomas and D. D. McGinnis protested that the balloting had not been properly conducted. Mr. Thomas started to catechise the chairman as to whether delegates were not to be nominated from the floor, whereupon the latter remarked with some asperity that the chair did not care to be criticised and, by way of intimating that no further remarks were in order, informed Mr. Thomas that the result had been announced.

Other delegates now sprang to their feet in support of the objection raised, but the chairman heeded them not by inviting Ignatius Donnelly to the platform, the applause started by the mention of Donnelly's name drowning out the voice of the objectors. As Mr. Donnelly made his way from the rear of the hall, where he had been an interested spectator of the proceedings, a motion was made that the election of the delegates and alternates be made unanimous. The time was well chosen, the motion prevailing with a whoop in the face of a good feeling that Mr. Donnelly's appearance created.

Mr. Donnelly said he was gratified at the attendance at the convention. He recalled the time, not many years since, when the advocates of the principles of the People's party were caclcatured and made a laughing stock. Their ideas were then looked upon as wild. But there has been a great change in public sentiment, and many are the evidences that the truth of the People's party principles is coming to be recognized by the great men of the peoplea. The the great men of the people. The Illinois, Indiana and Ohio is beyond anything looked for even so short a time as one year ago. Outside of a little coterie of Eastern states—New York, Pennsylvania and the New England states—silver will sweep the Union. And the speaker did not despair of the northeastern corner of the country. He had been informed that the banks in Duluth have notified customers that if they wanted any more favors they must cease their free silver talk. This shows at once the tyrannical spirit of the money power, and the gravity of its fears that the people will free themselves from the yoke. There is a hopeful prospect in the East. It might be hoped even that New Hampshire could be carried.

BALLOT SOLVES IT.

The laboring men have come to recognize that the ballot box and not strikes is their salvation. A revolution is coming; not of bullets and bayonets, but of law. The speaker believed that the people would triumphantly receive. Mr. Towne, he felt, would be well that it will be so, for this will show to the world that the People's party will stand by its friends regardless of difference of politics, if any. The line of division must be the gold line. On our side, the American people; on the other side, corporate capital, trusts and all interests that are hostile to the people.

The speaker would be the last man to urge fusion, but the people who think alike on this question should not be kept apart by any technical distinctions. The fundamental principle of the People's party is opposition to the aggression of the money power. All people who think alike on this should stand together. The speaker declared himself to be in favor of re-enacting every plank of the Omaha platform at St. Louis; not every word—every declaration as to mere matter of method, but the principles embodied therein. For the coming fight, the principle of free coinage should be the basis of united action. The People's party should not say to the other friends of free silver: "You must swallow our platform." Nor need the People's party swallow the platform of the other party. Let each adopt its own platform at St. Louis, and then let each appoint a committee for conference to the end that they may unite on free silver candidates for president and vice president.

Mr. Donnelly thanked the convention for its endorsement of him as a candidate for the presidency. He said that he would not stand in the way, however, of the selection of candidates who would call out the full strength of the friends of silver. The People's party can alone poll 3,000,000 votes. This strength, in coalition with the other free silver forces is an assurance of victory to the most timid. Mr. Donnelly reviewed the possibilities at Chicago, and asked what was to prevent the friends of free silver from pooling their issues on equitable terms in case the silver men nominate some good man like Boies, for instance.

MORE THAN SILVER NEEDED.

But the People's party will not have fulfilled its mission with a victory for silver. There is more in it than this. A time was recalled when there was no free silver. It was when the people had $67.25 per capita in greenbacks. This was the time when the pious McCullough, the note shaver, expressed the fear that the great prosperity of the people would lead to immorality. And so, in the name of God and religion, they put on the screws and commenced a contraction of the currency. Free silver is but a step toward prosperity. The People's party is the pioneer. It must not stop here. It was right when it demanded free silver four years ago and was mocked. It is now right in demanding an increase in the volume of the currency. Government ownership and control of transportation lines, as at present it controls the postal system, must also come. But the people are not ready and the People's party will not insist on these things at this time. It will hold these other ideas in abeyance until the silver fight is over. It will now go forth with the other friends of silver and fight for the restoration of silver to its ancient place, which it occupied until 1873.

The speaker concluded that God had made His direction manifest in the affairs of this nation, and He will not Withdraw His hand nor allow this experiment in free government to fail.

THE GROCERS' PICNIC.

Finest Ever Given By the Association.

The grocers never had a more delightful picnic than that yesterday, and a great number of people were in attendance. It was held at Fond du Lac, on the island opposite the village. Every train that went out was crowded, and the afternoon train consisted of fourteen coaches. The weather was beautiful all day, although it opened threateningly. There was a light sprinkle in the afternoon, but it amounted to nothing.

The grounds were in fine condition, and presented a lively scene. There were games and amusements of all kinds. The Duluth Union band played, there was dancing and no end of fun for all.

The baseball game between the traveling salesmen and grocers was the event of the morning. The players appeared in fantastic costumes, and made all manner of fun, but there was a sharp rivalry in spite of the burlesque. The nines were made up as follows:

The game resulted in favor of the salesmen, and the score was 22 to 12.

In the afternoon the other contests were held, and were conducted by Simon Clark, Frank Roseboom and Ray Cook. The baby show was a great feature and tickled everybody. There was a fine exhibition of infants, and it was no easy task to decide between them. Frank Merrick, of Chicago, was selected as judge. Mrs. Buston's baby, a boy, was awarded the first prize; Mrs. Campbell's boy, second; and Mrs. Watt's girl took third.

The result of the games and athletic contests was as follows:

One hundred yard dash, open to grocerymen—D. McGinnis, first; Frank Roseboom, second; James McGill, third.

Ladies' running race, 100 yards—Miss Jennie Nellis, first; Miss Sullivan, second; Mrs. Sonstrom, third.

Tug of war between the West End and the East End grocerymen—East End won two out of three of the contests. The dividing line between the East and West End grocerymen was at Twelfth avenue west.

Ladies' throwing contest—Miss May Thompson, first; Mrs. Thorston, second; Mrs. Stewart, third.

Pole vault—Peter McDonald, first; D. McGinnis, second; Dan Cameron, third.

Fat men's race—Fred Rickard, first; Henry Haskins, second; T. B. Rickford, third.

Standing jump—George Mason, first; J. O'Donnell, second; Peter McDonald, third.

Hop, step and jump—Peter McDonald, first; Percy Lockhart, second; Fawcett, third.

One hundred yard dash, free for all—Percy Lockhart, first; Frank Roseboom, second; T. Brotherton, third.

Boys' race, under 8 years—Mascot, first; Simon Clark, Jr., second; H. Hallstrom, third.

Hop, step and jump—Peter McDonald, first; Hill, second; Mathers, third.

Putting the shot—Dan Cameron, first; Peter McDonald, second; J. O'Donnell, third.

One hundred yard dash for butchers and employes—J. Lockhart, first; Frank Roseboom, second; D. McGinnis, third.

Boys' race, over 11 years—Simon Bennett, first; Joe McIntyre, second.

The games passed off very pleasantly and amicably and to the excellent management and fairness of Messrs. Clark, Roseboom and Cook was due their success.

A PRINCE'S KINDNESS.

The prince of Wales recently made a visit to Guy's hospital in London. A little boy named Thomas Stephens, who was suffering from an injury to the spine, failed to see the future king of England as he passed along the aisle, and he expressed the wish that Wales would return. When this was told to the prince he returned, shook the boy's hand and had a short talk with him, much to the youngster's delight.

THE CANADIAN SAULT CANAL.

From May 7 to June 19, inclusive, 1293 vessels were locked through the Canadian Sault canal. Recently, the largest single lockage ever known at the Soo, was made. Five vessels of a total length of 1091 feet and a tonnage of 4918, were passed through at once. The vessels were the steamers City of Grand Rapids and Spokane, the schooners Iron King and Iron Queen, and the tug F. H. Stewart.

PORT OF DULUTH.

Arrived—W. H. Stevens, I. W. Nicholas, Arabia, Buffalo, merchandise; City of Traverse, Chicago, passengers and merchandise; Livingstone, Vulcan, S. S. Departed—Servia, Moravia, Outhwaite, Barr, A. P. Wright, Alva, Livingstone, S. S. Curry, Vulcan, Lake Erie, ore; Olympia, Tower, Yakima, Two Harbors, light for ore; India, Buffalo, passengers and flour; Martin, Filer, Chicago, lumber; Kitty M. Forbes, M. E. McLachlin, Buffalo, grain.

MARINE NOTES.

There has been a little flurry of activity in grain charters, and about 400,000 bushels have been worked for shipment at 2¼ cents to Buffalo.

The $1500 claim of Capt. James Davidson against the steamer Sanilac, has been settled.

The steamer W. D. Rees has just taken a cargo of 3857 gross tons of iron ore from Two Harbors to South Chicago.

Disabled machinery compelled the steamer Superior to stop at Middle island, Lake Huron, for temporary repairs.

In a squall on Lake Erie last Sunday, the small schooner Brenton, which recently met with disaster at Pelee island, lost her jibboom and headsails.

A Milwaukee paper says that the patronage of the steamers Christopher Columbus and Virginia, except on Sundays, continues discouragingly light, and neither craft can be said to be paying expenses. However, an improvement will certainly take place on and after July 4.

Duluth clearances: Benton, 300,000 feet lumber, Sandusky; D. P. Rhodes, 1,000,000 feet lumber, Cleveland; J. W. Martin, 350,000 feet lumber, D. L. Filer, 500,000 feet lumber, Chicago; M. E. McLachlin, 125,000 bushels oats, Buffalo; Servia, 180 0tons ore; Moravia, 1700 tons ore, Buffalo.

Long Bicycle Trip.

Charles Barker and Howard Wilbur, both of New York city, arrived here today after traveling about 5000 miles on a tandem bicycle, with their journey hardly half done. They came here from New Orleans, having came around by way of Texas, Wyoming, Colorado, Indian territory and South Dakota, and they will remain here a week visiting E. M. Barker, of the postoffice, who is a brother of Charles Barker. After their visit they will go to St. Louis and then back to New York, still on their bicycle. They started out for a pleasure trip, but after their return they will put out a road book which they think will interest cyclists, giving the routes over which they came.

FOUND IN A TOMATO CAN.

The wife of an Indianapolis newspaper reporter opened a can of tomatoes for dinner the other night. In pouring its contents into a stewpan she heard a clink. With imprecations on the solder she fished about with a spoon and brought up a gold watchchain. Her cry of surprise brought in her husband, who suggested that if they kept on they might find a few diamonds or a house and lot, so he went at it. His only discovery, however, was a lady's gold watch. The watch was hurried to a jeweler's, where it was cleaned and its color restored by the polisher. Its value was given to him as $50. The cases are handsomely engraved and have on them the name of the owner. The tomatoes were put up at the North Indianapolis canning factory.

OIL TRADE

Attempt to Wrest Northwest Trade From the Standard Oil Company.

Oil Men at Pittsburg May Ship Refined Oil to Duluth.

Are Negotiating For the Building of a Steel Tank Steamer.

According to the Pittsburg Dispatch several of the more prominent Pittsburg independent refiners may make an attempt to wrest a portion of the refined oil trade of the Northwest from thr Standard Oil company. They expect to do this by means of transportation on the lakes, and negotiations have been going on with Capt. Andrew J. Scott, of Toledo, for the construction of a steel tank steamer for lake service after an original design which he has patented.

The proposed steamer is to be 295 feet long, with 35 feet beam and proportionate depth. The hull plan contemplates a longitudinal bulkhead, running from stem to stern and from the deck to keel. This bulkhead is of heavy steel plate. Cross sections of steel are also provided for, so that the hold of the vessel will contain eight oil compartments, four on the starboard side and four on the port side. Thus the oil compartments are calculated to strengthen the hull. Each is to be arranged so that various grades of refined oil can be held separate. In the present oil tank steamers the entire hold contains one big tank, in which the cargo shifts more or less during heavy weather, an unpleasant feature which the new system will overcome.

The vessel is designed to carry return cargoes of iron ore, and in this feature the promoters look for the successful accomplishment of their scheme. They estimate that in the outgoing trip one vessel will carry 10,000 barrels of refined oil, and that on the way back 1600 tons of ore can be safely carried. According to Capt. Scott's design the ore is to be carried on deck. He estimates the cost of the steamer at $50,000, according to the Dispatch, but the figures should probably read $150,000, and the power is figured to drive her twelve miles per hour loaded.

It is estimated that refined oil can be carried in the new craft from any of the Lake Erie ports to Duluth at 15 cents a barrel as against a cost of 80 cents a barrel to the Standard Oil company, which pipes its oil to the head of Lake Michigan and then pumps it into tank towbarges. The scheme advocated by Capt. Scott and favored by Pittsburg oil men is to run a two-inch pipe line from the oil fields to a convenient port on Lake Erie. Either Conneaut harbor or Ashtabula will be chosen, and the pipe line will cost $400 a mile. At the terminal the oil will be loaded on the vessel and the steamer sent to Duluth, Bay City, Marquette, or any of the lake ports where refined oil is in demand. At Duluth it is proposed to build two immense tanks to hold the season's shipment, and to make this city the distributing point of the Northwest region.

M'KINLEY AT COLUMBUS.

Columbus, Ohio, June 26.—Gov. McKinley has consented to come to the Fourth of July celebration in Columbus.

TWO UNLUCKY CHINESE.

Last week McKee, a British Columbia logger, sent the cook at his camp to Douglass, the British Columbia station, just across the line from Blaine, to get an express package, says the Whatcom Reveille. The Mongolian came to Douglass, and, instead of stopping there, wandered over the line to the Great Northern depot on this side, where he sat down. A zealous deputy marshall spied him, and after a few questions found out he had no papers. So he detained him, and, according to law, the only thing that could be done was to deport him to China, although McKee came down and explained and tried to have him released to go back and cook. Sunday the train had just started south with this Mongolian on board when some one yelled: "There's another one."

Sure enough, there came another big, fat, wabbly looking Chinese across the line. The train was stopped instanter and he was questioned. He was on this side of the line, without papers, and the funny part of it was that he was a cook, who had been sent from Westminster to take the other fellow's place as cook in McKee's logging camp, and mistaking his location, had wandered too far south. He cried when he knew his predicament, but law, as interpreted by the officers, is stern as well as surprisingly silly, and he will go back to China along with No. 1. In the meantime McKee has no cook.

GRAND RAPIDS CONVENTION.

New Idea to Utilize the Swamp Lands.

John Owens returned today from Grand Rapids, where he has been in attendance on the Sixth District Immigration association's convention. He says that the convention was a notable one, both in point of the numbers present and results accomplished.

Resolutions were passed favoring the appointment of a state drainage commission, the improvements made by it to be paid out of money arising from the sale of state lands not otherwise appropriated. The idea is advanced that the swamp lands were set aside to raise a fund for internal improvement in the way of increasing the area of arable land, and not exclusively for state university and railroad purposes.

NOT A DIPLOMAT.

The Westminster Gazette tells the following of Rear-Admiral Kirkland, of the United States navy, who was a few months ago relieved from the command of the European squadron: It is said that his conduct at the Kiel celebration gave offense to the navy department for the following reason: One day during the festivities Rear Admiral Kirkland was standing on the deck of the Chicago, his flagship, in conversation with some ladies, when the Emperor William approached.

"My brother, Prince Henry, would like to visit your ship, admiral," said the emperor.

"Just wait a minute, will you?" replied Admiral Kirkland. "I am talking with these ladies."

When the conversation was concluded and the ladies had taken their departure, Admiral Kirkland turned to the Emperor William and said: "Now, what is it you want?"

The emperor repeated that his brother would like to come on board and see the Chicago.

"Well, trot him along; I'll be glad to see him," was the reply.

LADIES

Women of Canton Gave the McKinleys a Big Reception.

Brilliant Social Function to Ohio's Favorite Son This Afternoon.

Music, Flowers and Many Guests Arriving By To-day's Trains.

Canton, Ohio, June 26.—The reception to Governor McKinley, Mrs. William McKinley, Sr., and Mrs. William McKinley, Jr., arranged by the women of Canton and Stark county, began at 3 o'clock this afternoon, when the guests of honor, the receiving party, composed of some eight or ten ladies of the immediate relationship, who are now in the city, and Mrs. Alice D. Jones, appeared on the west balcony of the residence of the late Jacob Miller. Mrs. Jones was the spokesman for the ladies of the city and county, and in a most happy and appropriate speech, listened to by thousands of ladies, extended the best wishes of the women of Stark county to Governor McKinley and their hearty congratulations to his wife and mother.

Governor McKinley responded briefly on behalf of himself and the two Madames McKinley. The house was thrown open, and while strains of sweetest music echoed through the corridors from an orchestra stationed behind a bank of flowers and exotics, the crowd passed through the parlor to shake hands with the guests of honor. The scene was one of brilliancy seldom equalled. The blinds of the windows were drawn, and the effect was beautiful.

It was colder in Canton this morning, and Governor McKinley looked in splendid health. He sent his carriage to the 10:30 Pennsylvania train to meet Charles Emory Smith, of Philadelphia. Mr. Smith, while driving to the McKinley residence, expressed himself as delighted with the ticket and the platform. On the same train came Chris Magee, the Allegheny county politician; Director Ellis Bigelow, and Henry Von Bonnhorst, of Pittsburg.

Maj. McKinley was called upon by Mayor Cotton A. Allen, William Deshler, Charles G. Lord, Dr. E. J. Fullerton Dewitt, C. Jones and Maj. Goodspeed, who went to Canton as a committee presenting the proposed celebration at Columbus, which is to be of a very unusual character. It is to include a great many of the secret and church societies, schools, Grand Army, military and trade organizations and individual, firemen and corporation displays. Nothing like it, in the way of preparation has occurred at Columbus for many years.

A telegram from Columbus announcing that Governor McKinley will be present at the Fourth of July celebration there is pronounced a mistake. He does not expect to go.

COAL MOVING.

June River Shipments Commenced at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 26.—About 12,000,000 bushels of coal are leaving here today for southern river ports. The first departures of tow boats were last night, and all night long big tows were going on. There is a stage of over ten feet of water, the first June freshet in four years.

WINTER'S SUCCESSOR.

Belief That H. G. Burt Will Be Appointed.

Omaha, Neb., June 26.—Since the announcement that Edwin W. Winter, general manager of the Chicago, St. Paul & Omaha road would become president of the reorganized Northern Pacific Co., speculation has been rife as to the personality of Mr. Winter's successor. The belief is common among railway men in this city that Horace G. Burt, at present general manager of the Fremont, Elkhorn & Missouri Valley, at Omaha, will succeed Winter.

It is stated that Mr. Winter will go with the Northern Pacific on July 1.

NEBRASKA VALUES.

They Are Steadily Growing Much Smaller.

Lincoln, Neb., June 26.—State Auditor Moore has received assessment returns for the valuation of the state from sixteen counties. Twelve of these counties show a decrease from the valuation of 1895 of the amount in round numbers of $1,185,000. Four of them show an increase of $93,000, making a total decrease of $1,092,000. This proportion, if sustained throughout the remainder of the ninety counties, would result in a decrease in the state from 1895 of $8,500,000 in round numbers.

This decrease is not quite so large as has been shown in previous years, but it is considered far greater than the facts warrant. The valuation in 1895 in round numbers was $195,000,000, in 1894 $182,000,000, in 1895 $171,000,000.

MISSING BICYCLES.

Manager of a Cycle Company Skips With Wheels.

Chicago, June 26.—L. T. Alton, manager of the Climax Cycle company, and several hundred bicycles have disappeared from the company's stores at 196 Lasalle street and 177 Monroe street. Creditors with claims aggregating more than $20,000 are trying to find property of the company that they can attach. M. Cohn, of the Cohn Clothing company, claims a large number of the wheels in question by virtue of bills of sale. Some of the missing wheels were found in the building occupied by the Cohn company.

Attorney Andrew B. Bonghan, one of the lawyers for the Yost Manufacturing company, of Toledo, says two carloads of wheels were shipped a few days ago from Chicago to Buda Pesth, Hungary, and the investigators declare they were shipped in the names of relatives of Alton. Other wheels were found among varius accesories in the city. The agents of the creditors claim to have located more than 350 bicycles. The Young Manufacturing company, of Toledo, has a claim of wheels against the Climax company for $19,253. There are reported to be many smaller creditors.

THREE TO HANG.

Triple Execution in Colorado Set For Today.

Canon City, Col., June 26.—A triple execution will take place in the state penitentiary today. The men who are to be hanged are Thomas Colt, Elbert Noble and Dominica Romero, who killed Policeman John Solomon in Trinidad.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

How to Study the Bible Was Discussed.

Boston, June 26.—"How to Study the Bible" was the subject handled by D. L. Moody at the praise service which began today's session of the Sunday school convention. The attendance was not so large as at the former meeting. At the close of the service the business of the conference was resumed, with President Capen in the chair. The committee appointed to nominate the lesson committee for the years 1900 to 1905 presented a list of names, which was unanimously accepted by a rising vote.

The amounts of money pledged in open convention this morning for Sunday school work in the United States and Canada during the next three years brought the total up to $12,024.33 per year, or $36,037 for three years.

PRESIDENT PENNA'S ADVICE.

Columbus, Ohio, June 26.—The committee in charge of the local celebration for the Fourth of July had arranged for 100 miners from the valley to march in the parade in their mining outfits and with their mining lamps in their hats, but President Penna, of the United Mine Workers of America, advised them last evening not to do it. He says that by doing this they would proclaim themselves beneficiaries of the Declaration of Independence, whereas they are mere serfs, and would in that way act a lie.

MISS MATE CHRISTOPHER.

The Bicycle Races.

The second day of the women's bicycle race took place last evening. There was a large attendance, including the Duluth Bicycle club, which attended in a body. Helen Baldwin was severely burned by the explosion of an alcohol lamp, but she heroically rode out the race without losing a lap. The records at the end of last night's race were as follows:

	Miles.	Laps.
Allen	77	4
Baldwin	77	4
Christopher	77	4
Peterson	77	3

TO ENFORCE LIABILITY.

Suit Brought Against the Smith-Fee Company.

J. C. Helm, a judgment creditor of the Smith-Fee company, has begun suit to have a receiver appointed for the company, to have its property segregated and to have the statutory liability of the stockholders enforced. It is alleged in the complaint that the company owes $78,097.54, and that its assets do not exceed $50,000. The stockholders of the company are E. S. Smith, J. W. Fee, F. W. S. Moore and Adaline Smith. McGhrilley & Smith are the attorneys.

McGindley & Whitely are the attorneys.

Some time ago the stock of Nellie Slater, an insolvent shoe dealer, was sold by the assignee to T. J. Shay & Co., of Chicago. The Security bank claimed the property on a chattel mortgage, which it claimed gave it a prior right, and there was quite a fight over it. Yesterday afternoon Judge Moer filed his findings in the case in favor of the bank, and directed Shay & Co. to turn over the property or to pay what was due on the chattel mortgage.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

No Selections Made on That Board Yet.

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 26.—The Times-Star special from Canton, Ohio, says: "McKinley and Hanna deny that any selections have been made for the national executive committee, except that Senator Quay has been offered the chairmanship. There will also be an advisory committee, and H. H. Kohlsaat, of Chicago, will probably be a member of the advisory committee, as will Cornelius M. Bliss, of New York. Thomas McDougall, of Cincinnati, was here last night and had a long talk with Maj. McKinley, and it is believed was urged to accept a place on the advisory committee.

Cody Rearrested.

Samuel T. Cody, who was released from a sentence of five years for forgery by the supreme court, is again in the St. Louis county jail. He was arrested by Deputies Bates and Dash at Stillwater, and Judge Ensign held him to await the action of the next grand jury.

HE WILL NOT RUN.

Judge Morris Does Not Want to Be Congressman.

The name of Hon. Page Morris, judge of the district court, has been repeatedly bobbing up during the past few weeks in connection with the Republican nomination for Charles A. Towne's place in congress. Although it has been denied again and again that he is a candidate, his name continues to come up. It is true that efforts have been made to induce him to allow the use of his name, but The Herald is enabled to say that the efforts have been unsuccessful. The information comes from a perfectly reliable source, as reliable almost as though Judge Morris himself had been the source, that he has not the faintest idea of becoming a candidate. It appears that he is thoroughly satisfied with his present position, which is congenial to his tastes and as his name will undoubtedly come up as a candidate for re-election to that office, he will not run for congress.

New Corporations.

Three new corporations filed articles with the register of deeds today. The Kelley Hardware company was incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000 and a limit of indebtedness of $15,000. Michael Kelley and George W. Wells, of Duluth, and John F. Killorin, of Swan river, are the incorporators.

The Silberstein & Bondy company filed articles with a capitalization of $100,000, and a limit of indebtedness of $50,000. Bernard Silberstein, Annie Bondy and H. V. Eva are the incorporators.

Hartman & Patterson are incorporated with a capital stock of $30,000 and a limited indebtedness of $50,000. Peter Patterson is president, O. C. Hartman is vice president and treasurer, and A. W. Hartman is secretary.

SENTENCE

I. Grettum Hears His Fate From Judge Lochren This Morning.

Must Serve One Year in the Penitentiary and Pay $500.

Judge Lochren Could See No Reason For Extending Mercy.

I. Grettum, the land attorney, who was convicted yesterday of conspiring to defraud the United States government, received his sentence this morning. A motion for a new trial was made and denied yesterday. The argument was made by Attorney Holmes for the defence and United States District Attorney Stringer for the government. This morning a motion in arrest of judgment was made, argued and denied by Judge Lochren.

The court then called upon Mr. Grettum and asked what he had to say as to why sentence should not be pronounced upon him. Mr Grettum made no very clear statement, but said something in a broken sort of way about his large family and the suffering his incarceration would bring upon them.

Judge Lochren then passed sentence. He said there was nothing in the case to commend the prisoner to the mercy of the court; the act of which he was guilty was conceived in fraud, born in fraud and carried out by fraud, perjury and subornation of perjury. He thereupon sentenced Mr. Grettum to be confined in the penitentiary for a period of one year and to pay a fine of $500.

The sentence is generally considered a light one, considering the nature of the circumstances.

Drunks and Vagrants Were Numerous in Court.

There was quite an array of minor offenders in the municipal court this morning. There were thirteen gentlemen whom Sergt. Nelson had gathered in yesterday in a round-up taking in box cars and other favorite nooks of the vagrant.

James Wilson was the first posey that Judge Edson plucked from this bouquet. James told the judge he expected a job this morning. He got it—on the rock pile, and it is a dead sure thing for five days. George Palmer told the judge he was from Superior. He got five days. James Kelly looked out of his element. He said he had a good job at Two Harbors, and he was released with the advice to go up and hold it down. Lewis Kelly and Joseph Teeny, who said they had jobs on the boat Stephens, John Bunk and Thomas Nelson were let off with suspended sentences. The balance went up on the hill for five days.

George Plaucr and David McConnell were given ten days for drunkenness. Sundry other drunks and "vags" were let off on condition that they unburden the community of their presence.

ONE HUNDRED MILLIONS.

Immense Receipts of Grain at Duluth This Year.

The receipts of wheat and other grains at Duluth during the present crop year have already reached enormous figures and the probability is that before the close of the year the aggregate receipts will amount to about 100,000,000 bushels. Since Aug. 1, 1895, the market has actually received 60,000,000 bushels of wheat, 11,500,000 bushels of coarse grain and 14,000,000 bushels of flour reduced to wheat, making a total of 85,500,000 bushels of grain. If the July receipts equal those of this month, July 31 will furnish a total of 100,000,000 bushels. The comparative figures for the crop years of 1895 and 1896 are as follows:

Receipts.	1895.	1896.
Flax	685,000	5,022,000
Barley	2,186,000	3,537,000
Oats	1,081,000	2,815,000
Rye	65,000	728,000
Corn	20,000	169,000

Great Gathering of the Grays at Richmond, Va., Next Week.

The United Confederate Veterans Are to Hold a Monster Reunion.

Laying the Cornerstone of the Davis Monument the Chief Feature.

Richmond, Va., June 27.—The sixth annual reunion of the United Confederate veterans, which will be held in this city three days beginning Monday, will bring together the largest assembly of Confederates ever held in the South since the war. Reports from all the Southern states and from several Western states, Maryland, the District of Columbia and even the Northwest, indicate that there will be something like 100,000 visitors here at that time. There are now about 900 veteran camps in the organization known as the United Confederate Veterans, and this number is rapidly increasing. Many of these camps will attend in a body, while large delegations from all over the South and beyond the Mississippi river are expected to take part in the ceremonies. Besides the veterans, there will be something like 20,000 militia, including many of the crack companies of the South, both infantry and cavalry.

The business sessions of the reunion will be held in a mammoth auditorium at the exposition grounds in the western limits of the city. This structure will seat about 12,000 people. It will be elaborately decorated with Confederate flags, banners and shields, and a band will render Confederate airs and Southern melodies from time to time during the meeting. One of the most important measures to come up for decision and settlement before the body will be the location of a site for the Charles Broadway Rouss Confederate Memorial museum. Mr. Rouss, a wealthy merchant of New York, was a soldier in the Confederate service and is a native of Virginia. He offered to give $100,000 for the establishment of this museum, provided the veterans of the South would raise a similar amount. Most of this has been raised already and it will be largely increased, so that when the committee in charge is ready to commence the structure they will have something like $250,000 at their disposal for the Battle Abbey of the South.

A committee was appointed at Houston, Tex., to decide upon a location; they met in Atlanta last October, but failed to reach a decision. It is expected that they will meet here during the reunion and recommend a city for the museum. This committee is composed of one prominent Confederate from each of the Southern states and one from New York and one from the West. Nashville, Tenn., has raised over $65,000 to have the museum come there. New Orleans has also made a strong plea for it, as have Atlanta and Washington. Another important question to come up before the body will be the selection of a United States history to be used in the public schools of the South. It is said that the present histories used rob the Confederate soldier of much of his well-earned glory and that they are prejudiced by sectional spirit. The object is to have adopted a history which will lean more to the Confederate way of thinking.

One of the most attractive features of the reunion will be the tableau of beautiful Southern girls, one from each of the Confederate states. These will be entertained here by the Daughters of the Confederacy. Most of thes young women have been selected on account of their social distinctions or by reason of gallant services rendered by their fathers in the Confederate army. Several of these are recognized belles. Miss Hattie Patton Cooke, of Richmond, who will represent Virginia, is the daughter of the late Gen. John R. Cooke. Miss Virginia Nicholls, another reigning belle, will represent Louisiana. She is the daughter of Judge Nicholls, of the supreme court of Louisiana, and ex-governor. Another well known beauty is Miss Lottie Palmer Capers, daughter of Gen. Ellison Capers, a gallant Confederate soldier, and now bishop of the Episcopal diocese of South Carolina. Miss Sarah B. Raney, who will represent Florida, and Miss Julia W. Spurr, the sponsor for Kentucky, are well known throughout the South for their beauty. Another striking feature of the reunion will be a mammoth chorus of 1000 trained voices, under a musical director, that will render Confederate songs and plantation melodies during the evening.

The greatest feature of the entire gathering will be the laying of the cornerstone of the Jefferson Davis monument, which will take place on July 2 at 2 o'clock. This will be preceded by the most elaborate parade ever seen in the South. It is expected that in this parade there will be about 75,000 people, principally veterans, sons of veterans and military. Gen. J. B. Gordon, commander of the United Confederate Veterans, will be chief marshal. Adjt. Gen. Moorman, of the U. C. V., will be chief of staff. Gen. Stephen D. Lee, of Mississippi, will deliver the oration, and Bishop Granberry, of the Methodist Episcopal church, will offer the prayer.

The ceremonies will be conducted by the grand lodge of Masons of Virginia.

Mrs. Jefferson Davis, and Miss Davis will be the guests of the Davis monument committee on this occasion. Not the least of the important phases of the reunion will be the reception which Mrs. Davis will hold in the old Davis mansion. She will try to bring back the scenes of her former receptions at the White House of the Confederacy. Of all the receptions ever held in this house this will probably be the most notable one. Mrs. Davis, its former mistress, will on that occasion shake hands with tens of thousands of old officers and men who served in the Southern army. This, in all probability, is the last time that this lady will be a witness to such a gathering of the champions of "the lost cause." In this historic spot, Miss Davis was born in the very room in which this reception is proposed to take place.

Another feature that has been much discussed is the carrying of the stars and stripes in the parades. It is said the veterans would not have it, but a formal welcome to it was issued by the grand marshal, to set the story at rest.

DEEDS PRODUCED.

Mrs. Craven Produces the Alleged Fair Transfers.

San Francisco, June 27.—Mrs. Nettie R. Craven has produced the deeds that were recorded with so much mystery a few days ago. The presentation of these documents before Judge Slack last night has led to another startling development in the sensational case. The attorneys for the heirs not only claim the papers bear their own evidence of forgery, but they assert that under the laws of California, the transfer of property, whether made by James G. Fair or not, is void.

While Mrs. Craven was too ill to go on the witness stand last night, and was excused until next Thursday morning, the lawyers arrayed in opposition to her were given an opportunity to inspect the documents she prizes so highly. Although this inspection was little more than a casual one, the attorneys for the children of Fair claim to have found new reasons to reiterate their charge of forgery.

They assert that in one of the deeds the signature of James G. Fair was written over an erasure, which may show something more under a microscope. It is also claimed that the date, Sept. 8, 1894, was also written over an erasure, but independent of these alleged considerations, the attorneys for the children insist that both deeds are void, because they give no legal description of the property that was to be transferred.

FRENCH BICYCLES.

The Craze There is of Large Proportions.

Washington, June 27.—Summarizing newspaper comments upon the subject, United States Commercial Agent Griffin has contributed a special report to the department of state on "Bicycles in France," containing some figures showing that the sudden increase in the use of the wheel was not confined to England and the United States, but France, likewise, has become a victim to the craze. At present there are 160,000 bicycles in France, or one to every fifty persons able to ride, and upon each of these machines the owners pay a tax of $1.93 per annum.

The excellence of the French roads is the reason for the popularity of the bike. The bicyclists society has carefully explored every route and indicated on their charts all dangerous descents, sharp curves, steep inclines. Sign boards have also been erected for the special guidance of the cyclists, so that they are as fully equipped as a captain of a ship steering for a strange port. This gives great confidence to the riders, and prevents many accidents.

Mr. Griffin says that many bicycles are imported into France from the United States, and there is no reason why they should not have an even larger sale.

BOB CURRY CAUGHT.

Held For Murder Under Another Name.

Cleveland, O., June 27.—A special from Bowling Green, Ohio, says: It has just been discovered that the desperado giving the name of Charles Clarke, one of the three men charged with murdering North Baltimore's (O.) night policeman, is the noted Bob Curry, of Chicago. At a hearing yesterday he was bound over on a charge of murder in the first degree.

YALE'S OARSMEN WELL.

Henley on Thames, June 27.—The weather was very hot this morning and there was not any wind. All the crews indulged in light practice. Leander and New college were not out, but Yale was on the water at 10:30. "Bob" Cook coached the crew, at first on foot and later took a boat at Fawley court. The Americans then rowed to the minute barrier at a 40 stroke. The boat went smoothly, but there was not as much in it as there ought to be. The men were all well. There is no tendency to overtrain any member of the Yale crew.

DAWSON GETS TEN YEARS.

Kansas City, Mo., June 27.—A special to the Star from Des Moines, Iowa, says: S. R. Dawson, murderer of his son-in-law of an hour, Walter Seuel, because of ill health, was given the minimum sentence by Judge Holmes of this court, ten years in the penitentiary. If his conduct is exemplary he can work out in seven years. Dawson took the sentence today coolly and said it came as a birthday present, today being his forty-ninth anniversary. He will commence serving his sentence at once, it not being a bailable offense.

BRITISH SHIP WRECKED.

Sydney, N. W. S., June 27.—The British ship Scottish Dales, Capt. McCarthy, from Tacoma, on April 28 for Port Pirie, has been totally wrecked near Vulton. All the members of the crew were saved and were landed at Suva. The Scottish Dales was a double-decked ship of nearly 2000 tons register, hailed from Liverpool, and was owned by W. H. Ross & Co.

ALLAN LINE ALONE.

Ottawa, Ont., June 27.—At a meeting of the cabinet yesterday the matter of the ocean steamship fast line tenders was discussed. Many tenders had been received, but it was said the Allan line was the only one which complied with the specifications. Their figure is about £250,000 sterling. It was not finally accepted, but even if it is, parliament must ratify it before the contract is binding.

REPUBLICAN OFFICIALS WIN.

LeMars, Iowa, June 27.—District Judge F. R. Dayner today decided the Plymouth contested election case, affirming the decision of the election board in favor of the Republican officers, W. E. Herron, sheriff, and J. Wernli, county superintendent.

CROOKED BANKER JUGGED.

Beatrice, Neb., June 27.—J. C. Williams, ex-president of the defunct bank of Blue Springs, was today sentenced to the penitentiary for three years. He was convicted of accepting deposits after his institution had become insolvent. Williams was at one time very wealthy.

LYNCHED

Maryland Murderer Hanged From a Bridge By a Determined Mob.

Fifteen of the Lynching Party Thought to Be Women.

Old Colored Jailer Made a Little Bluff at Resistance.

Baltimore, Md., June 27.—Joseph Cocking, of Hill Top, Charles county, Md., who was awaiting trial on a charge of murdering his wife and her sister, Miss Daisy Miller, on the night of April 21, was taken from the old jail at Port Tobacco last night and lynched by a crowd of about twenty-five men. Cocking was brought to Baltimore, April 27, in order to escape the vengenance of the mob, and was returned to the Charles county authorities May 21, as his trial had been set for the day following. His counsel asked for two weeks' extension of time, which was refused, and upon the usual affidavits the case was removed to an adjoining county, and would have come up for trial in September.

The plan for the lynching was hatched at a ball game, which took place at Hill Top, the scene of the murder, yesterday afternoon. The lynching party met shortly before midnight. All wore masks, and about fifteen wore women's dresses. They awoke an old colored man, Washington Burch, who had charge of the jail. He made some show of resistance, but finally delivered over the keys.

Cocking, who had been aroused by the noise, was taken from the jail to a bridge, 200 yards away, where a rope with a noose was placed around his neck, and he was told to confess, but he said that he was innocent. Then he was directed to pray, but said that he did not want to pray. The rope was then made fast to the rail, and Cocking was pushed off. He fell ten feet. The party then dispersed, leaving the body dangling, with the toes just reaching the water just beneath.

DROWNED IN BIG STONE.

Leaky Boat Causes Loss of Two Lives.

St. Paul, June 27.—A Big Stone City, S. D., special to the Dispatch says: Rev. James Williams, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Bristol and Bradley, S. D., and Abraham Jones, a hardware merchant of Butler, S. D., were drowned near the Simpson park camp grounds, in Big Stone lake, at 7 o'clock this morning, a bad leak in their boat causing it to sink under them. Rev. Williams is single, and Mr. Jones leaves a wife and two children.

FLAG LAW VOID.

Illinois Judge Says it is Unconstitutional.

Campaign, Ill., June 27.—The trustees of the university of Illinois, who were indicted by the grand jury for violation of the Illinois flag law, were arraigned in the circuit court to answer to the charge. A former plea of guilty was withdrawn, and Judge Wright decided that the law was unconstitutional. The prisoners were discharged. This ends the famous case.

ST. LOUIS ROAD SOLD.

St. Louis, June 27.—By order of the United States court the St. Louis railway was sold today under foreclosure of an old mortgage of which the Mercantile Trust company, of New York, was trustee. There was only one bidder, a committee of bondholders representing the organization committee, E. C. Henderson, James A. Blair, Samuel C. Eastman and Charles S. Gleed, buying in the road for $1,250,000, the upset price, and part was paid in cash.

MONEY FOR PENSIONS.

Washington, June 27.—The secretary of the interior has issued his requisition for $13,325,000 to be used on the quarterly payment of pensions. Chicago gets $2,800,000; Des Moines, $2,100,000; Milwaukee, $1,950,000; Pittsburg $1,750,000; Topeka, $200,000; San Francisco, $175,000; Louisville, $100,000; Knoxville, $200,000; Indianapolis, $100,000; Detroit, $150,000; Columbus, Ohio, $300,000.

PEORIA CYCLING.

Peoria, Ill., June 27.—The professional cycling events here yesterday were of unusual interest and the amateurs also appeared to advantage. W. E. Sanger, of Milwaukee, won the professional mile open, half mile open and was second in the mile handicap in which latter event Becker, of Minneapolis, was first, and Mertens, of St. Paul, fourth. Joseph Griebler, of Minneapolis, was fourth in the professional mile open.

HIS CONFESSION CORRECT.

Akron, O., June 27.—The most important testimony in the Cotell trial today was given by Harry Rickey, a reporter, in reference to the boy's confession. On April 23, two weeks after Cotell's arrest, he asked him if it was true that he had repudiated his confession and Cotell denied it, repeating that every word of it was true. The court adjourned shortly after noon, until next Monday morning.

SHOE FIRM FAILS.

Brocton, Mass., June 27.—The failure of R. R. Littlefield & Co., shoe manufacturers, is announced. The liabilities are estimated at about $60,000. Assets unknown. The failure resulted from fluctuations of the leather market.

THE TREASURY CONDITION.

Washington, June 27.—Today's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balance, $265,786,152; gold reserve, $102,501,046.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS.

Supreme Council at Columbus Elect Officers.

Columbus, Ohio, June 27.—The supreme council of the United Commercial Travelers closed a two days' session today after electing the following officers: Supreme counsellor, James A. Kimball, Salina, Kas.; supreme junior counsellor, R. F. Somerville, Dayton, Ohio; supreme past counsellor, R. N. Hull, Cleveland; supreme secretary, C. B. Flagg, Columbus; supreme treasurer, W. E. Carpenter, Columbus; supreme conductor, Charles W. Rice, St. Paul, Minn.; supreme page, W. L. Day, Concordia, Kas.; supreme counsel, G. E. Hobbs, Boston; members of supreme executive committee for two years, J. C. Fenimore and L. G. Pease of Columbus. The next annual meeting will be held in Columbus in June, 1897.

BASEBALL ROW.

Cleveland Club Arrested at Louisville Today.

Louisville, Ky., June 27.—President Stuckey, of the Louisville Ball club, today swore out warrants against Tebeau, Childs, O'Connor, Cuppy, Burkett, Blake McGarr, McAleer and McKean, of the Cleveland club, charging them with disorderly conduct.

Yesterday afternoon, by their actions, they nearly precipitated a riot at the ball park by assaulting Umpire Weldman. Weldman refused to umpire the game this afternoon, and Jimmy Wolf, the old left fielder of the Louisvilles, will act today. The people here are worked up over the rough work of the Clevelands. The warrants will be sworn out at 1 p. m.

SILVER SUPPLY.

No Effort Being Made to Create a Corner.

New York, June 27.—Authorities on silver in this city attach no importance to current rumors of efforts in the direction of cornering the metal, and say that the 1,110,315 ounces of bullion held by the Mercantile Safe Deposit company, about represents the amount speculatively engaged. The fact that for the first Saturday in a long time past, no shipments of the white metal were made today, is, they allege, also without special significance aside from a monetary lull in the foreign demand.

Despite the Leadville strike talk the inquiry for silver for manufacturing purposes is temporarily lighter than usual. This is proved by the few applications received at the assay office for its silver bars at this time. Usually when that institution is about to be closed for the purpose of examining the accounts for the year, which takes place between June 24 and 26, daily deposits of silver are made by the bullion houses, averaging from 40,000 to 100,000 ounces in exchange for the silver bars needed in their regular business.

Superintendent Mason today said that applications recently on this account have been lighter than usual. Leading bullion dealers say that shipments of silver will be resumed in the ordinary course of business and that the cessation of the exports has no special import. Up to a few weeks ago a liberal proportion of the production had been forwarded to Europe.

A variety of influences at the present time have afforded stock exchange operators an opportunity to create a speculative movement in silver and during the week the price of the certificates was carried up to 70, the highest feature recorded for a long time past.

HE PAID THE FREIGHT.

The Richest Man in America Has Fun.

Cleveland, June 27.—Nearly all of the teachers and children of the Euclid avenue Baptist Sunday school attended the annual picnic at Ruggles grove Wednesday. John D. Rockefeller, the richest man in America, was there too, and none enjoyed the outing more than he. Mr. Rockefeller is superintendent of the Sunday school. He has held the place for many years and his children have been active in the work. Recently, when Mr. Rockefeller departed for New York, every child in the Sunday school brought a single flower. Then the flowers were formed in a huge bouquet and presented to the superintendent.

He was at the depot early to see that the ladies and children were safely placed aboard the train. At the grounds he threw aside all thoughts of his millions and mammoth business interests while he joined in the games of the day.

All the children were given a ride on the merry-go-round at his expense. He stood on the rigging to supervise the loading and the thing started unexpectedly. The children shouted with glee, but the man of millions looked serious. He rode around a few times and then, as though he had grown dizzy, he sat on the floor until the machine came to a standstill.

An excellent dinner, which the little ones suspected was due largely to his generosity, was served to the children. The church trustees went bathing and the magnate sat on the bank and laughed at their antics as they frolicked in the water.

He also engaged in a game of "drop the handkerchief" with some of the teachers and children. It was more fun than an extra dividend. On the way home he remarked that the day was to him the most enjoyable one of the year.

NO SEPARATE CARS.

Kentucky Color Line Law Knocked Out.

Hopkinsville, Ky., June 27.—In the $5000 damage suit of R. N. Lander, colored, and wife, against the receiver of the Ohio Valley Railroad company, Judge James Breathitt decided the separate coach law was unconstitutional and the jury was given peremptory instructions to find for the plaintiff. An agreed verdict for $125 was then signed by the twelve men and the case will go to the court of appeals.

Lander's wife in July last was forced to move from the car for white people to the coach known as the "Jim Crow car."

CONGRESSIONAL NOMINEE.

Hamilton, Ohio, June 27.—The Republicans of the Third Ohio district today nominated Robert M. Nevin, of Dayton, for congress.

THE UMBRIA AGROUND.

New York, June 27.—The steamer Umbria, outward bound, is aground in Gedney channel.

LONDON

International Cricket Match Was First In Public Interest This Week.

Socially the Metropolis Was Very Gay---The Marlborough Jewels.

Li Hung Chang and the Railroads--Usual Weekly Gossip Budget.

London, June 27.—(Copyright, 1896, by the Associated Press.)—The attention of a large part of the country during the past week has not been riveted upon the debates in the house of commons, on the African situation, or upon the Venezuelan dispute, but it has almost been concentrated upon Lords cricket grounds, where the visiting Australian eleven sustained a severe defeat at the hands of the All-England eleven, the latter winning by six wickets, after putting the Australians out for 53 runs in the latter's first innings. There was nothing in politics or anything else in any way which nearly equalled the interest taken in the contesting cricketers, and the crowd present on the grounds on Monday, the first of the three days' play, numbered 30,000 persons.

Socially the week has been the busiest for a long time past; the entertainments included eleven balls given by well-known hostesses, and at the state concert on Monday alone the gathering of the duchesses was of the most brilliant kind, but the jewels of the duchess of Marlborough outshone the others.

In diplomatic circles it is no longer doubted that Li Hung Chang, during his visit to Moscow, arranged a close military treaty alliance between China and Russia, including the construction of a railway to connect the existing Russian Siberian railway with Port Arthur. Gen. Alexander McD. McCook, who was a member of the United States commission at Moscow upon the occasion of the coronation fetes, sails today for New York. He has had frequent interviews with Prince Khiloff, the Russian minister of ways and communications, and it is believed that these interviews related to the construction of the railroad to Port Arthur, which both Russia and China desire to see constructed under American auspices.

Li Hung Chang, while in the United States, will make a careful inspection of the American railroads which he will traverse while on his way from New York to San Francisco, and Prince Khiloff will make a similar inspection of the Russian railroads or an official journey which he is about to make to Siberia, to Vladivostock, and thence to China and home via the United States. Prince Khiloff when a young man studied for several years in a repair shop on one of the American railroads.

The Canadian firemen who have been taking part in the international tournament here are greatly pleased with the reception which has been accorded them. At the close of the tournament today they will visit Paris and will not start for home before taking in many of the sights on the continent, which will probably postpone their departure for the other side of the Atlantic to the middle of July at the earliest.

Stafford house, which has been considered the most exclusive in London, was thrown open on Wednesday night by the duchess of Sutherland in order to celebrate the first anniversary of the foundation of the society of lady journalists. The guests were welcomed by Mrs. Craigie (John Oliver Hobbes) and her colleagues, who stood in front of the grand staircase. The guests included A. J. Balfour, first lord of the treasury; the marquis of Lansdown, the secretary of state for war; Lord Rosebery, Henry Asquith, Lord Ronald Gower, Oscar Browning, William Black and others of equal note. The duchess of Sutherland, like her sister, the countess of Warwick, is an occasional contributor to the press.

Mrs. Martin (Victoria Woodhull) has inundated London with invitations to a Fourth of July reception, at which the stars and stripes, it is proposed, will be entwined, not with the union jack, but with the royal standard. The Globe, commenting upon Mrs. Martin's proposition, says: "We understand that the Fourth is Independence day, but, however independent the Americans may be, there is no reason why they should disregard the tradition which makes the royal standard the peculiar badge of royalty."

The Fourth Hussars, "the Queen's Own," are being raked by the press and frowned upon by the public in general. Some time ago, it appears, the officers of the Fourth Hussars bullied a subaltern named Hodge to such an extent that he resigned and went to Africa. This caused some comment in the press, but the matter was allowed to drop. Later it transpired that when a young man named Bruce Price was gazetted to the Fourth Hussars he was invited to dine at the Nimrod club by five subalterns who, after making inquiries as to his means, told him he was not wanted in the regiment, and that unless he retired gracefully he would be made to retire in disgrace. The young lieutenant declined to resign and reported the matter to the adjutant. But it seems all the officers of the regiment, from Col. Brebazon down, boycotted and bullied him until he was finally compelled to resign on the ground that he was too familiar with privates. The affair is causing the greatest excitement in the service, especially as it is a deliberate conspiracy among the officers of that regiment to allow none but those who are able to keep hunters and race horses to remain in the regiment.

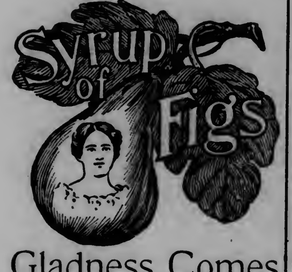
The Elizabethan Stage society will give a performance of Marlowe's "Doctor Faustus" on the afternoon of July 4. The principal feature of the performance will be the introduction of the "Seven Deadly Sins," the designs for which will be taken from engravings belonging to the sixteenth century and are now to be found in the print room of the British museum. In consequence of the heavy expense of these productions the society will this year give but one performance.

The custom of dramatizing novels is now meeting with great favor in London. David Frohman is anxious to secure J. M. Barrie's "The Little Minister" for the American stage. It is hinted that the play will be dramatized by Paul Potter. Leonard Merrick is dramatizing his clever book, "The Man Who Was Good," and Mrs. Hodgson Burnett is doing the same with her "Lady of Quality." Arthur Bourchier has secured a success in "The Queen's Proctor" which bids fair to rival that of "The Child Widow." Last week a new curtain-raiser, entitled "Dearest Mamma," was presented to the patrons of the Royal theater.

Marshall P. Wilder has been engaged as entertainer at the dinner to be given by the honorable artillery company of Boston. The father of the latest victim of the Fourth Hussars scandal intimates that his son was driven from that regiment in order to make a vacancy for Lieut. Winston L. S. Churchill, son of the late Lord Randolph Churchill.

Among the Americans in London are Mrs. John A. Logan, John A. Logan, Jr., Chief Surgeon Billings, Judge Henry Stoddard, of New Haven; Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Salvini, Senator Hoar of Massachusetts, who has just returned from Paris and Antwerp, and who will accompany Thomas F. Bayard, the United States ambassador, to Gainsborough today.

Baron Albert Grant is again in the bankrupt court.



Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

SHAFROTH

Colorado Congressman Who Says Silver Men Will Surely Win.

Has Always Been a Republican But Duty Said Bolt.

Teller is the Moses Who Can Lead Silver Men to Victory.

Kansas City, Mo., June 27.—Congressman John F. Shafroth, of Colorado, is at the Midland. He was on his way home to Denver from the St. Louis convention, but changed his plans and will leave for Chicago tonight instead: "I have just received a telegram from Senator Dubois asking me to meet him in Chicago Monday, to work in Senator Teller's interest.

"Oh, I am one of 'those fellers,'" he went on laughing. "I am for free coinage of silver before anything else, and yet I am a Republican, too, from the bottom of my heart. I hate to leave the old party. We are in deadly earnest and election will show it. 'Who will we vote for?' For Teller, I hope. That is why I am going to Chicago. We believe that Democratic free silver men have now a platform opportunity and we want them to see as we do. If we can't by fair means persuade them, if they nominate a true and blue good man, we shall be for him. The silver vote must go solid this year. I left Mr. Teller only two days ago at his mother's home in Morrison, Ill. He expressed the same sentiments I have just given. We are right and we shall win."

STATE SUPREME COURT.

Duluth Case Decision By Chief Justice Start.

St. Paul, June 27.—Representative Sivright, of Hutchinson, worked hard all during the session of 1895 to get through a bill providing for the location of section and quarter section posts by county surveyors upon the application of resident owners, in order that the frequent boundary disputes between land owners might be brought to an end. In a decision handed down yesterday Chief Justice Start, of the supreme court, takes just four lines and a half of typewritten matter to knock the law out on the ground that it is unconstitutional as it deprives the land owners of their property without due process of law. The decision is in the case of Davis vs. the county commissioners of St. Louis county and is an affirmation of the decision of the district court.

In the case of Laura V. Truesdale, respondent, vs. H. G. Sidle et al., appellants, the court holds that it is only in special cases that equity will relieve a party from the consequence of a pure mistake at law. It will not compel the opposite party is blameless in the premises, and the parties cannot be replaced in their former position. In this case the defendants found a mortgage and an advertisement on two lots belonging to the plaintiff, and included the attorneys' fees in the total bid which they had no legal right to do, as they were not compensated by the terms of the mortgage. No redemption was made and Truesdale sued to recover the amount of the attorneys' fees as part of the surplus. The court finds the mortgage in value fully one-half between the time of sale and the beginning of the action, and the courts now hold that the defendants can neither have the sale set aside nor a resale ordered, nor defeat that action by tendering a deed to the lots upon being paid the amount of the mortgages. The decision of the lower court is affirmed.

In the case of the Moran Manufacturing company, respondent, vs. the City of St. Paul, appellant, the city gets the worst of it, as it did in the lower courts. The city made a contract with Moran for building some sewers, by which Moran was to be paid a gross sum for the entire job, but that estimates be made and paid during the process of the work, and that the estimates were to be paid when there was money in the treasury applicable to such work, and that no interest was to be allowed on the estimates. Estimates were allowed during the progress of the work, but no warrants were drawn nor any payments made until after the work had been completed and accepted and the total amount allowed. Then warrants were issued from time to time and paid to the amount of the respective estimates. The court now holds that the sums paid on such warrants were payments pro tanto on the debts due as an entirety, and that the plaintiff is entitled to interest on his debt, including the amount of the estimates, from the date of the completion and acceptance of the work. Order affirmed.

In the case of the Ames & Frost company, respondent, vs. E. F. Smith et al, appellants, it is held that the possession of a promissory note by the payee, with his own indorsement in blank thereon, is prima facie evidence of his ownership of it. To establish a contract for the sale of property by the letters of the parties it must appear that there was a clear accession on both sides to one and the same set of terms.

In the damage case of W. L. Rogers, respondent, vs. the Chicago Great Western Railway company, appellants, it is held that the evidence sustains the verdict, and that the damages awarded were not so excessive as to justify a conclusion that they were the result of passion or prejudice on the part of the jury. Order affirmed.

AUGUSTUS HARRIS.

Funeral at London of the Late Manager.

London, June 27.—The funeral of Sir Augustus Harris took place at Brompton cemetery today. There was a remarkable gathering of nobilities, and the casket was covered with floral wreaths. Among the senders of these tributes of respect was the prince of Wales, the duke and duchess of York, many members of the nobility and all the best known lights of the theatrical world.

LI HUNG CHANG.

Rontgen Rays Find an Encysted Bullet.

Berlin, June 27.—Li Hung Chang submitted to the Rontgen examination at the Charlottenburg Polytechnic Institute yesterday. It showed the track of the bullet fired by the would-be assassin on the Chinese statesman at Shimonzeki, Japan, when the treaty between China and Japan was being arranged. The bullet entered the left cheek and buried itself in the tissues slightly below, where the missile is encysted.

HAS QUIT THE PARTY.

Lieut. Governor Frank Day Has Published His Farewell.

Fairmont, Minn., June 27.—The Martin County Sentinel, edited by Lieutenant Governor Frank Day, publishes the following this week:

Those who have been readers of the Sentinel for the past few years are familiar with our position upon the money question. We have honestly and conscientiously advocated the principle of bimetallism. We have championed that cause as best we knew how, believing it to be one of the cardinal principles of the Republican party, an integral part of the fundamental law of our land, vital to the happiness and prosperity of the people. We have watched with the deepest anxiety and solicitude the gradual drifting away of the great party of liberty and equality from its ancient moorings. The insidious influences of selfish and greedy men—men powerful only as great wealth gave them power—have accomplished the destruction of one-half of the primary redemption money of the government, one of the sacred metals of the constitution. The final act in this cruel conspiracy was consummated at St. Louis last week, and we are brought face to face with a condition which creates in our heart the profoundest emotions of regret and sorrow. We have reached the parting of the ways and must either basely and wantonly violate our solemn convictions of right and duty, shutify our consciences, repudiate our past utterances and declare to the world that we are a hypocrite and a time server, a political prostitute—we must either thus degrade ourself or sever, once for all, our relations with a party at whose shrine we have loyally worshipped from our early manhood. The same sentiments of regret come over us as we pen these words that welled up in the hearts of the great leaders at St. Louis when in the committee room they declared their separation from the party they had loved, and in bidding their colleagues good-bye, broke down in tears. To sever these ties of affiliation of almost a lifetime is like separating from home or country. And words cannot express the reluctance and regret with which we part political company with an army of good and true men with whom we have been on terms of more than ordinary fellowship and intimacy. Every consideration of policy, financial welfare and political preferment admonishes us in unmistakable terms to accept the new creed of the party and support its nominees. Many true and honest friends will believe and warn us that we have "made the mistake of your (our) life." and it is possible they are right; we shall not quarrel with them on that point, but we believe those who know us best will fairly give us credit for unselfishness and sincerity of purpose.

In a spirit of gratitude we can but admit that we owe a great deal to the Republican party, but we owe more to the people and to our conscience. We shall not here attempt to discuss the questions involved in this mighty conflict between the advocates of bimetallism and a single gold standard. It will be the one overshadowing issue before the American people during the weeks and months intervening between now and election. Voters should give it their thoughtful, earnest and patriotic consideration, "unawed by influence and unbribed by gain." Then let them follow the advice of the great poet and the future will take care of itself:

"This above all. To thine own self be true,
And it must folow as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to any man."

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

At Grand Forks admirers of Rev. E. J. Conaty, a Roman Catholic priest, who has officiated at St. Michael's church for nine years presented him with a fine driving outfit valued at $200.

In the United States court at Fargo the indictment against Mrs. Merchant, of Eldendale, charged with mailing obscene and anonymous matter, was quashed. She was indicted at the same time as John A. Brown, acquitted last week. Several cases against E. Ashley Mears were dismissed, as were those against W. W. Allen Mears, his cashier.

There is a directory war on at Fargo. Charles W. Pettibone, of Sioux Falls, has been for several weeks compiling a city directory. Recently members of the Typographical union learned he was going to take the book to St. Paul to print, and they decided to get out an opposition one, which seems to be taking the business.

Gottlieb Kline, a farmer residing five miles from Jamestown, died of blood poisoning, resulting from the extraction of a tooth. He leaves a family.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

About the time that the Indian industrial school at Pierre closes each year for the summer vacation, the Indian parents of the pupils begin to flock in to witness the closing program of the school, and to take their children home. Many of them arrive from a week to ten days before the closing day and pitch their tepees about the school. They come insufficiently supplied with provisions, and long before they are ready to return they exhaust the short supplies they bring with them and expect the school to supply them. To once begin to furnish the supplies would mean a vast addition to the crowd each year, so each year there are many hungry Indians camped around the school. This year the trouble is being experienced.

It is reported that practically the whole vote of the eastern portion of Hughes county will desert the Republican party on the issue of free silver. This city controls a majority of the vote of the county, and this disaffection may possibly not carry the county.

CORBETT AND SHARKEY.

Matched to Fight For Over $30,000.

San Francisco, June 27.—James J. Corbett and Thomas Sharkey have signed articles for a fight to a finish to take place within six months in the United States or Mexico before the club offering the best inducements. The contest is for the world's championship and a side bet of $10,000, the winner to receive the $20,000, besides the purse to be offered by the club. Marquis of Queensberry rules will govern the contest and the referee is reminded by the articles that the rules prohibiting clinching and hugging are to be strictly enforced. Neither pugilist is to participate in any contest until after the fight is decided. Lynch, Sharkey's backer, who represents the sailor, objected to the prohibition of clinching, but Corbett insisted, and after much wrangling, it was finally agreed to by Lynch.

The Bicycle Race.

The third day of the female bicycle races at the ball park last night was well attended, and the riders made some very rapid time. The first 100 miles, which were finished last night, were made in 5 hours, 9 minutes and 15 seconds. The score at the end of last night's race was as follows:

	Miles.	Laps.

Baldwin	115	13
Christopher	115	13
Peterson	115	11
Hokenson	114	4

HINES QUIT

The Farmer Railway Man No Match For a Female Evangelist.

She "Jumped" His Meeting and He Was Forced to Quit.

Her Prayers and Amens of Her Followers Routed the Preacher.

Langdon, N. D., June 27.—President D. W. Hines, of the Farmers' railroad, now easily one of the most prominent men of the Northwest, has been compelled to give up in a contest in which he presumed that he could win an easy victory. It occurred last Sunday and Monday at a camp meeting which was held near the old home of President Hines, on the boundary line between Manitoba and this country.

Mr. Hines was once an evangelist in a small way. He felt called upon at one time to preach, and did well for a time, but later failed and went back to his farm near Hanna. He still is and always will be a very religious man, opens all of his meetings with prayer and remains a church member in all his work. Some time ago he announced the idea of having a camp meeting in connection with the railroad work. Great preparations had been made for the opening of this camp meeting venture, which was to be near Hanna. There was a large tent put up, and the prospects were for a very good meeting.

Last Saturday Hines passed through Langdon on his way to open the camp meeting. When he arrived there he found that the people of the northern part of the county and in Manitoba near by were very much excited over the preaching of a woman of the sect of the Hornerites, which originated a few years ago in Ontario under one J. C. Horner. They hold many peculiar doctrines, among them being personal holiness and absence from debt. She had many converts and more apostates from the other religious denominations, and even some of Hines' relatives were affected by the doctrines and had joined the sect. She claimed to be an unmarried woman, a Miss Hulbert, but it is said that she is in reality married.

When Hines opened his meeting Sunday he found over 400 people there, among whom were the evangelist and about thirty of her followers. Hines opened the meeting with the usual devotional exercises and then began in a sort of scriptural way to attack the Hornerite doctrine and the evangelist. She became angry and began to defend herself. A wordy combat followed, and at length the woman mounted the platform and began a loud speech, in spite of Hines' protests. Hines tried to pray aloud, but she did the same and drowned his prayer, while the thirty followers moved to the front and assisted her in the work by loud "Amens" and all sorts of exclamations.

Hines then agreed to allow the woman an hour to present her case, but she was unwilling to let go at the end of that time, and the combat lasted almost all day long and Hines was compelled to give up. The next day he resumed the work but the Hornerites again got possession, and he was compelled to submit. The noise at this meeting was most uproarious. Hines attacked the woman boldly and warmly, calling her a fool and her followers idiots and hypocrites. She threatened to prosecute Hines for slander.

Hines declares that he will return to the scene and yet rout these people. On the other hand, the Hornerites say that if Hines persists in thus abusing them they will send for Horner himself from Ontario.

SAWMILLS DESTROYED.

Portland, Ore., June 27.—The plant of the Willmatte Steam Mills and Manufacturing company, commonly known as Weidler's mill, was burned last night together with a large quantity of lumber. The total loss is estimated at $150,000. The insurance is $35,000.

Ell Hill, Lumber City, Pa., writes: "I have been suffering from piles for twenty-five years and thought my case incurable DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve was recommended to me as a pile cure, so I bought a box and it performed a permanent cure." This is only one of thousands of similar cases. Eczema, sores and skin diseases yield quickly when it is used. S. F. Boyce

HUMPHREYS'

TRADE OUTLOOK.

Dun Descants a Little on Politics.

New York, June 27.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade which issued today says: The monetary outlook is not yet clear to some. The strength shown in recent conventions by advocates of silver coinage and expectation that all the elements favoring that policy may yet be concentrated incline them to a waiting attitude. Their uncertainty retards improvement notwithstanding the more widely prevalent feeling that the monetary action of the St. Louis convention will be sustained by the people. But many mills have waited as long as they can with safety and signatures have been given to enough cotton mills of Fall River to ensure a temporary stoppage it is stated. Woolen mills are acting without concert but fourteen are mentioned in dispatches as having been closed this week. Important controversies as to wages of iron puddlers and other hands make it likely that the annual stoppage in that industry may last longer than usual. Returns of harvesting thus far support the best estimates as to wheat and the condition of corn has been decidedly improved by rains. There is no reason to doubt regarding the sufficiency of supplies. The hay crop has also been exceedingly good at the West. It is not wholly a welcome but a necessary conclusion that prices for the great staples are not likely to be higher.

The great combinations which the Iron Age wisely reasons tend to cause disastrously low prices hereafter still control the markets both for material and finished products of iron and steel though it is reported that lower prices will soon be made for coke owing to better utilization of bye products and for nails, owing to the heavy decrease in consumption. The billet pool reports no larger sale but middlemen or outsiders continue to undersell it. The new demand for finished products is very light and while quotations average a shade lower most of them are cut to secure business. Bessemer pig is a shade lower, $12.25 at Pittsburg.

Failures for the week have been 217 in the United States against 256 last year, and twenty-four in Canada against twenty-two last year.

BRADSTREET NOT HOPEFUL.

New York, June 27.—Bradstreet's today says: A more hopeful feeling in trade circles within the past few days, explained as due to the adoption of a gold plank at St. Louis, has been given undue weight. Interviews with merchants in staple lines and over fifty-five of the more important distributing centers show that aside from the increased strength of wool in the hands of the interior holders reflected at Boston and Philadelphia an improved demand for hardware at Providence, for clothing and shoes at Baltimore, shoes and dry goods at Memphis and in similar lines at St. Louis, there has been no improvement in trade. At Chicago there is a more hopeful sentiment but no increase in business. A canvass of leading jobbers as important cities shows no expectation of a revival in general trade until after election, and at some points no improvement is expected until next year. Relatively greatest activity has been among Eastern dry goods jobbers who have sacrificed prices to reduce heavy stocks of cotton goods. New England rubber manufacturers are curtailing production and the situation and outlook in the iron and steel industries is less satisfactory, with a prospective cut in the price of Bessemer pig iron and the probability of the billet combination reducing quotations and lower prices for coke. In addition there are reduced prices for lead, tobacco, petroleum and cotton, for wheat, wheat flour, oats, pork, lard, sugar and coffee.

There are 218 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, a striking decrease as compared with a week ago when the total was 265. One year ago the week's total was 221, three more than this week but two years ago, in the midst of the extreme depression of 1894 the total number of business failures in the fourth week of June was only 189. There are nineteen business failures reported throughout the Dominion this week as compared with thirty-five last week and twenty-eight in the corresponding week in 1895 and in 1894.

COUNTY CONVENTIONS.

At Brookenridge, the Wilkin county delegation was solid for Clapp. There are no instructions at Winthrop, the Sibley county Republican delegation is divided, eight being for Clapp and four for Eustis. The district delegates are for Heatwole for congress.

At Wascca the Gibbs men prevailed without any opposition. Tawney was indorsed for congress.

At Albert Lea the Freeborn county Republicans indorsed Gibbs and Tawney.

At Redwood Falls, the Redwood county delegation is divided, about half being for Clough and the others scattering. It is said McCleary has a majority of the district delegates.

At Willmar, the Kandiyohi county convention elected Clough delegates, favored Eddy for congress and endorsed Nelson's course in the United States senate.

BIG COPPER MINE SOLD.

Tucson, Ariz., June 27.—The sale of the Rosemont copper mine was effected today to Lewisshon Bros., of New York, owners of the old Dominion mines at Globe. Four of the largest copper operating firms in the world are now interested in this vicinity. The others are the Westinghouse company, at Crittenden; the Anaconda holding the Hughes mine, near Rosemont, under bond; and Phelps, Dodge & Co., operating the mine Rat Hill group under bond. A vein widening into 40 per cent ore has been struck at Mineral hill.

SURVEYS IN ALASKA.

Washington, June 27.—The geological survey is continuing the gold investigations in Alaska under a special appropriation. J. E. Spurr, H. B. Goodrich and F. C. Schrader form a party which has been detailed to the Upper Yukon fields. They will remain throughout the year studying the gold placer deposits and investigating the origin of the placer gold.

CALIFORNIA CLOUDBURST.

Cow Wells, Cal., June 27.—A cloudburst in the foot hills back of the town last night sent a volume of water three feet deep through the principal part of the place, washing away many tents and several buildings. There were several narrow escapes from drowning.

Rev. A. F. Elmquist, New Pastor of Swedish Lutheran Church, Here.

The Services Which Will Be Held in the Other Churches.

J. H. Cook Injured Yesterday at Duncan & Brewer's Mill.

Rev. A. F. Elmquist has arrived in West Duluth to become pastor of the Swedish Evangelical Lutheran church, located on the corner of Fifty-sixth avenue west and Elinor street. Mr. Elmquist comes highly recommended as a preacher and scholar and the congregation considers itself extremely fortunate in securing so able a pastor. Mr. Elmquist is a native of Minnesota and a graduate of Adolphus college, St. Peter. After graduation he spent one year of study in the department of philosophy in the university of Pennsylvania. He graduated in the Augustana theologicel seminary at Rock Island, Ill., on May 28, 1896, and was ordained minister at Omaha June 7. He is living at the residence of J. Allyn Scott, where he desires to meet his friends.

Regular church services will be held under his pastorate at 10:30 a. m. and in the vening at 7:30 p. m.

At Westminster Presbyterian church, Rev. G. E. Keithley will hold services tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. and in the evening at the usual time. Morning topic, "Sabbath Observance;" evening topic, "Moses' Post-Graduate Course."

At Asbury M. E. church, Dr. Forbes will preach morning and evening and in the afternoon he will open the new church at Proctorknott. This will be his last Sunday here before starting for the East.

The usual services will be held at the Church of the Holy Apostles and at St James Catholic church.

HIS HAND INJURED.

J. H. Cook, son of Foreman Cook, of the Duncan & Brewer mill, met with an accident at the mill yesterday by which one of his thumbs and two fingers were torn from his hand. He was engaged in wiping some live rollers with some waste when his hand was drawn into the rollers with the above result.

PEDDLED WITHOUT A LICENSE.

A woman peddler was arrested this morning for peddling without a license. She carried a basket and satchel filled with jewelry, dry goods and notions. She pretended at police headquarters she could not either read nor write, and as near as one could guess by sound her name was Mary Hollar. This is the second or third woman that has been discovered peddling without a license here in the last few weeks.

A VERY BIG FROG.

Until the early part of last February Milton lake was a placid sheet of water much frequented by anglers from this city and elsewhere. But at that time an unusually high freshet washed away the dam and now nothing but a shallow brook remains, says the New York Journal.

The lake has always been the habitat of large numbers of bass, turtles, snakes and frogs. The frogs were noted for their great size, and several that tipped the scales from two to six pounds have been caught.

But the one discovered by a negro lad yesterday breaks all previous records for frogs in this vicinity. He says that while walking along shore he saw something that resembled a stone covered with green slime. Something prompted him to touch the object with the stick he carried, which he did, when "it right up an' squawked." With a yell of fear he retreated in haste, yelling at every step.

Some of the workmen repairing the dam heard his cries, and ran to his assistance. When they had succeeded in quieting him, with eyes bulging, he told them how a "big yalligater" had jumped at him and had nearly bitten his leg off. Threats and offers of money failed to induce him to return with them to the spot.

The workmen then made a tour of inspection, and the frog, for that is what the negro saw, was found dozing under the willows. With stout sticks they soon dispatched the frog and landed him safely on shore. He was then taken to Rahway and when placed on the scales weighed ten and three-quarter pounds. His dimensions were: Length, 18 inches; width, 12 inches; length of legs, 13½ inches; width of mouth, 8 inches. His legs weigh 2¾ and 2¼ pounds respectively.

When the lad was convinced that the frog was "sure nuff dead," he claimed him as his property, and the workmen, after a consultation, presented the monster to him.

A BIG CABBAGE.

An Abnormal Growth Even For California.

Everything in California seems to be big. Every school geography tells of the big trees which grow there—trees larger than are found in any other spot on the globe.

This story has to do with an enormous cabbage. It has grown so tall that it is really a tree. It is twelve feet high and the stalk is as large as a man's waist. For nine months this remarkable plant has been growing, and it has not stopped yet. It is not the common cabbage, but belongs to the colewort or kale family. It resembles cabbage in many respects, but the leaves do not form the solid head which is characteristic of the ordinary cabbage.

In many Southern states kale is highly esteemed as "greens." The small shoots are tender and edible, tasting much like cabbage, which it resembles while growing, as well as after being cooked.

The Isle of Jersey is the home of the kale plant. It is used there as a food for the diminutive buff cattle which have made the name of the island known all over the world.

This giant California kale tree was grown on the grounds of the state agricultural college at Berkeley. The college authorities say that the leaves are much relished by chickens, and as it produces green leaves the year around in the mild climate of California it is highly regarded. The particular plant which has attained such an enormous growth does not differ from scores of others on the farm except in the matter of size. The stalk has been stripped of leaves to a point ten feet from the ground. It tapers gracefully and resembles a young hickory tree. The top is surmounted by a bunch of yellow, feathery flowers.

Some years ago a cabbage plant was exhibited at the Ohio state fair, which was seven feet high. It took a prize, and was supposed to be the largest cabbage ever grown, but it was small compared with the Berkeley monstrosity. Think of the quantity of corned beef it would take to make the proper proportion if all the leaves on this large plant should be cooked at one time! A whole steer would scarcely be sufficient, and two or three such plants would make enough sauer kraut to last a Milwaukee family all winter.

IN HER BRAIN.

An interesting application of the X rays has just been made at the McGill university, says the Montreal Star. Two years ago a girl residing in the city was accidentally shot, the bullet entering her forehead. A futile effort was made to extricate the bullet. The doctors, after probing to a depth of two inches into the brain, found it impossible to locate the ball. An exposure recently of less than ten minutes resulted in a very successful experiment, showing the bullet lodged about the center of the brain. This is said to be the first case on record of a substance being photographed in the interior of the brain.

It would be hard to convince a man suffering from bilious colic that his agony is due to a microbe with an unpronounceable name, but Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy will convince him of its power to afford instant relief. It kills pain. S. F. Boyce.

DECLINED

Another Fractional Decline in the Price of Wheat This Morning.

Falling Off in the Argentine Shipments Caused a Steady Opening.

Heavy Feeling at Liverpool, and a Break in Granger Stocks.

The big falling off reported in the Argentine shipments had a tendency to steady the market at the opening today. The Minneapolis and Duluth receipts amounted to 380 cars, compared with 507 on the previous Saturday and 237 cars on the corresponding day of the year before. The week's shipments of wheat and flour from both coasts of this country and Canada were equal to 2,887,000 bus against 3,020,000 bus in the week a year ago. The Argentine shipments for the week were 320,000 bus. The Liverpool market was quoted without change from yesterday, but private cablegrams reflected heaviness of feeling there. Offers of No. 2 hard spring wheat made to Liverpool yesterday afternoon on the basis of that day's closing rates at Chicago brought no offers except at impossible prices or 3c lower than were current today. There was a break in New York railroad and other granger stocks. The reason given was that, with the low prices of the grain, the railroads would be compelled to haul it at a loss to themselves. What is to compel them to do business at a loss is not stated.

Trading on the Duluth board was light. July opened ½c higher at 55⅝c but shortly after the close of the first hour was down to 55¼c. Then it rallied ⅛c, went back again to 55¼c, and during the last thirty minutes advanced to the split 55⅜-⅝c. The mills bought 40,000 bus of cash stuff at ⅛c over July, and shippers took 100,000 bus at the July price. The close was ⅛c lower than yesterday for July and ⅜c lower for September. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 56c; July, 56⅛c. No. 1 northern, cash, 55c; June, 55⅛c; July, 55¾c bid; September, 55⅛c asked. No. 2 northern, cash, 51⅝@53⅝c. No. 3, 50⅝@51⅝c. Rejected, 45⅝@51⅝c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 56⅛c; No. 1 northern, 55¼c. Rye, 30c. No. 2 oats, 16¾@16¾c; No. 3 oats, 15¾@16c. Flax, 78c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 190; corn, 2; oats, 29; rye, 15; barley, 21; flax, 22. Receipts—Wheat, 213,287 bus; oats, 16,755 bus; rye, 9237 bus; barley, 29,985 bus; flax, 10,559 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 139,250 bus; oats, 141,320 bus.

CATTLE AND HOGS.

Chicago, June 27.—Estimated receipts hogs today, 14,000; left over, 3000. Market active and steady. Light, $3.25@3.52½; mixed, $3.05@3.40; heavy, $2.80@3.50; rough, $2.80@2.95. Cattle, 400; quiet and unchanged. Sheep, 5000; desirable grades; others lower. Hogs, official receipts yesterday, 26,658; shipments, 7572. Cattle, official receipts yesterday, 4426; shipments, 2908. Sheep, official receipts yesterday, 11,192; shipments, 1314. Estimated receipts hogs Monday, 37,000.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Minneapolis, June 27.—The wheat market was lower today, closing: June, 52⅝c; July, 51⅞c; September, 52¾@52⅝c. Cash—No. 1 hard, 54¾c; No. 1 northern, 53⅛c; No. 2 northern, 52⅝c. Receipts, 189 cars.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, June 27.—Money on call steady at 2 per cent; last loan 2 per cent. Prime mercantile paper 4@5½ per cent. Sterling exchange steady with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.88¼@4.88¾ for demand and $4.87@4.87¼ for sixty days. Posted rates $4.88@4.88½ and $4.89@4.89½. Commercial bills $4.86½. Bar silver 65. Mexican dollars 53¾c. State bonds inactive; railroad bonds steady; government bonds steady. New 4s registered, $1.16¼; coupon, $1.16¾; 5s registered, $1.13; coupon, $1.13; 4s registered, $1.08½; coupon, $1.08¾; 2s registered, 94¾; Pacific 6s of '95, $1.00½; coupon, $1.00¾.

NEW YORK GRAIN.

New York, June 27.—Wheat, June, 61⅝c; July, 61⅝c; August, 61⅝c; September, 62¾c; December, 64c. Corn, September, 34½c bid. Oats, September, 20⅝c.

NEW YORK BANKS.

New York, June 27. The weekly bank statement of the associated banks shows the following changes:

Reserve, increase	$1,999,075
Loans, increase	215,500
Specie, increase	460,700
Legal tenders, increase	1,349,600
Deposits, increase	644,900
Circulation, decrease	22,700

The banks now hold $21,917,325 in excess of the requirements of the 25 per cent rule.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 207 Board of Trade.

Chicago, June 27.—The feature of the wheat market today was the continued liquidation of the July option. Commission houses had selling orders all day and the support appeared to be from privileges, puts for the day and the week both being about 56c. The market closed under that price and the wheat that was put rather adding to the weakness of the situation. Some bad crop reports continue to come in but the general opinion seems to be that the wheat crop will be abundant and the bountiful outlook for the coarse grain helps it. Some export demand on the break is only natural and the world's shipments foot up a very respectable amount which may possibly give us an encouraging decrease in the visible Monday. The harvest in the Northwest appears decreasing, but dispatches today claim it is only temporary. Wheat is now at the lowest price of the crop and will bear close watching. It looks lower tonight but short sellers may overdo it.

Corn and oats suffered a slight decline with continued liquidation. Every eighth, however, is stubbornly fought.

Provisions weak with demand from shorts apparently satisfied for the present. Changing over July contracts continues.

Puts, September wheat, 55¼-⅜c.
Calls, September wheat, 56¾c.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Weak, Lower and Heavy Opening Today.

New York, June 27.—The stock market opens weak and lower, with the greatest heaviness in the industrial properties. Sugar and Leather preferred yielded ⅞ and Tobacco ½ per cent. The concessions in the Railway list were slight, and were confined to the Grangers and Louisville & Nashville.

Considerable activity developed at the expense of values after 10:15. The market seemed without support, and prices gave way readily under the offerings of the bears and traders. Prices at 11 o'clock showed concessions of 1@1½ per cent in Sugar, Tobacco, Leather preferred, General Electric, Louisville & Nashville and the Grangers. On account of the weakness, the feature of the speculation in the final hour was that the leading shares sharply depressed under an outbreak of liquidation. Burlington dropped 2¾, and Sugar 2¾ per cent. Other concessions were less material. Silver certificates brought 65⅝@½ for $70,000. The closing was weak, at about the lowest. The aggregate sales were 118,800 shares.

FRENCH SURPRISE.

Do Not Understand Our Usual Greeting.

An American lady who spent some time in Paris says that she had a friend there—a French lady, who wished to learn a little English, and did so. Among her acquisitions in the language was the expression, "How do you do?" to which she was careful to learn the proper response, say the Youth's Companion.

One day the American lady met her French friend on the street. The American lady said, "How do you do?" with a smile and passed on. She did not stop to notice that she left the French lady standing on the street in astonishment.

Soon afterward she called on her friend and was received very coldly by the French lady. As she did not know of any reason why the lady should be offended with her, she pressed her to tell what was the matter.

"Have I done anything to grieve you?" she asked.

"Anything to grieve me!" answered the French lady; "you meet me in the street you ask me how I am, you do not wait to find out how I am, you pass on, and then you ask me whether you have done anything to grieve me!"

Then the American explained that it is not customary for Americans to wait for an answer to their inquiry, "How do you do?"—that they commonly utter the words and pass on, or if they stop to speak, a once begin to talk of other matters.

The French lady could hardly express her astonishment. "The Americans do many very, very strange things," she said "but this is the strangest of all!"

The French when they are of the degree of acquaintance that justifies inquiry as to the health of another, stop and hear all about it, and all about the health of the respective families. When all this information has been exchanged the two persons part with many adieux and elaborate good wishes for each other's continued health and happiness.

The Italians frequently embrace one another in public places, and shake hand several times, and commit one another in parting to the care of God. The American and the English are the only people that question each other as to their health without stopping to find out anything about it.

A CONVICT'S ADVENTURES.

The following remarkable story of adventure appeared recently in the Westminster Gazette. It was recited to M. Cochefort, head of the Paris detective service, by an escaped convict named Bourdet. According to his story, Bourdet, an engineer by trade, was sentenced to a long term of penal servitude in the year 1881, and was sent to the penal settlement in French Guiana. In 1885 he determined to escape. Owing to his efficiency as a workman, he was made foreman of a party of convicts who were sent to work in an isolated part of the forest, under the supervision of a warder. He communicated his design to five of the convicts, and they managed to secretly construct a raft, on which they intended to make their way to Dutch Guiana by sea.

Taking advantage of a fete day, on which the surveillance was relaxed, the six men got safely away on the raft. Their provisions consisted of a small quantity of rice, which each man had saved from his rations, and four of them had also a little quinine. They made their way some distance down the coast, and then landed to push their way through the forest. One soon succumbed to fever, and was abandoned to die. The fugitives were next set upon by some Indians, who captured two of them, and Bourdet and his two remaining companions escaped. Their next adventure was with a large serpent, which they unfortunately stumbled over, and the reptile seized one of the men and crushed him to death. The other two, after enduring terrible hardships, reached the river forming the boundary of Dutch Guiana. At this stage Bourdet's companion sold his remaining rice and quinine, and joined a band of wandering Indians.

Bourdet, left to himself, crossed the river on an improvised craft, and after much privation managed to continue his journey to Georgetown. He subsequently worked for several years in the gold mines, and, having amassed a small sum of money, he returned to France to see his relatives. On his way through Paris he was robbed of his money by a swindler. In spite of this he reached his home, but, as his reception there was decidedly cold, he returned to Paris. Unable to obtain employment, and being in danger of starvation, he had no resource but to give himself up to the police and request to be sent back to the penal settlement.

RESENTFUL.

Chicago Post: It was at the bottom of a hill that the policeman overtook her.

"Madam," he said politely, but with some firmness, "I regret to inform you that you have been violating the law, and I am under instructions to see that it is strictly enforced."

"What have I been doing?" she asked.

"Scorching," he replied. "You came down the hill much faster than the law allows."

"Well," she replied with a sigh, as she pushed her bicycle in his direction, "if you must do something to vindicate the law, arrest that. It wasn't my fault that I was going so fast, and I guess I wanted to stop just as much as you wanted me to."

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (Central time), June 27.—The barometer has fallen rapidly with the advance of a storm which has moved southeastward to Minnesota and there has been a marked increase in pressure during the night in the region north of Montana, where the barometer is now highest.

Light to moderate showers have occurred in the Dakotas and Northern Minnesota and in the Canadian provinces as far east as Lake Superior; also in Kansas, Missouri and Western Tennessee. At 7 a. m. today the weather continued cloudy with showers in Manitoba and Missouri. Elsewhere it was fair.

It is 6 to 14 degrees warmer than yesterday in parts of the Dakotas, Western Minnesota and Montana.

Duluth temperature at 7 a. m. today, 66; maximum yesterday, 78; minimum yesterday, 64.

Local forecast for Duluth and vicinity: Generally fair tonight and Sunday; cooler Sunday; brisk to high southwest winds veering to northwest tonight, and decreasing in force Sunday. Storm northwest signals are displayed at Duluth and Two Harbors.

JAMES KENEALY,
Local Forecast Official.

Chicago, June 27.—Forecast until 8 p. m. tomorrow: For Wisconsin: Generally fair tonight and Sunday; warmer in south portion tonight; cooler in northwest portion Sunday; brisk southwest winds. For Minnesota: Generally fair tonight and Sunday; cooler in northwest portion tonight; cooler in east portion Sunday; brisk southwest winds.

The depth of water over the mitre sill at St. Mary's ship canal at 7 a. m. today was 11 feet 9 inches and the forecast is that it will rise during the next twenty-four hours.

THE EXODUS CONTINUES.

Every day witnesses the announcement by well known Republicans that they cannot subscribe to the gold plank adopted at St. Louis, and that they must leave the party which has completely reversed its attitude on the money question. All over the state the exodus from the Republican party into the independent ranks is proceeding, and the end is not yet. As the campaign progresses, and men think carefully upon the subject, there will be thousands who find that they cannot conscientiously stay in the party, and they will join the great movement for the restoration of bimetallism in this country.

A significant fact is that many Republican papers are leaving the party and declaring in favor of an independent silver ticket. The Hutchinson Leader, the leading Republican paper of McLeod county, in this state, has bolted the party, being unable to stand the surrender made by the St. Louis platform to the European bondholders. The Leader is a power in McLeod county, and it is followed by many of its readers into the bimetallic camp. The Fairmont Sentinel, edited by Lieutenant Governor Frank Day, has also left the Republican ranks for a similar reason. Mr. Day has long been an earnest advocate of the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at 16 to 1, and when the gold plank was adopted at St. Louis, he at once decided that he could no longer remain with a party which had so completely gone back on one of its time-honored principles. He has now cast his lot with the great popular independent movement in favor of bimetallism, and through the columns of the Sentinel and upon the stump in the coming campaign will do yeoman service for the cause.

ORGANIZED LABOR'S ATTITUDE.

The following letter, which was addressed to the New York World a few days ago by J. R. Sovereign, general master workman of the Knights of Labor, may be properly regarded as a correct statement of the attitude of organized labor in the campaign which is now opening. Mr. Sovereign says:

"I shall support Senator Henry M. Teller if he is nominated, and I believe that organized labor generally will do so. The Knights of Labor all over the country are for him. On the Pacific slope the Western Federation of Miners, which include gold, silver and coal miners, nearly 100,000 strong, are strongly in his favor. So is the Federation of Labor on the coast, so far as I can learn, and the powerful Seamen's union as well. The former members of the Knights of Labor I know to be enthusiastically for him. Free coinage of silver is to be the issue, and organized labor is for it.

"McKinley may have shown wisdom in selecting Mark Hanna as his manager, but by so doing he has gained the bitter opposition of organized labor in every state of the Union. Hanna has always been a vindictive foe to organized labor. He is an industrial cannibal. He has crushed union after union among his thousands of employes and taken delight in doing so. He is worse than Carnegie. In case of McKinley's election Hanna would be the real president.

"While labor organizations may have their little differences, they come together as a unit when an attack is to be made on a common foe."

MORE OBSTRUCTIVE TACTICS.

Two more suits have been started to prevent the people of Duluth from constructing an independent water plant and securing a water supply that will be free from contamination for all time to come. A few days ago, the state supreme court decided that the last bond election was legal, and that the city has full and unquestionable authority to issue bonds for the building of the water plant. The points raised in these new suits, which have not already been decided by the courts, are frivolous and raised merely to aid the scheme of obstruction which has prevented the city from making the rapid progress with the new system of waterworks that everyone desires to see made.

Although the suits are instituted ostensibly by outside companies and individuals, there is not the shadow of a doubt that the real instigators of these obstructive tactics can be found within the state of Minnesota, and some of them live in Duluth. It is possible that the courts will deal in a summary fashion with this obstructive litigation, which has no merit whatever to give it a standing in court. Meanwhile the people trust that Attorney General Childs will respond favorably to the city attorney's request for the institution of quo warranto proceedings against the existing company and thus bring the whole matter to a speedy termination.

ASSESSING THE MINES.

On the ninth page today will be found an article from the Mesaba Range, published at Biwabik, which very clearly exposes the farcical manner in which the township assessors are placing valuations on the mining properties, and which forcibly demands that the county board shall rectify the incompetent work of the assessors.

The properties are being assessed ridiculously low. The valuations placed on valuable proved mines are almost as low as the valuations made of properties that have hardly been explored. The assessor for the township of Biwabik says that he made these valuations because he understands that all mining property in the county has been assessed on the same basis and that the county board will not raise these valuations. In other words, he admits having received instructions to make these farcical valuations, and he has violated his oath of office by becoming a party to the fraud in the interest of the mining companies. It would be interesting to learn from whom he received such instructions or advice. The Herald does not believe, however, that the county commissioners will let this absurd assessment stand, but will raise the valuations to figures that will more nearly represent the proper assessable valuation.

The Herald agrees with these remarks by the Biwabik paper: "The Range is no stickler for heavy valuations just now, because under present arrangements some of the operators are compelled to pay the tax, and it would be satisfied with a moderate assessment until the laws can be so changed as to compel the fee owners and royalty owners to bear their just share of the burden, but even under present conditions the assessment ought to be somewhere within reason. If the Biwabik plan of assessing is universal throughout the county, the revenue derived will be no greater than under the 1-cent per ton arrangement. To be sure, under the new system taxation will be more equally divided between producers and non-producers, and will bring more money to the school, township and county treasuries, but less to the state than the old. The assessment should be high enough so that the state will receive at least as much as formerly and the county at least ten times more."

It is altogether probable that the great iron corporations hope that by making the assessments so low that the state's share will be smaller than what it receives from the 1-cent per ton tax, the members of the legislature will be more easily persuaded to retain the specific tax system, should the constitutional amendment having this in view be adopted in November. The people will look to the county board to prevent the success of this clever scheme.

THAT CATECHISM.

Mr. Towne replied in a communication to the News Tribune this morning to a "currency catechism," which was published yesterday as the original product of one of its readers. Today it says it was written "by one of the people who has had just as many opportunities to study the question and has devoted perhaps as much time to its study as has Mr. Towne."

The fact is that the News Tribune does not known by whom it was written. It may have been written in Wall street. It recently appeared in the Chicago Times-Herald and it is supposed to have emanated from the gold standard literature headquarters on William street, New York. Consequently it is about as original as anything else that appears on the News Tribune editorial page relating to the money question.

It is worthy of note that the News Tribune today had not a single argument to offer in opposition to Mr. Towne's reply to this catechism. It merely indulged in some loose comment on the style of Mr. Towne's communication. This may pass for sound argument in goldbug circles, but it does not satisfy the people generally.

A rumor comes from Stearns county that Charles F. Hendryx, of the Sauk Center Herald, has an itching to enter the lists as a candidate for congress against Mr. Towne. Mr. Hendryx was one of the delegates to St. Louis and assisted in forcing the gold plank on the Republican party. The Herald has a few extracts from editorials on the money question, written by Mr. Hendryx, which are radically opposed to the St. Louis platform and should Mr. Hendryx become the Republican candidate, it will call upon him to reconcile the opinions which he then expressed with his recent action at St. Louis. Mr. Hendryx has been considerable of a contortionist himself on the money question.

The goldite Republican papers which are now ridiculing the true and consistent Republicans who are leaving their party because they cannot swallow the gold plank will have nothing but words of praise for the goldbug Democrats who will leave their party when silver wins at Chicago. They will be very careful not to call the latter "traitors" to their party, because they worship the golden calf.

The Hartley boom for the congressional nomination continues to make steady progress. A brass band was playing in front of his residence shortly after 8 o'clock this morning. There is nothing like a brass band to arouse enthusiasm, and the manager of the Hartley boom evidently knows his business.

It is said that Wright county will present the name of Senator W. E. Culkin, of Buffalo, at the St. Cloud convention as a candidate for the Republican nomination for congress. Mr. Culkin is a bright young man, and it would be too bad to have his promising career brought to a sudden end by an unsuccessful race against Mr. Towne.

Judge Morris has very wisely resisted the pressure used to induce him to take the Republican nomination for congress, preferring to remain on the judicial bench. Judge Morris has made a good record during the short time he has been on the bench, and there is little doubt that he will be retained in that position.

The Detroit Tribune, the leading Republican morning paper of Michigan, has bolted the St. Louis platform on account of the gold plank, and the Detroit News, the leading evening paper in Michigan, is also supporting the cause of bimetallism and advocating the nomination of Senator Teller by the Chicago convention, which would unite the silver forces.

The Delano Eagle says: "Will The Duluth Herald follow the Teller crowd or will it remain in the Republican ranks? There are two or three other influential papers in the Sixth district that will have the same question to answer." Inasmuch the The Herald has never been in the Republican ranks, the question seems to be unnecessary.

Frank Flower should return at once and infuse some sense into the editorial columns of the Superior Leader. Mr. Flower may be a "crazy editor," as he facetiously calls himself, but he has some periods of sanity and the individual who is wobbling around in his chair at present has none whatever.

The Superior Inter-Ocean makes a tearful appeal to the silver Republicans across the bay to stand by the old party although its leaders have sold it to the gold syndicates. The leaven must be actively at work in Superior, when such heart-rending appeals are necessary.

The New York Evening Post continues to ridicule the "international agreement" clause of the St. Louis platform. The Post is honest in saying that such an agreement need not be expected during the present generation.

Russia's Asiatic frontier of thousands of miles is given as the explanation of the uncommon gorgeousness of the Moscow ceremonial. All the story of the East is in that explanation.

The state machine, with the aid of its workers and the officeholders, is steadily gathering in the delegates for Clough. But it will find in November that votes cannot be secured in the same way.

The indications now point strongly to Dave Clough's nomination. He may be nominated, but he will never be elected. The anti-machine Republicans cannot consistently vote for the machine's candidate.

The Anaconda, Mont., Standard should remember that Duluth is in Minnesota and not in Michigan. Both are good states, but we prefer Minnesota.

"Yelping like a basket of prize pups" is one of the choice literary gems which now adorn the editorial page of the News Tribune.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

THE DISTRICT FOR TOWNE.

Encouraging Reports Continue to Come From Everywhere.

Brainerd Journal: Congressman Towne has refused to support the gold standard plank in the platform adopted by the Republican national convention, and will not accept a Republican nomination in this district for congress on a gold standard platform. He will be a candidate for re-election, however, on a platform for bimetallism, and will be re-elected by an overwhelming majority. Already the most encouraging reports are pouring in from all parts of the district. In Duluth nearly everybody is for Towne, and in Itasca county the chairman of all three of the committees of the political parties have endorsed him. The people are waking up everywhere. The feeling of the people may be illustrated by what Hon. L. P. White, of this city, said in his office a few days ago. Mr. White said:

"From this time on I am for free silver coinage. I have a considerable amount of property, but the gold standard has shrivelled its value until it is hardly worth paying taxes on. Nothing is going up in value but money. To invest money in property is to lose heavily, because as the purchasing power of money goes up the value of property must necessarily go down."

Another prominent citizen said:

"The shrinkage of values must be stopped. It is ruining the country. The gold standard men themselves say that free silver coinage means cheaper money; that is, more of it would be required to buy a specified amount of property. That is what is known by the people as higher prices. Investment does not pay now, because under the gold standard a specified piece of property will not be worth as many dollars hereafter as it is now, on account of the increasing purchasing power of the dollars. This is not a local condition merely, it is universal. It does not pay to buy property, or the labor that produces property. Of course people who have large sums of money are glad to see it increase in value, just the same as people who have a large amount of anything else like to see it increase in value, and like to see conditions that make it more difficult for other people to get it. There is this difference, however, when money increases in value investment is discouraged, and there is a slow and sluggish circulation of money, but when property increases in value everybody wants to invest, and money flows in every channel of business and industry."

A LOGICAL APPEAL.

Minneapolis Times: If this country is able to establish an economic and industrial system with perfect indifference to its relations with other nations, why is it not equally able to establish a currency system entirely independent of other countries? The ability of the nation to do the one plainly implies its ability to do the other. The truth is, Senator Teller stated an historical truth when he said in his farewell address to his party in the St. Louis convention that the convention was "the first gathering of Republicans which confessed the inability of the American people to control their own affairs." And he made a consistent and honest appeal to the American sentiment, as fostered by Republicanism, when he asked the convention if it believed that the American people were either too weak or cowardly to maintain their own financial system commensurate with the greatness of the country, and to do that of their own will. What protectionist could logically and honestly deny the force of this appeal? How can the men who have been saying that the United States can make their own clothes, and their own plows, and their own planos, and their own leather, and their own steel, and their own mowing machines, and raise their own wheat and hay, dispute the proposition that the United States should make their own money?

WILL BE EASILY ELECTED.

The Mesaba Range: Congressman Towne stands by his colors and will refuse a nomination on a gold standard platform. He will run for re-election as an independent candidate and, judging from present appearances, he will be easily elected.

A CLOSE DISTRICT.

Delano Eagle (Rep.): The Sixth district is close on the money question that is for free silver or gold. Mr. Towne may by the assistance of the Democrats and Populists gain enough votes to return him.

THE WEST FOR TELLER.

Detroit, Mich., News: The gold Democrats of the East are going to the Chicago convention bent on the accomplishment of a single purpose—to prevent the nomination of Henry M. Teller. The administration and single standard organs are filling the columns of their editorial pages with arguments to prove that Mr. Teller will have no standing in the convention, and that to speak of the possibility of his nomination is little less than the manifestation of an irrational mind. They are almost willing to swallow free silver, providing Teller can be defeated. At the same time the news columns of these papers are filled with dispatches which declare that a large section of the West stands ready to follow Teller on any ticket. This discrepancy between the news facts and the editorial facts can be accounted for only through the theory that prolonged worship of the single standard has overcome all conception of the truth. The gold wing of the Democracy desires the defeat of Teller in the Democratic convention. The nomination of no other man will so unify the silver strength. The friends of the administration would far rather see the Democratic party wrecked than to see it achieve a victory in a fair fight for free silver.

THEY STAID AWAY.

The Mesaba Range: The silver men, probably a majority of the business men of Biwabik, stand away from the polls, having been warned by the goldites that if they did not approve of the gold standard they were not Republicans and not entitled to vote. They did not appear anxious to vote either, declaring that they were satisfied to let the primary election go by default and vote for Towne when the proper time arrives.

THE PEOPLE AROUSED.

Hibbing News: There are lots of Republicans of the dyed-in-the-wool stripe too who are in sympathy and perfect accord with Congressman Towne in the bold stand he has taken in sacrificing party to uphold his honest convictions. He at least possesses the virtue of sincerity, which is rare in politics nowadays. In addition to these free thinking, independent Republicans, who have taken off the bosses' collars this year to look after their own interest, the woods are full of Democrats—those of the good old Jeffersonian stripe—who will also refuse to obey the crack of the party whip, unless the party adopts a platform of principles calculated to benefit the masses. Party measures don't go this time; the people are aroused.

"WHERE'S MOTHER?"

Bursting in from school or play,
That is what the children say.
Trooping, crowding, big and small
On the threshold, in the hall—
Joining in the constant cry,
Ever as the days go by—
"Where's mother?"

From the weary bed of pain
This same questioning comes again;
From the boy with sparkling eyes,
Bearing home his earliest prize;
From the bronzed and bearded son,
Perils past, and honors won;
"Where's mother?"

Burdened with a lonely task,
One day we may vainly ask,
For the comfort of her face,
For the rest of her embrace;
Let us love her while we may,
Well for us that we can say,
"Where's mother?"

Mother, with untiring hands,
At the post of duty stands,
Patient, seeking not her own,
Anxious for the good alone
Of the children as they cry,
Ever, as the days go by,

ACROSS THE TEA TABLE.

These are days when one longs to go a-sailing, to feel the fresh pure breezes blown over miles and miles of water, to hear the lapping of cool green waves and feel the swift motion of a boat borne rapidly onward. To be abroad upon the waters which in the moonlight have a weird witchery which is like a Circean spell, or in the languorous glow of the summer sun to drift "with dreamful eyes, under the walls of Paradise." The sight and sound of the water these midsummer days is like the music of the Lorelei—it is irresistible. It may be that with a boat lying in cool and shady shallows one seeks to woo the wary fish, or wandering on the shores of lake and stream one listens to the whispers which Celia Thaxter says are "wild and sweet." We have so much to choose from here. This great lake, the highway to the sea, the streams and rivers which come to seek it, and those not distant inland lakes lying in the cool heart of the great forests are so beautifully picturesque. They are a hint to us, that though we live surrounded by all the luxuries of a fin de siecle civilization, we are just upon the borders of a land with the seal of nature still unbroken upon it, untouched by the arts of man. To go "a-fishing" is the longing of the angler, to go a-sailing the delight of the sailor, but for you who sit at home and take vicarious pleasure in roaming—there is a delightful romance by Jean Ingelow, which is now almost old fashioned, and which has been swept aside by the flood of modern literature. I know no more wholesomely clean, sweet, fresh and romantic story of "life on the ocean wave" than she gives in her novel "Off the Skelligs." It is in our library and well worth an effort to secure if you do not already count it among your book friends.

I saw a suggestion not long ago which seems a most excellent idea for home adornment. It is that every room in the house should have its book case or book shelves, and, perhaps, the exception of the dining-room. This is most wise. Particularly is it so in the guest chamber. I have been placed in some very dreary guest chambers, where no book was at hand, and no place for one. It seems incredible that this is so, in these days when magazines and good books cost so little. A room always looks bare without books; even the reception room should have its little allotment; something which can be picked up and looked at for a few moments, if one is kept waiting by a tardy hostess. In the bedroom the book shelves are especially appropriate. We all of us have our bedtime books, or keep an old favorite near to read us to sleep. Bedroom books, if we can believe Agnes Repplier's charming assertions on the subject, are rarely of an exciting nature; they are soothing, slumber-invoking, somnolent in tone, and to be laid aside upon that table de nuit, which stands just at the head of the bed. I wonder how many people realize what a luxury that little table may become. On it is placed the books I speak of, the dainty bedroom candlestick and candle, the silver match safe, the water carafe, which is brought up to the bedroom at night for those thirsty souls who take a drink of water just before retiring, and over which is placed the dainty napkin to keep out microbes and the like. The glass and plate of crackers also have a place. You can then woo slumber in such a fashion that you will sleep soundly all night, for with true human perversity and the knowledge that all these articles are at hand waiting to be used, you will certainly not require them. The small hanging book shelves are extremely pretty for girls' bedrooms. Every girl has her treasures and loved volumes and these shelves are extremely pretty wall decorations filled as they are with all sorts of "girly" things, photographs, pretty cards, hanging bags and best of all the books.

Surely we have no truer poet than John Burroughs, he who sees in the commonest hedge row wilding a matchless beauty, which he depicts so graphically that he opens up a new world to our delighted eyes and understanding. He has taught me the notes and habits of many birds. The haunts of many a shy blossom and given me a broader knowledge of our great mother nature.

Not long since I read his comparison between British and American flowers and those of our own and it was with a little glow of gratitude to him that I laid his poetic paper aside. Just now our meadows are a field of the cloth of gold, belated dandelions are studding the grass tall slender buttercups are waving in the ever restless summer breezes, their satin petals glistening in the sunlight; and yesterday I found a veritable field of daisies in the meadow back of my home. Goldeyed and graceful the first few blossoms were swaying back and forth among the tall grasses. Their feathery dark leaves, a splendid foil for the snowy petals and golden disk. Burroughs says: "The British wild flowers are less beautiful than our own, but more abundant, theirs are less delicate than ours, they have nothing to compare to the intense brilliancy of our cardinal flowers, which almost baffles the eye; nothing with the wild grace of our meadow of mountain lilies, no wood flower so taking to the eye as our painted trillium and lady's slipper, no brookside flower that equals our jewel weed, no rock flower, before which one might pause with the same feeling of admiration as before our columbine, no violet as striking as our bird's-foot violet, no trailing flower that approaches our trailing arbutus, no fern as delicate as our maiden fern, no flowering shrub as sweet as our azaleas. Few of their flowers waste their sweetness on the desert air; they throng the fields, lanes and highways, and are known and seen of all. They bloom on the house-top and wave from the summit of castle walls. Ah, how I should love to walk with Burroughs through the woods. I should take him out to Lester park these days, and show him as dainty a blossom as the trailing arbutus, sweet, fragile, shy and exquisite, that little pink blossom Agassiz mentions in his "Trip to Lake Superior." The twin flower—it grows along the ground like the partridge berry, and from each joint a slender, reddish stem rises aloft which separates and curls over to support two fairy bells of pink. It is exquisitely sweet. Then I should show him the flowering raspberry bushes with their great green leaves as sweet as the blossoms—and those blossoms which are so pure, so sweet, so white and green that they look like white wild roses. I should ask him why the flowers of this region are so rich in perfume—perhaps the lake breezes bring it to them.

That is a tribute to the American wild flower. Have you ever read the tribute of a sympathetic and dispassionate critic of America to the fine flower of our civilization, the American woman. There are few who will not say that Mr. Bryce in his "American Commonwealth" has been fair, lenient to and discerning of our customs and national life. He is especially so in his observations on our social institutions, and in his chapter on the position of woman in America, has a broader grasp of her correct position than any one who preceded or has come after him. He gives her her due in promoting social reforms, benevolence and charity, recognizes her position in the home and society, applauds the sound of her voice in municipal affairs, and altogether pays so gracious a tribute to her independence and capacity for self-help that one is filled with a glow of gratitude, to think that we are able among the hosts of foreign critics to find one who is able to rise to a just and proper conception of all of our institutions, placing as we do, woman in her proper sphere.

American women are no longer to bear the stigma of half invalids. They have learned so rapidly to take their athletics, they are bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked and plump. Especially is this true of Duluth women. If one is too plump and growing stout she knows that proper training in athletics will reduce the surplus to suitable and wished-for proportions; if she is thin, she goes to science to find out a remedy, and hes specialist will give her a regimen. For breakfast, porridge and milk, followed by weak tea, coffee, or cocoa and milk, hot bacon or fish, and a sweet of some sort. English women use orange or other fruit marmalades or jams. At 11 o'clock, a glass of milk, or egg and milk, in fact, a mild eggnog for luncheon, meat of some kind, plenty of potatoes and sweets. No afternoon tea, ah! sad and bitter thought, and now that I think of it, a recent congress of physicians has advised a crusade against the afternoon tea-table. Do not be alarmed, my dear sister. There are always masculine iconoclasts; it is mere jealousy of a peculiarly feminine institution. To be sure, physicans agree that there are deleterious properties lurking in the seductive teapot, but if you are desirous of adding an antidpuis to your charms, smile upon the teapot, and substitute for yourself a cup of cocoa. The usual dinner then follows, with plenty of vegetables and sweets. Drink plenty of pure water between meals—eat fats, sauces, starchy food, butter, gravy, bread and sugar in abundance. Then have a good masseuse rub you with oil two or three times a week. Live in the open air as much as possible, and cultivate placidity of manner.

Just now we are rich in fruits, Californian as well as Eastern or Middle states fruit, so that it is not hard to cater to the appetite of the different members of the household: We are continually finding new and appetizing ways of serving foods. Now-a-days we depend largely on fruit. And whereas, a year or so ago, no summer dinner, which bore the dignity of a function, was ever served without a first course of clams, now we banish them and substitute the delicious little nutmeg melons, filled to the brim and surrounded with ice crushed to look like snow, or a tomato, iced in the same fashion, which has lain in a French dressing until every portion of it is thoroughly permeated with oil and vinegar, salt and pepper. A rather new appetizer is the pineapple, served in the shell. These must be small-sized pines. Wash and cleanse very thoroughly. Trim off the rough places on the bottom, and cut off the leaves from the top. With a very sharp long knife cut out the inside of the pineapple, leaving a wall a quarter of an inch thick. With a silver fork, pick the flesh into small pieces, rejecting the core. Peel two oranges and cut into small thin bits, add this to the pineapple and cover all thickly with sugar and place on the ice for two or three hours. Put the pineapple shell also on the ice. When you wish to serve, place the shell, which has been wiped carefully, on a plate, covered with a dainty doily, fill with the fruit and syrup and serve. It should all be very cold. Sherry may be added, also strawberries, if you wish.

Brandied pineapple is extremely good, and served with ice creams or custard. It is a toothsome addition. Fork it all carefully from the core, after peeling, cut it with a silver knife in small pieces, stew in a rich syrup until soft, or rather until it is done, for it does not soften much, remove and place in the fruit jar and boil the syrup down until it is very rich and thick, then add half this quantity of brandy, pour over the fruit and seal to use as occasion requires; or you can make a rich stew and add sherry. It is a relief sometimes when one tires of the fruits of the temperate zone. It is extremely good chopped fine, with a silver knife, and added to the icing of a cake. Another change, or a use for tropical fruits may be found in figs. These are good served at luncheon. Steam them until they are plump and round, dust thoroughly with powdered sugar, and serve with salted peanuts or almonds.

If you have had a busy day with seamstress or dressmaker, and the grasshopper has become a burden, don't weep with the nervous strain, as you realize that Adam has brought; or is bringing a guest home to dinner, or that a social function demands your presence in blithest of gay good humor. Take off the heavy gown, take out the hairpins and remove the shoes. Brush the hair thoroughly and pin up on top of the head loosely. Secure a bowl of hottest of hot water, put the wash cloth in this, and if the hands can bear the heat, wring it out and press this hot, damp cloth to the back of the neck and to the eyes; repeat this until the tense muscles have begun to relax. Then dash cold water over the face. The water is much more refreshing if you have placed a toilet vinegar or water in it, or a few drops of tincture of benzoin. Lie down for fifteen minutes in a dark room, close the eyes, and don't think. When you rise, drink a cup of hot water or tea, put on fresh underclothes and fresh shoes and stockings, a fresh gown, and have a heart for any fate.

Finally, my dear sisters, and you know that there is always a finally to the longest, driest sermon, open the doors and windows and let the free air of heaven blow through your house and home. Twice in this last week have I gone into tobacco-scented houses which reeked with the stale odor. I know of nothing that I like as much as the odor of a good cigar, but when doors and windows are closed and the smoke hangs heavy and stale in the atmosphere, and stuffy upholstered furniture takes it all up, then I confess I shun the house where closed windows and doors proclaim that it is ill ventilated. The sweet fresh air is too inspiring to permit one to seek an atmosphere less pure. It is so easy to pull the window down from the top, when a man is smoking, and allow a free current of air to pour into the room. It may be a mere thread of a crack, but it will relieve the heated atmosphere in the upper portion of the room and freshen it much more quickly than if opened from the bottom. Take my advice, never go to bed leaving tobacco smoke in a room. Always air the room before you leave it, unless indeed, it is a smoking room, and even then the rules are applicable. —Agate.

ABLE AND POPULAR.

Wabasha Herald: Charles A. Towne, the Duluth congressman, has bolted the Republican party and will run for a re-election as an independent free silver candidate. He is able and popular and is very likely to be re-elected.

WITH GREAT CREDIT.

Delano, Wright county, Eagle (Rep): Mr. Towne has represented Minnesota in the national assembly with great credit. He leaped at one bound to greater prominence than other men in congress had striven for years to attain.

THE YEAR FOR SCHEMERS.

Freeborn County Times: In an uncertain year, the Republican party would not dare to mention such a man as D. M. Clough as a possible candidate for the office of governor; but the certainty of success makes the party careless and allows full play to the machinations of scheming politicians. The assurance that their nominee will be elected to an office of such high trust and responsibility should impress the Republicans with a full sense of their duty and the convention at St. Paul will be open to the gravest charges of insincerity and misrepresentation should it select as its candidate any other than a tried, true and representative man.

THE AMERICAN STANDARD.

Minneapolis Penny Press: In contrast with the Republican gold party in 1896, which declares that the single gold standard of Europe is the American standard, and that it cannot be changed except with European consent, Mr. Blaine took stand with Daniel Webster, who in the Twenty-fourth congress declared: "Gold and silver are the money of the constitution. The constitutional standard of value is established and cannot be overturned. To overturn it would shake the whole system. Gold and silver at rates fixed by congress constitute the legal standard of value in this country and neither congress nor any state has authority to establish any other standard or dispose of this."

HIS FUTURE ALL RIGHT.

Eveleth Star: What will become of Congressman Towne is heard upon all sides. The answer is easy. Any man capable of being heard in congress during a first session as no other man of this generation has been will live on.

Copeland Medical Treatment.

Has Achieved Such Great Success Because it is Systematic, Pleasant and Inexpensive.

To successfully combat chronic diseases time is an essential factor; next to that is proper medication. Medicines taken in a haphazard sort of way will never cure chronic complaints. Like fighting bad weeds you must keep everlastingly at it. In order to be able to keep everlastingly at it or till a cure is effected, two things are to be considered, first the expense, second the kind of treatment. If the treatment is harsh or sickening the patient cannot stand it or at best the condition will get steadily worse.

The secret of the great success of the Copeland perfected system of catarrh and chronic disease treatment lies in the fact that these objectionable features are overcome. The expense is light, so light anyone can afford it and yet it is not cheap treatment but is the best known to the medical world. The treatment is given in a systematic manner and by the most agreeable methods and is repulsive to none, not even the weakest individuals. A small payment each month pays for all medicines and treatment necessary.

The following diseases come under the Copeland specialty treatment:

CATARRH—
All stages of catarrh affecting the head and throat, yield to the Copeland treatment.

DEAFNESS—
Deafness from all causes and of long standing. Discharging ears, noises in the ears, successfully treated by Copeland system.

BRONCHITIS—
Inflammation of the bronchial tubes, a disease so prevalent in this climate yields readily to the Copeland perfected treatment.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH—
Dyspepsia or indigestion usually due to catarrh of the stomach is speedily cured by the Copeland treatment.

RHEUMATISM—
All forms of rheumatism and gout are overcome by a short course of treatment under the Copeland system.

SKIN DISEASES—
The manifold unsightly and disfiguring skin diseases speedily eradicated by the systematic treatment given at the Copeland Medical Institute.

CHILDREN'S DISEASES—
The Copeland treatment is especially adapted to the successful treatment of children suffering from catarrh of the head, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, ear diseases, skin affections or nervous troubles.

In Duluth's Social Circles

The Assembly party last evening was them ost brilliant the organization has ever given, and was a fitting inaugural for the summer season, which is always the gayest with Duluth society. No parties are so pretty as those given in summer and the scene last evening was as beautiful as one could wish to gaze on. The gowns of the ladies were nearly all of light color and the delicate shades and light and airy fabrics under the brilliant lights gave a beautiful effect. Some costumes were remarkable for their beauty.

James C. Geggie, Wells Gilbert, Richard Sellwood, Frank Leach and D. R. McLennan were the reception committee. Hoare's orchestra of ten pieces played and twenty-one numbers were danced.

The attendance of visitors was very large and this, of course, gave special interest to the party. Then, too, nearly all of the young ladies who have been at college during the winter were there. Those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Fagg, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. French, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. James, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stewart Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Silvey, Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Kingsbury, Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Dowse, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Prescott.

Mrs. De Weese, of Chicago; Mrs. F. B. Kellogg, of St. Paul; Mrs. Huntress.

Misses DeCoster, Farrington, Cook, Clark, of St. Paul; Nelson, of Stillwater; Rusk, of Chippewa Falls; Risher, of Pittsburg; Baird, Fogarty, Nellie Fogarty, of Superior; Greatsinger, Elliott, Bull, Ingalls, Graff, MacDougall, Phillips, Wolvin, Clara Bull, Ames, McLaren Lillian Ingalls, Parker, Strayer, Chapin, La Vaque, Spencer, Comstock, Eaton, Sellwood, Simonds, Jennie Magoffin, Fitzgerald, Minnie MacLean, Frazer, Smith.

Messrs. O. C. Hartman, Sellwood, A. Oscar Nelson, of Stillwater Geggie, Frank Leach, Gilbert, Lulley, of Superior; Wade, Winton, Forssman, of Superior; D. R. McLennan, Phillips, Norman, Leach, McKinley, Eckman, Hunter, Smith, of Superior; Risher, of Pittsburg; Eaton, Dalrymple, Miller, Hunter, Macdonald, Leslie, Stocking, MacDougall, McLaren, Boldrick, Hartley, Jacobi, Ames, James, Costello, Reichert, Bywater, Walbank, Parker.

This was the last of the Assembly parties for the season. The organization will be continued next year without a doubt and Duluth society will hope that it will.

• • •

Mrs. Samuel Stewart Bradley will give a tea this evening from 5 to 7 o'clock for Miss DeCoster, of St. Paul, Miss Nelson, of Stillwater, and Miss Greatsinger.

• • •

Social entertainments have been very few this week. There has been a number of little picnics and informal gatherings, but very little beyond these. There seems to be but little boating this year as compared with former seasons. The evenings now are delightful and it is probable that people will soon take to the water.

• • •

A colonial tea, which was very unique and charming, was given at the home of Judge and Mrs. Page Morris on Wednesday evening.

• • •

On Tuesday next at 10 o'clock, Miss Harriet Belle Carey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Carey, of 5131 London road, and Julius Howland Barnes, will be married at the home of the bride's parents. The wedding will be a quiet one. The bride will be attended by her sisters, Misses Gertrude and Martha Carey, and Lucien Barnes and H. B. Earhart will be ushers. Rev. Mr. Tice, of Minneapolis, will be the officiating clergyman. The bridal couple will go East on a wedding trip. They will be at home after Sept. 1 at 1209 London road.

Both of the young people are well known in Duluth. Miss Carey has lived here for many years and has a wide circle of friends. Mr. Barnes is a member of the board of trade and is connected with the grain firm of Brooks & Co.

• • •

Mrs. A. H. Crassweller and Miss Seaton, of 325 Forty-third avenue east, received on Thursday afternoon.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Sagar entertained a few friends at cards on Wednesday evening. Grand was played. Among those presen: were: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Merrill, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. They gathered at the house about 100 strong, bringing with them refreshments and a present consisting of a purse of money. The evening was pleasantly passed and it was 1 o'clock before the party broke up and extended their last congratulations to the couple who had lived so happily mated for so long a term of years.

Was Published Before.

In the March number of Godey's Magazine there was a story entitled "A Dutiful Falsehood," over which appeared the name of Frederic Lee Seixas, who will remembered as a sometime resident of this city, as author. It now appears that this is another instance of great minds running in the same gutter, for the July number of the same magazine contains the following note:

"Notice.—We have learned that the story entitled 'A Dutiful Falsehood,' published in the March number of Godey's Magazine is identical in plot (and nearly so in language) with one that appeared in the April, 1895, number of the Strand Magazine. The MS. of this story was submitted to the editors of Godey's as an original composition, and it was published in good faith without the knowledge of its previous publication. The Godey company wishes to give warning that all perpetrators of such impositions will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law."

Prof. Gentry's Animals.

The intellectual dogs of Professor Gentry's troupe amuse large audiences daily. The star performers are the clown dogs. It takes a good deal more training and perhaps a greater amount of ability in the dog to make a good clown than in an ordinary performer, because of the fact that the strong imitative tendency of the canine has to be combatted. A clown dog is expected to do just what the others do not do, and, like a good many of his human friends, he is by nature disinclined to act on independent lines. Some of the dogs will appear in the role of supes, carrying bark to the ring. The performance this evening will be the last.

CATARRHAL WEAKNESS.

Some Facts That Every Woman Ought to Know.

Catarrh is a very frequent cause of that class of diseases popularly known as female weakness. Catarrh of the pelvic organs produces such a variety of disagreeable and irritating symptoms that many people—in fact the majority of people—have no idea that they are caused by catarrh. A great proportion of the women have some catarrhal weakness which has been called by the various doctors she has consulted as many different names. These women have been treated and have taken medicines with no relief, simply because the remedies are not adapted to catarrh. It is through a mistaken notion as to the real nature of the disease that these medicines have been recommended to them. If all the women who are suffering from any form of female weakness would write to Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, and give him a complete description of their symptoms and the peculiarities of their trouble, he will immediately reply with complete directions for treatment, free of charge.

A book on female diseases, written by Dr. Hartman, will be sent free to any woman who wants it.

THE NATIONAL GUARD.

The Third regiment of the National Guard is now in camp at Lake City. The Duluth companies are well represented, Company H has the largest attendance, sixty-eight men being now in camp, with prospects of more.

A number of Company G boys attempted to run camp Thursday night, and, as a consequence, languished in the guard house. The guard is mounted around our camp in splendid shape, and it is a difficult thing for anyone to cross the lines without being challenged. Up to 11 o'clock no one is challenged in crossing the lines, but after taps have been sounded, no one can get through without having the countersign. If that is not given an arrest follows.

The members of company H have issued a sweeping challenge to any company in the Third regiment of the state guard to compete in any of the following athletic contests: Boxing, wrestling, foot racing, putting the shot, throwing the hammer and dumb-bell lifting.

One of the Duluth companies caused quite a commotion in camp Wednesday evening by leaving the mess hall at supper time and refusing to eat the supper set. There had been some miscalculation as to the mea: served.

The following is the score made at the rifle range Wednesday afternoon at a range of 200 yards:

TWO MORE SUITS FILED.

Validity of the Water Bonds Again Attacked.

Two more suits to overthrow the vote of the people of Duluth on the water bond election were filed in the state district court and the United States court about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. In the United States court case the Municipal Investment company, of Chicago, is plaintiff, and in the district court case William and Charles Tunstends, of Detroit, Mich., and W. McGowan, of Buffalo, are plaintiffs. In substance the complaints are the same, excepting allegations peculiar to the nature of the plaintiffs.

The suit is to secure a permanent injunction preventing the city from going any further under the authority given the municipal government by the last election, on the ground not only of irregularities in the election, but of the impracticability of the scheme. In some respects these cases are different from the Janeway case, principally in the direction of greater completeness and thoroughness.

It is alleged that there was no registration of the voters in the bond election, and that the judges were elected without reference to the law, which provides that only two of the same political following shall be appointed from the same election district. A copy of the ballot is appended to the complaint, and it is alleged that it was not in the form prescribed by law, and that it was misleading because it told the voter that a complete water plant could be erected for $1,856,000. It is alleged that the defective and confusing character of the ballots changed the result of the election, and that the judges engaged in electioneering, leaving their posts for the purpose. It is alleged that some of the judges who were appointed regularly did not appear and that judges were put in who had not the slightest show of authority.

Another complaint is that the returns were not authenticated and signed, as the law prescribes, and another is that in some cases more votes were returned than were actually cast. The court is asked to enjoin the council from receiving bids for the bond issue June 29. It is argued that the proposed plant would cost $4,000,000, and the sum of $1,856,000 is wholly inadequate. It is alleged that competition with the plant of the Duluth Gas and Water company would prevent the city's plant from paying expenses; that the tearing up of the streets resultant upon the construction of a plant would induce typhoid fever, and that the present plant is furnishing pure water.

It is alleged that the council has no power to issue water and light bonds for the construction of a water plant only, and, as a final clincher, that the construction of a plant would irreparably injure the Duluth Gas and Water company. Draper, Davis & Hollister are the attorneys for the plaintiffs in both cases.

FOR THE ORGAN FUND.

Entertainment Next Friday By the Cathedral Choir.

The Cathedral choir, under the direction of Mrs. McDonald-Schultz, will give a grand Fourth of July celebration at Cathedral Association hall, next Friday evening, July 3, the funds to go for the purchase of a pipe organ. Heart Trouble Quickly Cured.

A Convincing Testimonial.

MISS ELLA KURTZ.

"For 19 years I suffered from heart trouble. During that time I was treated by five different physicians. All of them claimed that I could not be cured. I was greatly troubled with shortness of breath, palpitation and pain in the side. If I became excited, or exerted myself in the least, the pain in my side became very severe. At times it seemed as though needles were shooting through my side. Sometime in the month of November last, I commenced taking and since then I have improved steadily. I can now sleep on my left side, something I had never been able to do before. I can walk without being fatigued, and am in much better health than ever before. I would recommend all sufferers from heart trouble to try Dr. Miles' invaluable remedy without delay." MISS ELLA KURTZ, 518 Wright St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Dr. Miles Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1, 6 bottles for $5, or it will be sent, prepaid, on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

THE ROUNDER.

The traveling men, especially the Michigan street crowd, were feeling first-class yesterday and said that they could have walloped the grocers worse than they did on Wednesday, but they had compassion and let them down easy. They have got a little story afloat about a Michigan street dealer who went to the picnic, drank too much—water, fell asleep and missed the last train. He woke up and started afoot for home, but the way was long and the flesh was weak and—well, he took off his coat, hat, stockings and shoes and lay down by the wayside for another snooze. Again he awoke and this time reached home in a somewhat dazed condition at an early hour. His better half met him at the door, and said: "John, (that is a fake name), where on earth are your clothes?" John gazed at himself, then at his spouse, and said: "S'sh my (hic) dear; I left them up (hic) stairs!"

"Why, John; you haven't been up stairs!" exclaimed the wife, in answer.

"Then, my (hic) dear; I must have (hic) left them down stairs," and he turned from the door and started out on a hunt for his clothes which were eventually found and which he is now wearing as usual.

Capt. J. W. Miller was in a reminiscent mood yesterday, and during the course of an interesting talk with the Rounder, he said: "In February, 1843, I was before the mast in the barque Hesper, Capt. Frank Pense, commander. We had just left the port of Tulchu and some two degrees to the southward of Valparaiso in Chili. I was 17 ears old, just the age when everything impresses itself on the mind never to be effaced, but forgotten for a time and coming back in our latter years as vividly as when first seen. There were three ships of us, the ships Brighton and Callao and the Hesper. All three ships were cruising for sperm whales. It was good whaling ground around between Juan Fernandez and Mursufuera, the islands being about ninety miles apart, both islands being in plain sight when cruising between them, but not in sight from the ship's deck when close to either, but in sight of each other from the tops of the mountains, either of which is over 3000 feet high.

"I shall never forget how my thoughts ran flat when I landed on the island of Juan Fernandez. I could see Robinson Crusoe and his man Friday in every valley, behind every bush. I shut my eyes and pinched myself to see if I was alive or dreaming. My boyish imagination was all on fire. I visited his caves on the side of the mountain facing the little bay where we landed (for there were five or six of them). We found plenty of wild peaches and quinces growing in the valleys, but not ripe enough to eat, also wild turnips, currants, parsnips, etc., said to have been planted or sown by Selkirk himself 150 years before. There were plenty of wild goats and dogs, but no other kind of animals that we saw. There were half a dozen of us boys, two from each ship. I often wonder if there are any of them living besides myself. How we did run and race over the hills and valleys during the one day that we were ashore on liberty! The next two days were spent getting wood and water and then away cruising for sperm whales. My memory was awakened by reading John M. Elliott's graphic description of the island taken from the Youths' Companion some time ago."

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Oshkosh races yesterday were won by Two Strike, Leo Ward and Natalina.

At Washburn, Wis., the case against ex-County Treasurer Knight for the embezzlement of county funds was dismissed in the circuit court owing to a technicality in the information. The case against A. C. Probert for embezzlement is on trial.

At Red Oak, Iowa, John R. Gentry went an exhibition mile yesterday in 2:08½.

John W. Kelly, the "Rolling Mill Man," of the variety stage and a catchy ballad writer is dead at New York, aged 42 years, of acute gastritis.

During a storm in Alliance, Ohio, a meteor weighing about nine pounds fell near the house of Thomas Richards and was recovered about a foot below the earth's surface. The meteor is very hard, blows from a sledge hammer falling to make any impression upon it.

The presidential election in Chili so far as results are at present known, shows 147 electors favorable to Frederic Errazurras, and 135 for Vincente Reyes, president of the senate and Liberal candidate for president.

The revenue cutter Winona intercepted the steamers City of Key West and Three Friends, both having Cuban illibustering expeditions on board, near Florida reef, and brought them back to Key West.

The headquarters of the A. P. A. have been removed from Chicago to Washington.

Floods on the Ohio river have done much damage to river bank dwellers and hundreds of shanties have been swept away.

At Canon City, Col., William Holt, Albert Noble and Dominico Romero were hanged last night for the murder of Policeman John Solomon in November last. The new hanging machine was used successfully.

At Buffalo, N. Y., the supreme lodge A. O. U. W. adjourned late yesterday to meet the second Tuesday in June next in Milwaukee.

A long and bitter struggle involving a scheme of white men to secure control of the Omaha Indian lands in Nebraska was ended at Washington yesterday by Secretary Smith's approval of two leases to Mrs. Rosalie Farley of over twenty thousand acres of land in the Omaha reservation. Mrs. Farley is a member of the tribe.

The postoffice at Fort Howard, Wis., has been consolidated with the Green Bay postoffice.

At Granite Falls, Minn., a man giving his name at Burt Hittman decoyed an 11-year-old son of Sheriff Jenswold into the woods, robbed him of his watch and brutally kicked and pounded him, leaving him for dead on the ground. The boy recovered, gave the alarm and the fiend was captured, identified and placed in jail just in time to avoid lynching.

Ambassador Eustis has arrived in New York on the St. Paul from Paris to spend his vacation of 160 days in Louisiana.

At Philadelphia the trial of James B. Gentry, accused of murdering Madge Yorke, an actress, was closed last night. The jury retired at 9:30 o'clock and court adjourned until this morning.

Frank Gallo, an Italian sentenced to be electrocuted for murder two years ago, but granted a new trial on almost the eve of his execution, was found not guilty at Rochester, N. Y., yesterday.

[ETCHED THE WRONG MAN.

A well-known etcher recently set himself the task of etching a portrait of Andrew Lang, the English poet, says the Chicago Chronicle. He ordered a photograph of his subject from one of the Broadway dealers. When it arrived he made an elaborate etching, of which an art dealer bought a few copies. Lang is a man about 40 years of age, with a long, slender face and a drooping mustache. The etching was of a man nearly 50 years of age, with a round face and full beard. Someone who knew Lang saw the picture, and declared that his friend must have grown that beard very quickly, and if the picture was correct he had become remarkably fat. The dealer at once began an investigation, and found that the photograph importer had sent the etcher a picture of Sir Andrew Long, a prominent importer of Glasgow, and a jolly gentleman, who is said to have laughed heartily when he heard of the mistake. The artist has promised to etch another portrait. Meanwhile some American bibliophiles have decorated their libraries with pictures of the Scotch importer, who prefers jollity to poetry.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

The Best Remedy in the World---It Makes People Well.

There is one true specific for diseases arising from impure blood and a debilitated nervous system, and that is Paine's celery compound, so generally prescribed by physicians. It is probably the most remarkable remedy that the scientific research of this country has produced. Professor Edward E. Phelps, M.D., LL.D., of Dartmouth college, first prescribed what is now known the world over as Paine's celery compound, a positive cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, liver complaint, neuralgia, rheumatism, all nervous diseases and kidney troubles. For the latter Paine's celery compound has succeeded again and again where everything else has failed.

PAVILION OPERA.

"Olivette" Will Be Produced Tomorrow Afternoon.

The Gonzalez Opera company enters its fourth week at the Pavilion tomorrow afternoon with "Olivette" as the bill, which will be continued throughout the week, including a Thursday matinee. This opera has always been a favorite in Duluth, and no doubt next week's presentation will prove no exception. It will be excellently cast, perhaps more satisfactorily so than any production the company has given. The staging will also be a special feature.

The company will be greatly strengthened by the addition of Miss Mamie Taylor, who for several seasons was the prima donna at the Tivoli, in San Francisco. Miss Taylor arrived from New York Monday evening and has been in active rehearsal with the company for the past week. She will appear as Bathilde, countess of Ronsillon, in "Olivette." Miss Taylor is particularly adapted for male characters, her Boccaccio being considered one of the best creations on the comic opera stage. "Boccaccio" will be presented following "Olivette," for which elaborate preparations are now being made. Miss Taylor is a sister-in-law of W. H. Kohnle, the comedian, who was such a favorite here with the Wilbur Opera company.

Harry Menier, the aeronaut, will endeavor to make two more ascensions and parachute leaps, giving one tonight and one tomorrow night at 8 o'clock from the grounds at the rear of the Pavilion. So far he has experienced much difficulty in inflating the balloon, but tonight and tomorrow night, if the weather is favorable, he hopes to overcome that and ascend to a much greater height than he has already done.

Negotiations are now pending for the early appearance at the Pavilion of the Hurst living pictures, which will be given in connection with the opera.

In Memoriam James Sullivan.

In view of the death of our friend and member, James Sullivan, the Retail Liquor Dealers' association desires to give voice to its feelings by the following resolutions:

Resolved, that in the untimely decease of our friend James Sullivan our society in particular and our city in general have suffered a great loss.

Resolved, that we mourn his death most sincerely and shall forever hold his memory in honor and offer our profound sympathy to the family in their great bereavement.

Resolved, that this association attend the funeral of the deceased; also

Resolved, that the above resolutions be spread upon the records of this association, that a copy be sent to the family of the deceased and that they be published in a daily paper of our city.

HOT RACE

The North West and the City of Buffalo Tested Speed.

The Cleveland Boat Broke All the Previous Records From Buffalo.

Coal Cargoes Scarce and Another Drop in Ore Rates Anticipated.

Cleveland, O., June 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—A struggle for supremacy took place last night in a race between the two most modern and magnificent steamships on the great lakes. The course was laid between this city and Buffalo. The steamer North West, brought out two seasons ago by the Northern Steamship company, and the City of Buffalo, launched this spring and owned by the Cleveland and Buffalo Navigation company, were the two vessels pitted against each other. The North West left Buffalo for Cleveland last evening bound for Cleveland with the City of Buffalo, for the same point, ten minutes behind her. The City of Buffalo arrived here one-half hour before the North West, lowering all previous records between the two cities. Her time was about eight hours.

COAL CARGOES SCARCE.

Buffalo, June 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is talk of a better demand for coal next month, but no real promise of it. Shippers have little coal and next to no orders.

THE SITUATION DULL.

Cleveland, June 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Some of the brokers were of the opinion that a few more cargoes were offering this morning at the reduced freight rates, but the situation is still very dull, and the outlook discouraging. Unless there is some improvement in grain, another drop in the Lake Superior ore rate will come with the opening of next week.

NEGLECT TO ANSWER SIGNALS.

Complaint has been made that the captain of the Harvey Brown did not return the Darius Cole's signal when they met in the Grosse Point channel last Saturday. Captains say some of the freight steamers are in the habit of paying no attention to signals, that cross-whistling is becoming too common, and that at such times alarum signals, which are required by law, are rarely ever given.

PORT OF DULUTH.

Arrived—Centurion, J. C. Lockwood, Wallula, Nyanza, R. P. Ranney, City of Venice, Iroquois, C. B. Lockwood, Lake Erie, coal; Rockefeller, S. C. Reynolds, E. B. Hale, Adriatic, Lake Erie, light for ore; barge 137, dry dock; North Land, Buffalo, pass; United Empire, Sarnia, pass and mdse; Kearsarge, Buffalo, light for grain; J. V. Moran, Buffalo, mdse.

Nicholas, Northern Wave, Arabia, Stevens, Buffalo, flour; Glengarry, Dunsmuir, Minnedosa, Kingston, grain; J. F. Eddy, Monteagle, Buffalo, grain; North Land, Buffalo, pass.

MARINE NOTES.

There were a number of wheat charters to Buffalo made on the board this morning at 2¼ cents, but the rate is not at all firm, and the fact that there are quite a number of vessels seeking grain cargoes beyond the demand is likely to result in a slump.

Duluth clearances—Cort, 2200 tons ore, Rockefeller, 3300 tons ore, Livingstone, 2175 tons ore, Curry, 3200 tons ore, Vulcan, 2000 tons ore, Russ, 2000 tons ore, Buffalo; Nicholas, 29,500 barrels flour, Stevens, 7000 barrels flour, Buffalo.

At Port Huron a diver found the shoe of the steamer R. P. Fitzgerald broken and the rudder pintle gone, in consequence of striking Corsica shoal.

Capt. J. B. Lamont telegraphed Samuel Lippert, of Cleveland, that George B. Percival, a brother-in-law of Lippert's, was drowned five miles off Tawas light, in Lake Huron, last Sunday morning.

A Sheet Anchor

In all conditions of muscular wasting, nervous debility and fever, good in shock and fainting, a valuable help to dyspeptics.

This eulogy, one of many, has been pronounced upon that sterling stimulant,

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

A Sheet Anchor holds a ship from drifting on the rocks. So does this medicinal whiskey retard consumption of tissue, and thus prevents the body from drifting into a condition of disease. Is not this worth remembering at a time when a change of temperature may be fraught with danger to blood and nerves?

No wide-awake druggist or grocer thinks of being out of Duffy's pure malt.

RACES POSTPONED.

Bicycle Contests Will Come Off Monday Afternoon.

The Marshall-Wells races were to start at 2:30 this afternoon, and there was a large number of entries in each event, so a very interesting afternoon was looked for. All the races were to finish in front of the grand stand. There were nineteen entries in the one and five mile handicaps, thirteen in the quarter mile, fourteen in the boys' race, and two tandems. The entries were as follows, thirty-nine in all:

D. R. Burnett, J. P. Burnett, Walter Murphy, E. A. Thomson, Richmond Smith, J. C. Taylor, G. W. Potter, Albert Seitz, A. S. Williams, Edward McLaughlin, E. Satter, A. N. Wall, John Locking, Herman Schmidt, E. G. Palo, Harry S. Carroll, G. R. Neilson, Laurenz R. Harris, David Kemp, S. A. Pickett, Charles Benson, Richard Close, P. L. Hasselblad, B. A. Erickson, Eddy Congdon, Richard Johnson, Richard Mather, Chester Blanchard, George Pitcher, Walter Butchart, Thomas B. Bradley, M. A. Tweeden, Willie Steiner, Bayi Butchart, Oscar Giffert, Wilson Bradley, Lou Peterson, George Rosenbusch, Fred Miller.

The two Burnetts, Walter Murphy, Richmond Smith, J. C. Taylor and G. W. Potter were scratched in the five-mile handicap, and in the mile handicap the same men and E. A. Thompson and A. S. Williams were scratched. In the quarter-mile dash, which finished at the grand stand, there were two heats and the first three men in each qualified for the final heat.

The bicycle races, owing to the storm and wet condition of the road, have been postponed to Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Towne Club Will Be Formed on Monday Evening.

A meeting for the organization of a Towne club will be held on Monday evening next, at the old postoffice building, on Fourth avenue west. It will be called to order at 8 o'clock sharp.

With everything carefully prepared in advance, it was to be expected that the Merriam-Clough gang would have things so fixed for their close corporation convention that there would be no possibility of criticism. But even with the advantage of time for figuring and the aid of several vest pocket memorandum books containing data carefully compiled by the shrewdest and most judicious of the lieutenants of the gang, there is lots of kicking. The Swedes are calling attention to the fact that while the Norweglan retainers have been bountifully remembered, there is but one delegate of Swedish birth on each of the delegations. These are E. G. Swanstrom, who was placed on the delegation to St. Paul, and August Lofgren, of West Duluth, who was named to go to St. Cloud. This is blunder in diplomacy.

The Swedes, however, it is said, will vote the silver ticket this fall.

RATIFY

The Republicans of Ohio Crowd to the Canton Ratification.

McKinley's Home City Filled With Thousands of Enthusiasts.

Monster Torchlight Parade to Wind Up With Tonight.

Canton, Ohio, June 27.—All through the morning people came crowding into the city from the country and from surrounding towns. None of the early arrivals came as organizations, but all were full of enthusiasm, and nearly every vehicle had several flags or other articles of decoration in honor of the ratification meeting which the occupants came to attend. Many accepted the invitation of the committee to come on horseback, and when the parade moves tonight there is every prospect of a splendid equestrian section.

About noon the jollifiers coming by the trains began to arrive. Regular trains for which excursion tickets were sold poured in on the stations heavily laden and steamed out with almost empty cars, Canton seemingly being the destination of every wayfarer. But it was several hours later when the immense crowd, which has filled Canton to overflowing, began to arrive in large numbers. First came Steubenville with delegations from its contributary country. Youngstown followed closely, and all the while special trains on two roads were coming in from Cleveland, bearing the Tippecanoe club and Northern Ohio delegations.

It was shortly after 3 o'clock when the program now in progress began on the big city lot in the center of the city, temporarily vacant in anticipation of a new market house. The plot is 200 feet square and surrounded on all sides by broad streets. From the substantial speakers' stand almost to the walls of the houses on every side the mass of humanity is crowded, straining eyes to see and ears to hear.

With musical interruptions by bands and glee clubs, addresses are to be delivered by Congressman C. H. Grosvenor, R. W. Taylor, Charles Emory Smith, of Philadelphia; James S. Hoyt, of Cleveland; President Wolcott of Cleveland Tippecanoe club; Judge M. R. Day, president, followed by a response from Maj. McKinley. Congressman Grosvenor reached the city this morning and is a guest at the McKinley home. Congressman Taylor has been with Canton friends all day, and the others came with the Clevelanders this afternoon.

Tonight there is to be a monster illuminated parade with fire works, music and cannonading. Maj. McKinley will review this parade from his home.

ITALY AND BRAZIL.

Diplomatic Difficulties About to Be Adjusted.

Rio de Janeiro, June 3, via New York, June 27.—Since the revolution of 1893-94 the republic of Brazil has had a great number of diplomatic difficulties with Italy, in many instances arising from claims made for indemnity, as a result of the execution of Italian subjects during the revolution. Consequently the diplomatic relations between Italy and Brazil during a certain period of last year were upon the point of being interrupted.

In February last, however, an understanding was reached between the two powers, by which it was decided to submit the claims of Italy to the arbitration of the president of the principal chambers of commerce of the United States of America who are desirous of going to Brazil in order to study the question of improving the commercial relations between Brazil and the United States. The minister for foreign affairs of Brazil answered this question today, saying that the Brazilians would be most happy to see the American delegates among them, and that the Brazilian government will do all in its power to facilitate the accomplishment of their mission.

The Brazilian minister of foreign affairs has notified the chamber of deputies that Brazil is connected nearly all the South American republics by the tributary streams of the Amazon and La Plata rivers and has with them many commercial interests which cannot be controlled by an autonomical regime.

NEW ARMY TENTS.

Waterproof and to Be Colored Brown.

A new shelter tent has been devised by Lieut. C. W. Abbott, Jr., of the Twelfth United States infantry. Lieut. Abbott's tent is a combination poncho and shelter tent, and is designed to be used for both. The materials, instead of being canvas, like the present tent, will be of a waterproofed material, says the Philadelphia Times. The shelter tent is undoubtedly one of the most useful and practical pants of the equipage and it seems a little strange that Pennsylvania has not adopted it as part of the regular equipment before this. Whether Lieut. Abbott's tent is an improvement over the present one or not remains to be confirmed by a practical test in the field. It is the lieutenant's intention to test his invention at this year's encampment of the Rhode Island troops, with which state he is on duty.

Another recent invention in tents is that of Maj. Charles W. Williams, of the quartermaster's department, and which has already been patented by that officer. It is an improvement over the present conical wall tent. Maj. Williams' patent consists of a hollow steel tube to take the place of the present wooden pole, the lower end of which has a telescopic arrangement and fits over the Sibley tent stove, the latter setting within the legs of the tripod. The telescopic arrangement allows for the heightening or lowering of the tent by means of the tripod without disturbing the stove. The merits of this invention are obvious. First, the economy of space is secured. With the present tent it is necessary to have the stove on the outside of the tripod, and the joints of stovepipe were simply extra baggage. Ventilation is secured in the present tent by means of the canvas cap, secured over the apex by means of guy ropes. In the Williams tent this is secured by means of an apex of tin, which at once acts as a snow and rain excluder, ventilator and a spark arrester.

Maj. Williams submitted his plan to the department some time ago, and it was looked upon so favorably at Washington that he was directed to patent it at once and manufacture a number of them for practical test in the army. The reports of the various officers who used the tents have been received at Washington, and are unanimous in pronouncing them far superior to the present pattern. With the Williams patent stovepipe hole it is possible to heat the tent to any desired temperature, something that is absolutely impossible under the old conditions.

The subject of tentage, by the way, is one that has received considerable attention in the army of late. Col. Merriam has very pronounced and radical views regarding the army canvas. Instead of adhering to time-honored white he suggests that the color be made more hardy, for service, and less conspicuous, dark brown or green being the favored colors for the tents.

It seems that the colonel's reasons for this change are better than those with which the conservative officer can oppose him. After white canvas has seen a little service it is far from being a thing of beauty, and the cleaner and whiter they are the more conspicuous do they appear at night, while on the other hand it would be next to impossible to locate the position of an enemy encamped with the green shelter tent by their canvas.

Of course it will be urged that the dye necessary to use in securing this condition will materially shorten the "life" of the tent, but such an assertion would first have to be proved by practical tests, and we venture to say that if the dyers once entered into competition with the object of securing a harmless dye we would soon have them claiming that the life of the canvas had improved rather than deteriorated.

What has become of the plans to raise the four companies of engineers and one company of signal men authorized and referred to in general order, No. 34, Harrisburg, June 15, 1895? Our need for engineers is not so pressing, and they would not be missed if we never heard from them but the importance of a thoroughly equipped and well instructed signal corps is something that the great state of Pennsylvania should have as an auxiliary to her present National Guard organization.

NO MORE CRYING BABIES.

Though the sound of a baby crying is never agreeable music even to the most devoted mother, it has been held for centuries that this was an affliction from which there was no escape, says the New York Mercury. It has remained for the very new women who are in charge of a well known New York nursery to discover that an infant's screams are wholly superfluous in a well-regulated home. This is the method by which discontented babies are persuaded to hold their peace. As soon as a child begins to cry the nurse catches it up, holds it gently and places her hand over its nose and mouth so that it cannot breathe. The crying ceases directly and the child is allowed to breathe freely again. Should it a second time attempt to scream the same simple and effectual method is applied. This is repeated till the baby imagines that the painful stoppage of the breath is caused by its own efforts to scream, and so is careful to keep quiet.

The nurses attest that this regime works to a charm, that the most well-bred quiet is always preserved in the nursery, and that the self control exhibited by tots of three months old, even when in actual pain and distress, is something remarkable. Roaring will therefore be eliminated from the accomplishments of the modern baby.

FEMALE TOURISTS.

Many Things Made For Their Benefit.

No longer need the woman who travels sigh over the thought of crushed gowns, ruined bonnets and the lack of home comforts. The modern trunk and bag are so perfectly equipped that even the woman possessing flimsy gowns and no maid finds traveling robbed of half its terrors, says the New York Journal.

The up-to-date traveling bag, though it may be conventional enough as to its outside appearance, is a marvel when it is opened. It has been built on the plan of economy of space, and some of the newest bags have been known to contain as many as forty-five different articles. Not only are there leathern slots provided for all a woman's toilet accessories, but her traveling clock has a place of its own. Her address book, her laundry list and a diary are tucked within a leather case at the side of the bag. A thermometer is in evidence, as well as a drinking cup and alcohol lamp. On the outside of the bag is an additional leather case which holds her night gown, bed slippers and wrapper.

The new bags come in many shapes and in a variety of leathers. For general traveling the most convenient size is a bag sixteen inches in length. The bags most in favor are mounted either in aluminum or gilt. The newest color is known as amber. Which is a sort of yellowish brown, though dull green and deep blue bags are novelties of the season. As to the lining, some of the satchels are being lined with pigskin, others with heavy watered silk.

The alligator cabin bags are convenient for steamer use. They come in tan, brown and black, with gilt trimmings, and have a square top, which allows of more room than the ordinary bag.

Square-topped bags are those most in favor. The greater number of the best bags are decorated with the owner's monogram in silver or gold. In silver it may be bought for $4. It is not attached to the center of the bag, but in the left-hand corner.

All the trunks have a flat top and are much longer than they are wide. This is not only a convenience to the baggage man, who wishes to pile one trunk on top of the other, but is a source of great happiness to the woman who longs for a window seat in her hotel bedroom. The flat-topped trunk, covered with a steamer rug and blanket with pillows, is a resting place not to be despised.

The Saratoga trunk, which not long ago was looked upon with wonder because of its many conveniences, is now considered out of date. The skirt trunk has succeeded it in fashionable favor. This skirt trunk is canvas-covered, and varies in length from forty to forty-five inches. It is fitted with four trays, for the holding of dress skirts. Each tray is large enough to hold two skirts. At the bottom of this trunk, instead of at the top, the hat box is found. It is divided into two partitions. In prices these trunks vary from $12 to $45.

A sort of twin to the dress trunk is the trunk made purposely for the safe carrying of waists. It looks just like the skirt trunk, and has the same number of pressed paper trays, each tray being provided with tapes for holding the waists in place.

The newest hat trunks are a great convenience to the woman whose vacation is to be spent at a fashionable summer resort. They are of basswood, canvas covered and brass mounted—in fact, a miniature edition of the skirt trunk. The inside walls of the trunk are provided with an array of steel hooks. To these hooks the crown of the hat is securely fastened, and then by the means of a new invention a wire protector spreads itself over every hat, screening it from all harm. These hat trunks packed with the most delicate millinery creations have been tried and not found wanting.

A most convenient addition to these new trunks is an oil silk bag fitted into the carved cover of one of the boxes and just large enough to hold a week's allowance of soiled linen. The bag is made with a draw string and the linen is thus kept together and away from the rest of the contents of the trunk.

It isn't only the new woman who is carrying a dress suit case these days. Every summer girl will own one. When something larger than a satchel is needed and yet a trunk is out of the question, the dress suit case is equal to the emergency.

As all luggage on the other side is charged for according to its weight, it behooves the woman who is planning a European trip to look well to the weight of the trunk which will accompany her on the journey. The best steamer trunks are basswood, canvas covered. They should not be higher than thirteen inches, so that they will slip easily under the berth. These trunks are made with but one tray and vary in price from $3.50 to $25.

For steamer use a bag called an English fold-all will be of great convenience. It is made of canvas and opens by being unrolled. Inside there is a large pocket for the steamer rug and smaller pockets for necessary toilet articles. There is also a place for umbrellas and an outside case for writing paper and magazines.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION

—OF—

Duluth & Southwestern Railway Company.

The persons whose names are hereunto subscribed hereby associate themselves together to become a body corporate under the laws of the state of Minnesota for the purpose hereinafter stated, and to that end hereby sign, adopt and publish the following articles of incorporation:

Article first. The corporate name of this corporation shall be "Duluth & Southwestern Railway Company."

Article second. The general nature of its business shall be the location, construction, purchase, lease, equipment, maintenance and operation of a line of railway of standard guage, with one or more tracks or lines of road, from a point on the southern boundary line of the state of Minnesota, to be hereafter selected by the board of directors, thence in a general northerly direction through the state of Minnesota, to the city of Red Wing, in said state, and thence in a general northerly direction through the states of Minnesota and Wisconsin, to and into the city of Duluth, in said state of Minnesota, together with such branch line or lines as may hereafter be deemed desirable by the directors of the corporation, and such spurs, switches, sidetracks, turnouts and lateral lines, as they may deem necessary, and the leasing, construction, maintenance and operation, acquirement, purchase and ownership of such equipment, right-of-way, machine shops, foundries, furnaces, car shops, warehouses, storehouses, elevators, depots, structures, piers, docks, slips, wharves, bridges and other property, as may be necessary for the proper management, operation or equipment of the corporation; also to lease, purchase, acquire and hold all such lands as may be necessary for the proper construction and operation of its lines of railway, to construct, maintain, operate and own one or more lines of telegraph in connection with its said lines, to lease, purchase, or otherwise acquire and adopt as its own the line or lines of any other railway or telegraph company constructed or partially constructed, and to enter into running connections with any such company in such manner as may be deemed necessary and expedient by said directors.

Article third. The principal place of business of said corporation shall be at the city of Duluth, Minnesota, but it may maintain such offices for the transaction of its business, both within and without the said state, as the conveniences or necessities of its business may require.

Article fourth. The time of commencement of this corporation shall be July 2, 1896, and it shall continue for the period of fifty years.

Article fifth. The amount of capital stock of this corporation shall be three hundred thousand dollars, divided into three thousand ($000) shares of one hundred dollars ($100) each, to be paid in from time to time in such manner and installments as the board of directors may determine.

Article sixth. The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which this corporation shall at any time be subject shall be the sum of ten million dollars ($10,000,000.)

Article seventh. The names and places of residence of the persons forming this association for incorporation are as follows: Charles H. Graves, George W. Buck, James T. Hale, Percy S. Anneke and W. Buchanan, of the city of Duluth, Minnesota, and Lucius F. Hubbard, of the city of Red Wing, Minnesota.

Article eighth. The names of the first board of directors of this corporation are as follows: Charles H. Graves, George W. Buck, James T. Hale, Percy S. Anneke and W. Buchanan, of Duluth, Minnesota, and Lucius F. Hubbard, of Red Wing, Minnesota.

The government of the corporation and the management of its affairs shall be vested in a board of directors consisting of six persons, and in such officers and agents as such board may select. All of such directors and officers shall be elected annually on the second Tuesday in June in each year. The first meeting of this corporation shall be held at Duluth, Minnesota, on July 2, 1896, at which time directors and officers shall be chosen to serve until the said second Tuesday in June, 1897. If the organization of the corporation be not completed by said July 2, 1896, said meeting may be adjourned by any of the persons herein named as the first board of directors to such other time as may be most convenient for a majority of such board.

Article ninth. The number of shares of the capital stock of the corporation shall be three thousand (3000), and the par value of each share shall be one hundred dollars ($100.)

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and affixed our seals, this 19th day of June, 1896.

BE GOOD TO YOUR WIFE!

Why ask her to stand over a hot stove these summer days destroying her health and making one miserable in every way!

Buy a Gas Range and Enjoy Life, We Will Sell You One at Actual Factory Cost.

The Following Are Some of the Reasons Why You Should Use Gas For Cooking Purposes.

BECAUSE It is cheaper than coal; because it is always ready, and a fire can be had at a moment's notice.
It saves labor and there is no carrying of coal, wood, ashes or making of dirt.
It bakes, cooks, boils and roasts to perfection. You have full control of the fire, and the heat can be increased or diminished to suit.
It prevents all scorching and burning.

BECAUSE Meats roasted or boiled by gas retain their flavor and do not lose near so much weight as when prepared on other fires.
There is no possible danger of explosion as with gasoline or other liquid stoves. Any child can operate a gas stove with perfect safety.
Gas stoves are practically indestructible and you do not have to be continually buying repairs as with coal stoves.
If you ever use a gas stove you will never cook with any other kind.

Try One for Six Months and Be Convinced of the Truth of the Foregoing.

We Have Reduced the Price of Fuel Gas to $1.00 per Thousand Net.

In St. Paul it Costs $1.30; Minneapolis $1.50.

ONE FIRM

Two Wholesale Grocery Firms of Duluth to Consolidate Aug. 1.

Stone-Ordean and Wells-Stone Companies Will Become One.

New Firm Will Be One of Great Strength and Aggressiveness.

The announcement was made today that arrangements have been made for the consolidation of the two wholesale grocery firms, the Stone-Ordean company and the Wells-Stone Mercantile company. It will go into effect Aug. 1, and after that date the companies will be known as the Stone-Ordean-Wells company.

The consolidated company will occupy the building in which the Stone-Ordean company is now established and the building which the Wells-Stone company now occupies will eventually be vacated although it may be used for a time. F. A. Patrick, the present general manager of the Stone-Ordean company will be manager of the new company.

This consolidation gives Duluth one of the very strongest wholesale grocery firms in the Northwest, if not in the entire country. In the Stone-Ordean company there are Messrs. A. L. Ordean, William R. Stone, F. A. Patrick and J. E. Granger, and in the Wells-Stone Mercantile company the Wright & Davis interest, among the wealthiest in Michigan, the Wells estate and the Stone estate. The combination of these interests will give great strength.

The Stone-Ordean company is the oldest wholesale house in the city of Duluth. It was established in 1880 and was known as W. R. Stone & Co. Two or three years later A. L. Ordean came here and allied himself with Mr. Stone and the firm became Stone & Ordean. F. A. Patrick joined it in 1891 and it was then incorporated as the Stone-Ordean company.

The Wells-Stone Mercantile company's house was located here in 1887 as a branch of the Saginaw house of the same name. C. C. Prindle and B. E. Wells have been in charge of it ever since.

Both companies have built up an immense business and today rank among the solid and substantial wholesale houses of the Northwest. The career of each has been marked by activity and enterprise, and loyalty to Duluth.

The policy of the consolidated company will be an aggressive one and the ample capitalization and strong backing which it will have will enable it to carry this out.

Mary Will Leave Town.

Mary Holohon, whose face has been tanned by the burning sun of Syria, of which country she is a native, was arrested in West Duluth today by Officer Peterson for peddling without a license. She is one of the many itinerants that invade that end of town and vex the souls of rent paying merchants by their competition. Mary said she would take out a permit if she had the money, but claimed she could not afford it. She grew obstinate when requested to take out a license or go out of business, and defied the whole police department in a mixture of Syrian and English, uttered in a voice that needed oiling.

Secretary Force tried to dam up the flood of words, but reached overwhelmed. Capt. Thompson next tried it and had to swim out. Finally Mary was given a seat in the women's department to cool off. As she was taken in she became solicitous about her satchel, and when it was given her she dug up a box containing enough money to pay for several licenses. A compromise was finally effected by Mint of Jailer Drannen's diplomacy, by the terms of which Mary is to leave town on Monday.

Convention is Over.

The immigration convention came to a close at Grand Rapids yesterday and the visiting speakers and state officers arrived in Duluth today. P. B. Groat, the state secretary, spoke in high terms of the manner in which the convention was conducted, and the entertainment given those in attendance by the people of Grand Rapids.

The Municipal Court.

In the municipal court this morning John Brown, John McDermid, John O'Brien and Ed Perry, of the box car brigade, were let off with suspended sentences. Thomas Devine, charged with drunkenness, pleaded guilty. He told the court that he was about to go into the woods and had his supplies all purchased for the trip. In consideration of his early departure he was let off on payment of costs.

Is Again Postponed.

The argument in the case of C. S. Wilson, charged with riding a bicycle without a light, on the constitutionality of the ordinance on which the prosecution is based, has been postponed by agreement, on account of the absence of Assistant City Attorney Holmes. It will be brought up at a time to be fixed by stipulation.

York Plant Case.

The special term of the district court this morning contained a number of cases, but none of them were of importance, and the calendar was nearly completed at noon. The only case of any importance were those of the St. Louis Bay Land company and the New Duluth Land company against the Ironton Structural Steel company and James E. York. The matter came up on demurrers to the complaints, on the ground that there were defects in party plaintiff. The demurrers were being argued before Judge Ensign at noon.

Taken to Stillwater.

I. Grettum, the land attorney who was found guilty of defrauding the United States government, and was sentenced Thursday in the United States court to spend a year in the state penitentiary at Stillwater, and to pay a fine of $500, was taken to Stillwater this afternoon to enter upon his sentence.

A GREAT BARGAIN.

Dismissed the Case.

The case of Peter Canfield, guardian of William Canfield, against the Northern Pacific railroad was disposed of quickly after the evidence was in. Judge Lochren ordered a verdict for the defendant, the evidence being insufficient to sustain the complaint.

This concluded the work of the circuit court. In the admiralty case of Dan McDonald vs. Seamer Porter Chamberlain the evidence was read and the case argued and submitted.

Court was adjourned today, but will reconvene at some future date.

Lost His Wheels.

Joseph H. Weinberger, a dealer in second-hand goods, residing at 342 St. Croix avenue, appeared in the city attorney's office yesterday afternoon and wanted warrants issued for everybody in his neighborhood. The nature of Mr. Weinberger's demand at first led to the supposition that he had wheels. But he had not, and that was why he was hot. Somebody had removed them and carried them off, and without them the wagon which is necessary to his business was useless. Mr. Weinberger was advised to go out and secure some evidence as to the proper person to arrest. At last accounts he was looking for the man with the wheels.

Secured a Fine Position.

Frank M. Stephenson, who left here in May to make his home in Pittsburg, has been offered and accepted the position of baritone singer in the choir of Christ church, in that city. This is the finest Methodist church in America, and was erected a year or so ago at a cost of $400,000. The position was coveted by many singers, and Mr. Stephenson's success in securing it is a testimonial to his excellence as a singer. With his ability Duluth people are well acquainted. A fine salary goes with it. His Duluth friends will be greatly pleased to hear of this, and his teacher, Mark C. Baker, is especially gratified.

Bicycle Company Sued.

The C. J. Smith & Sons company has begun suit in the district court against the Western Union Bicycle Manufacturing company to recover $5201 in goods. The Marshall-Wells Hardware company was garnisheed for the amount. Cash Williams & Chester are the attorneys.

CORNELL

Great Varsity Boat Race at Poughkeepsie Won By Cornell.

Harvard Second, Pennsylvania Third, and Columbia a Bad Fourth.

Race Won in the Remarkable Time of 19 Minutes, 29 Seconds.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 27.—The Harvard, Cornell, Columbia, Pennsylvania 4-mile straightaway boat race on the Hudson yesterday was won by Cornell's eight in the phenomenal time of 19 m. 29 sec.; Harvard second, Pennsylvania third and Columbia fourth.

Cornell won the freshman race three days ago, in which the order of finishing was strangely the same. The race was a hard one for two miles, but after that Cornell had it its own way. Harvard tried its old scheme of tiring out Cornell at the start, but failed. Cornell rowed a clean race, without a break of any kind. Pennsylvania splashed and rowed badly, and Columbia, for some unknown reason, was not in the race after the first quarter mile. The Harvard crew rowed splendidly, but was outclassed. The conditions were favorable. The water was smooth, the wind undistributing and the ebb tide in favor of very good time.

The four crews lined up for positions about 5:30. There was a good deal of trouble, however. Just as the referee had asked the usual questions about getting ready, Capt. Bullard, of Harvard, raised his hand and complained that Columbia's fake boat was below the line. Cornell and Pennsylvania agreed to this, and the referee ordered it back.

The referee took a last critical look at the crews, and then sent them off with the pistol. All struck the water together, but Columbia only got a half stroke. Cornell and Harvard were both fully prepared, and got the advantage of a long sweep. Harvard began its old tactics of a quick stroke to fire its opponents, and for a while it seemed to work well. All had started with a 40 stroke, which Harvard tempered down to 38 at the first quarter, while Cornell had come down to 38. Columbia seemed to have a leaden weight on its boat, and it hung in the water as if it was not intending to try and keep with the others. Pennsylvania was rowing 39 to the minute, but it was a ragged stroke that rocked the boat and a recovery that stopped it. Both Harvard and Cornell had settled down to work in a methodical way, and both, pulling a 38 stroke, were working with a will. Harvard's boat poked its nose ahead of Cornell at the half mile, then, slowly, inch by inch, the Harvard boat crept by the Cornell boat until it stern just lapped the latter's nose.

F. W. FREEBORN.
(Captain of Cornell.)

It was noticeable that the Cornell men never changed their stroke, but worked steadily at 38 and 37 strokes, with good back work and beautiful clean blade action, and as they neared the two mile mark this work was noticeable in its effect. Harvard's men had put all their hard work in their arms and legs, and it was beginning to tell, for they could not get the stern of their boat away from Cornell's, and gradually Cornell, with their backs working from the sliding seat to the backs of their necks, and with a motion that was beautiful to see, began to gain their first pound. Harvard tried desperately to hold the lead, but as the two boats flashed by the two-mile mark Cornell had shoved herself forward on even terms and was still going. The number two man in Harvard's boat was splashing and the stroke wavered a little, but with bull-dog grit they stuck to their work. But that steady 37-stroke-to-the-minute swing, with the stronger stroke and the neat, clean blade work, was telling, and inch by inch the bow of the Cornell boat went forward from the bow of the Harvard boat. Pennsylvania was splashing on at a 37 stroke gait, three lengths behind Harvard, and Columbia was hopelessly beaten.

So they went down the third mile, Harvard pulling desperately and somewhat brettily, but Cornell putting an inch of distance at every stroke between the boats. The long stroke and the clever back work of Cornell was counting. It was evident that Harvard was beaten, for at the third mile there was an evident plenty of reserve force in the Cornell boat, yet, there was not a bit of it in Harvard's boat. Her men were using every bit of strength in their endeavor to make a good showing. Getting into the last mile Cornell was still pulling a 37-stroke without a splash or a quaver, their boat fairly shooting along, while Harvard's man looked as if some of them were about to fall out of their seat. Cornell at the three and a half mile had increased her lead to about four boat lengths and Pennsylvania was clearing up some of the water between them and Harvard in such a clipping manner that the crimson adherents feared for their crews's hold on second place. The last half mile was uneventful. Cornell crossed the line at the pace she had set at the start, a winner by five lengths over Harvard in the record-breaking time of 19 minutes and 29 seconds, and not a man in her boat showed distress. Pennsylvania crawled in at a good pace about four lengths behind Harvard and Columbia paddled in at least twenty lengths in the rear.

Three or four men in the Harvard boat showed signs of distress, but in the other boats there was no trouble. It was conceded on all sides that Cornell had rowed a remarkable race and one that from a scientific standpoint was notable in the annals of boating.

Cornell's coach, Courtney, is supremely happy. His men carted him about on the tops of their shoulders till he was compelled to cry for mercy, and late in the evening a mob of "rooters," 300 strong, headed by a drum corps, marched from the Nelson house to Riverville, where the Cornell crews have been living, and serenaded him far into the night. Upon the return of the defeated Quaker crew to its quarters, Coach Ellis was surrounded by newspaper men, and he then gave out the following statement, but would not affix his signature:

"I am perfectly satisfied with the work of my 'Varsity crew today. While they were fairly defeated, yet they should not be ashamed of this fast time, even in the face of defeat. I noticed, especially, how the crews of Columbia and Harvard were on the point of collapse at the finish, so much so that they were taken home on their launches, while the Cornell and Pennsylvania eights rowed back to their quarters like the men that they are. There is one consolation in our defeat, however, and that is in the fact that my senior crew, composed of fellows who have never rowed in a race in their lives, more than defeated the Columbia crew, who, with one exception, are the same men who put up such a good race last year."

Coach Courtney, of the Cornell crew, made the following statement: "I am agreeably surprised at the result. I did not anticipate that the 'Varsity crew would do such good work. In fact, I had not the confidence in them that I had in the freshmen, because, during the practice week on Cayuga lake before leaving for Poughkeepsie, the best time which the 'Varsity crew could get over the three-mile course in was 16 minutes and 40 seconds, and to be up to the standard they should have accomplished it in 16:16. The Harvard and Pennsylvania crews have not much of which to be ashamed. Their work was very good, and they were game to the last. As to Columbia's work, I have nothing to say."

It is doubtful if any set of men ever took defeat so much to heart. Capt. Prentiss almost shed tears as he said: "We were fairly beaten; that is all I have to say."

Others of the crew were hardly more communicative, though a number of them expressed the opinion that their miserable showing was entirely to improper training. Coach Mumford, of the Harvard crew, said: "I am very well pleased with the work of the Harvard 'Varsity. They rowed a great race. The contest was so close that it resolved itself into a question of generalship, and our men were at fault in the first mile. If, having reached the first mile, and having found themselves right at the front, they had settled into a steady stroke and had not attempted to hurry into a lead, everything would have been all right."

The official time, as given, is: Cornell, 19:29; Harvard, 19:32; Pennsylvania, 20:11; Columbia, 21:35.

SPIRIT LAKE AND VICINITY.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Payne spent several days the past week visiting at Duluth.

Mrs. Cossello and daughter and Mr. Webber, Jr., spent Sunday last at Spirit Lake, the guests of Mrs. R. A. Folkerts.

Lewis Lemoot visited Superior this week.

D. E. Case, of Duluth, was a caller at the lake Sunday.

Mrs. W. H. Smith, of Smithville, visited Duluth Saturday.

Mrs. John Robinson and daughter, of West Duluth, were visiting friends at Smithville and Spirit Lake Saturday last.

Mrs. D. Sullivan was quite ill for a few days this week.

Miss Carlson, of New Duluth, was calling on friends at Smithville last Friday.

The Misses Rena and Minnie Lenroot, of Duluth, are visiting their sister, Mrs. E. Swenson.

Mrs. Amundson and children, of Ironton, were callers at Duluth Monday.

Mrs. S. Johnson, of Duluth, is visiting with Mrs. Albert Swenson.

Dennis Sullivan, Jr., paid his parents a visit Friday afternoon.

August Lundberg, of West Duluth an employe of the Ironton Structural Steel company, had his thumb badly hurt Monday at the works.

Allen Nelson, of Duluth, is visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Nelson, this week.

Mrs. Andrew Nelson and son spent Tuesday at Duluth.

Mrs. Burrell visited Duluth Saturday last.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Swenson and Mr. and Mrs. Edwards were among the number who went from here to hear Hon. Charles A. Towne Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Burns, of Duluth, visited friends at Spirit Lake Sunday.

Mr. Holt will speak at the school house next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. All are invited.

Harry Phillips was doing business at Duluth Monday.

Eleven cars of new machinery have been unloaded at the Ironton plant the past week.

A. Krueschke, of Duluth, and his friends are enjoying camp life at Spirl. Island.

Mrs. Douglass and daughter spent several days at Duluth the past week.

A little daughter came to brighten the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lindstrom, of Smithville, Friday evening last.

Miss Lillian Dash, of Duluth, was visiting Mrs. M. S. Brink Sunday.

The Misses Viola and Ida Boyd, of Duluth, were visiting at Smithville this week, the guests of their sister, Mrs. A. Overton.

Mrs. G. Johnson and Mrs. Folkerts were callers at the city this week.

V. A. Dash went to Stillwater on official business Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Sullivan were called to the city Wednesday evening by the sudden death of Mr. Sullivan's brother.

JUDGE LOCHREN'S PIPE.

The retirement of Judge Lochren as commissioner of pensions recalls many interesting anecdotes in connection with his devotion to the habit of smoking, says the Washington Star. For years the judge's pipe has been almost as celebrated as the owner. Whenever he could possibly spare a short time from the duties of his position he would withdraw to an inner room, take a mammoth pipe that is estimated to hold anywhere from a quarter to a pound of tobacco, and forget everything in the soothing whiffs of smoke that arose therefrom.

During his previous service on the bench it is related that Judge Lochren would on every opportunity go to his private room and drive away the vexations of lawyers and obdurate witnesses by copious indulgence in the weed. The size of the utensil used has been a matter of equal wonder along with the frequent and persistent recourse to it as a means of lightening official care and invoking rest and forgetfulness.

PROGRESS

Much Has Been Made in the Method of Fighting Fires.

Something of the Primitive Style of Extinguishing Conflagrations.

English Used "Squirts" Holding About Three Quarts of Water.

The matter of ways and means of fighting fire has been vexing the brains of men since a time almost as far back as when the first pair were fired out of the garden of Eden. It will be remembered that after that fire it was a flaming sword that prevented our ancestors from regaining the ground they had lost. And the fight between man and fire has been on ever since. The twain alluded to were at a disadvantage, for neither of them was equipped in what would now be regarded as a complete manner, and it is well known that to fight fire successfully hose is required.

It was discovered at an early day that water would quench fire—except such as is commonly supposed to rage eternally in the throats of Kentucky colonels. This was abandoned, however, and it was divined that the only remaining problem was to get the water to the fire in the most expeditious way. As one apprehends the sagacity that brought the human mind to this point, on the road of discovery and improvement, it is readily seen that the advancement of the triumphal car of progress has not been confined to our own times, and that our forefathers, whom we rather affect to consider well meaning but a little slow, really recorded to the credit of their wisdom and ingenuity achievements as great as the circumventing of the Australian ballot. And no small amount of gray brain matter has been consumed in laying plans to hold in subjection fire, the best of servants and the worst of masters.

The ancient Romans, when a fire broke out in their city, sat on the fence—it will be recalled that defense of home is frequently spoken of—and let her flicker. They had an apparatus called a sipho, according to some. The sipho is nowhere described, however, and other authorities assert that a sipho was merely a pipe for the conveyance of water for domestic uses. However, even if they had a specifically designed fire apparatus it did not amount to much, for Seneca says such was the height of the houses that it was impossible to save them in case of fire.

FIRST SUGGESTION OF HOSE.

Apollodorus, an architect, was the first to suggest a hose, it is said. His device is described as the "gut of an ox having a leg with water affixed." This would not cut much of a figure in case of fire in a modern sky-scraper. The English and French, in early times, relied almost wholly on strict preventive measures, no adequate fire fighting machinery having been devised. In England, the curfew rung at 8 o'clock, was the signal for all fires to be extinguished—to have a light after then meant trouble. In Duluth, not having a light after that time has recently caused trouble. Such are the changes wrought by time.

In Germany, improvements in the use of water, for fire extinguishing purposes progressed rapidly. Squirts as now "for fires" are noted as having been employed in Augsburg very early in the seventeenth century. Konigshofen had an engine, the description of which is not given, about the year 1617, and Nuremberg boasted of one in 1657. They were both hand engines, of course. The one in Nuremberg is described as having been mounted on a sledge 10 feet long and 4 feet broad, which was drawn by two horses. It was provided with a cistern 8 feet long, 4 feet high and 2 feet wide. It was operated by twenty-eight men and threw a stream to a height of eighty feet. The cylinders were laid horizontally in a box.

In the king's library at Paris, in 1684, there was a single cylinder pump that threw a stream to a great height. It was furnished with an air chamber, the first in use on fire engines. In the same city, in the latter part of the seventeenth century, there were maintained for fire protection seventeen "portable pumps," in charge of a special officer.

The first hose was of leather. It was invented in Amsterdam in 1670 by two Dutchman of the name of Van der Heyde, which name has a very appropriate sound. These gentlemen also invented a suction pipe and published a book on fire fighting. The name of the work is "Beschrijving der Munolijks Int Genoot-schen Slang-brand Spuiten." It is said that Chief Black never goes to a fire without this handy reference book in his pocket. If he is in a special hurry, he does not stop to gather up all the title.

ENGLISH ARE SLOW.

The English did not take hold of the Dutch invention for some time, which is somewhat strange as they have at times manifested a disposition to take all the Dutch had. The English used hand squirts. These were syringes of brass, holding two or three quarts of water. It required three men to run one. Two held it and the third pushed the piston home. Sometimes, owing to the unsteadiness of the manipulators, the thing skewed and the stream went into the ear of one or the other of the holders. The squirt, on such an occasion, came in handy as a club. The offending fireman was carried off on a shutter, while the offended one was hung up somewhere by the heels to cool off or allow the water to drain out of his ear. These interruptions in the efforts of the department did not usually make much difference in the result as the fires in those days burned themselves out anyway. When the syringe was empty they returned to the engine house and refilled it at the water barrel. Sometimes when a company's house was distant from the blaze they resorted to the house of some other company more conveniently located. This practice led to trouble owing to the rivalry between the companies, which was so keen as to render the saving of property a secondary consideration. Feuds between the companies occurred over this matter, during which they burned each other's houses over their heads. It was one of these feuds that inspired the song "You Can't Holler Down My Rain Water Barrel."

The old-fashioned hand fire-engine was hailed in England at the close of the seventeenth century as a triumph of human ingenuity, and the ne plus ultra of fire fighting machines.

THE CENTRAL CANAL.

Various Reasons Urged in Favor of Its Construction.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Having given much thought to the idea of a central canal for Duluth harbor, I wish to state a few facts which seem to me not to have been thoroughly considered by those bodies who have taken action on the subject. In a project of this nature it is always difficult to harmonize the various conflicting interests, and it must be expected that some will be injured while others benefited. The greatest good to the greatest number is the principle upon which the writer will try to discuss this question.

First, from a commercial standpoint. All will admit that a canal much broader than those at present existing would be much preferable as far as entering or leaving the harbor is concerned. The question is narrowed down to the distance from the harbor entrance to the docks where the cargoes of the various craft are unloaded or received. All the territory above Connor's and Rice's Points and the greater part along their outer sides will be much nearer to the proposed central canal than the present ones. That portion of the water front from Lake avenue to the vicinity of Fifth avenue west will be somewhat farther, but not enough to counterbalance the great benefits to be derived from having the large area on Minnesota Point north of the new entrance made available for docks.

Another thing which has not been touched on is the source of delay and even danger for the main entrance to be in such close proximity to the end of the docks when this becomes the great city we all think it will, and the present traffic is greatly increased. It has been suggested that the canal should be even farther north than at present, but no reason is given therefor. No doubt this opinion was given without serious thought. Would they have the canal directly in line with the ends of the docks or at the upper end of the Lake avenue slip? The writer believes the question should be settled for the future, not for the present. From this standpoint it would seem that the advantages more than compensate for the disadvantages of the change, even taking the narrow view of Duluth for Duluth, considering the whole water front from the lake to Fond du Lac.

Second, as regards ice. Everyone who has lived in Duluth a number of years knows that as a general thing the bay is free from ice before the opening of lake navigation. It is not uncommon for boats to be taken across to Superior weeks before the opening of the lake. It would seem no difficulty from this cause need be feared by the change proposed.

Third, the sanitary aspects. This is the only objection brought forward that deserves serious consideration, and it must be admitted is of paramount importance. Will the opening proposed cause a fouling of the two ends of the harbor? The large steamers coming into the Allouez bay end will probably cause sufficient current in the long southerly arm to keep that in good condition. At the Duluth end the storm water sewers of the city bring down a limited quantity of sand and mud that quickly settles to the bottom, soon after being discharged into the head of the slips. The sanitary sewers carrying all the house drainage discharge into the lake east of the Point. Considering the small amount of foreign matter entering the harbor from this end, it is questionable if any serious trouble would occur even with the present canal closed; and with this remaining open it is not reasonable to suppose the conditions would vary materially from those now existing.

It might be found desirable to bridge the present openings at a sufficient height above the water surface to permit of their use for the passage of tugs and rafts. The question as to whether there would be sufficient water to keep the new canal of the requisite depth without the present canals, as now existing, needs careful investigation, but there is every reason to believe that they could be left open wide enough to make no perceptible change in the sanitary conditions now prevailing. E. W. Lewis.

A FINE LEGAL POINT.

This is an after dinner story told by a well known lawyer the other evening, illustrative of legal difficulties that may arise even in the carrying out of the most amicable contracts, says the Philadelphia Record:

There were once four brothers, who had inherited a storage warehouse from their father, and who equally divided the property between them. Among the appurtenances thereto was a cat, a finanimal, excellent for mousing, and this too, was divided, the elder brother owning the right front quarter, the second brother the left front quarter, and the two younger brothers the two hind quarters. Now, unfortunately, the cat in one of its nocturnal prowls injured the right front paw and the elder brother attended to that portion of his property by binding the injured member with a greased rag. The cat thankful for this relief to its suffering, went to sleep contentedly before the fire, but in the midst of its slumbers a falling coal ignited the rag and the animal, howling with agony, dashed through the warehouse, and, coming into contact with some combustibles, set the building on fire.

When the loss came to be figured out the three younger brothers wished to throw it all upon the elder upon the ground that had he not tied up his part of the cat with the inflammable rag the building would not have been destroyed. He on the contrary, contended that had the cat only been possessed of the front right paw, his property, it would have stood still and burned to death. It was the three other paws that caused the damage. The brothers argued the case until they died, but could never reach an agreement.

TOURISTS IN PALESTINE.

In a recent report British Consul Dickson says that the occupation and government of Egypt by the English has had a marked effect on Palestine, says the New York Mercury. Many tourists who spend the winter in Cairo and who formerly went up the Nile now make a tour of the Holy Land instead.

As a result of this increase in the number of visitors there have been numerous hotels started, which offer excellent accommodations. Several of them may be found in Jerusalem, and others are in Mount Carmel, Nazareth, Jaffa and Tiberius. But the natives still regard tourists as legitimate prey, and while they do not rob them openly, as they formerly did they take methods of getting the money none the less effective and fully as exasperating.

Small in size, but great in results. DeWitt's Little Early Risers act gently but thoroughly, curing indigestion, dyspepsia and constipation. Small pill, safe pill, best pill. S. F. Boyce.

CHURCHES

An Armenian Missionary to Preach at Pilgrim Church Tomorrow.

Rev. Daniel Shepardson, Jr., Will Preach His Final Sermons.

Children's Day Services at the Unitarian Church in the Morning.

The service in Pilgrim Congregational church tomorrow evening will be of remarkable interest. Rev. D. A. Richardson, of Erzroom, Turkey in Asia, will give an address illustrated with stereopticon views of the country and the scenes of the Armenian massacres. Erzroom is in the heart of Armenia. Mr. Richardson, although an American, was born there, and has been laboring seven years as a missionary of the American board on that field. He is well qualified to speak of what has been going on during the past terrible years. The service will be at 8 o'clock. In the morning Rev. C. H. Patton, the pastor, will preach as usual.

Rev. Daniel Shepardson, Jr., Ph. D., the wheel-chair evangelist, who has been preaching and holding Bible classes so successfully for the past six weeks in the First Baptist church and elsewhere in the city, will preach for the last time in this city tomorrow morning and evening in the First Baptist church. Morning subject, "Unity in Diversity." Evening subject, "David, an Exile." On Tuesday, Mr. Shepardson expects to go East via the lakes to Cleveland where he will continue his work in Ohio. During his stay in the city much interest has been awakened in the churches where he has preached and many will regret his departure and wish him continued success as he travels over this broad land in his wheel-chair.

The annual children's service will be held at the Unitarian church at 10:45 a. m., and the congregation and Sunday school will unite in the service. Rev. F. C. Southworth will preach on "The Power of Habit."

At the First Methodist church tomorrow morning Rev. Dr. Humason will preach at 10:30 o'clock on "Jacob's Ladder," and in the evening at 8 o'clock on "Under the Juniper Tree." Morning class at 9:45 o'clock. Epworth league at 6:45 p. m. Evening class at 6:45 o'clock. Sunday school at 12 m. Reading room open afternoon and evening.

At the cathedral tomorrow there will be low mass at 7, 8 and 9 a. m. with instructions at each. High mass at 10:30 a. m. with sermon, by Father Cornott. Baptisms and blessings at 2 p. m. Sunday school and benediction at 3 p. m. In the evening at 7:30 there will be benediction and sermon by Rev. T. Corbett. At high mass the choir will render the following program, singing La Hache's "Missa Pro Pace:"

"Asperges Me" .....
Choir.

"Kyrie" .....
Misses Annie Carroll and Mae Kennedy and choir.

"Gloria" .....
Choir.

"Gratias" .....
Mrs. McDonald-Schultz.

"Qui Tollis" .....
John Bergin.

"Credo" .....
Choir.

"Visibilium" .....
James Lyan.

"Et Incarnatus Est" .....
Mr. Schultz and choir.

"Et Resurrexit" .....
Miss Margaret Jones and J. D. Sattler.

"Et Inspiritum" .....
Franz Schultz.

Offertory—"O Salutaris" .....La Hache
James Lynn.

"Sanctus" .....
Mrs. Schultz and choir.

"Agnus Dei" .....
Mrs. Schultz, J. D. Sattler and Franz Schultz.

"Dona Nobis" .....
Choir.

Chorus—"Praise Ye the Lord," from "Queen Esther" .....
Choir.

At the First Presbyterian church, the pastor, Rev. T. H. Cleland, will preach at 10:30 a. m. and 8 p. m. Communion in the morning. The evening theme will be "Shipwrecked by Policy."

At St. Paul's Episcopal church there will be holy communion at 8 a. m. Sunday school at 10 a. m. Morning prayer and sermon at 11 a. m. and evening prayer and sermon at 7:30 p. m.

At the First Christian church, corner Fourth street and Fifth avenue west, services will be at 10:30 a. m. and 8 p. m. The preaching will be by the pastor, Robert Grieve. Topics for morning, "The Christian in the World," and for evening, "The Foundations of Belief." Bible school at 12 m. Y. P. S. C. E. at 6:45 p. m.

At the Bethel on Lake avenue south, the morning service will be at 10:30 o'clock. In the evening at 7:45 o'clock Children's day will be observed and Evangelist S. F. Wishard will preach. Sunday school at 3 p. m. Y. P. S. C. E. at 6:45 p. m.

Rev. T. M. Findley will preach at 10:45 a. m. at the Second Presbyterian church on "Followers of God." The evening sermon will be on "Over Confidence."

At St. James' church, West Duluth, first mass will be at 8:30 a. m. and high mass with sermon, by Father Mackey, at 10:30. Baptisms at 2 p. m. Vespers and sermon at 7:30 p. m. Examinations for first holy communion and confirmation at 2:30 p. m.

At St. John's English Lutheran church, S. W. Kuhns, pastor, there will be morning service at 10:30 and vespers with sermon at 8 p. m. Sunday school at 11:45 a. m. Luther league at 7:15 p. m.

At Hazelwood Park Presbyterian church Rev. J. M. Anderson will conduct services at 3 p. m. Sunday school at 2 p. m.

At Highland Park Presbyterian church there will be children's service at 7:45 p. m. conducted by M. Newman. Sunday school at 11 p. m.

Mrs. G. C. Hull, secretary of the St. Cloud rescue home, will address the meeting for men at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian association tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Subject, "Social Purity."

THE BICYCLE ORDINANCE.

Suggestions For Having it More Strictly Observed.

To the Editor of The Herald:

One of the most complex problems which presents itself to every municipality today is the bicycle. By some it has been treated as a joke, by others it has been taken too seriously, but the average city council seems to have gradually awakened to the fact that the wheel is here to stay, and have promptly proceeded to make the most of it. One by one they have fallen into line and restricted the speed of riders, enforced the use of bells and other similar devices, with the addition of a lantern at night. In nearly every city in the land, and in some of the states, the wheel is being carefully hedged about with laws which are made for the protection of the public—riders of the wheel included—for it would be absurd to claim that even wheelmen are not benefited thereby. Some cities have gone farther than this and assessed the bicycle as personal property (which is all right) and imposed a license in addition. It is even proposed to levy a tax for the benefit of the roads, and, in short, to get as much out of it as possible. In the majority of cases, Mr. Editor, the bicycle seems to have been regarded as a dangerous animal, which had to be guarded by the heavy palings of the law, and its owner made to pay a goodly license for having it in his possession. In spite of all this, the bicycle has thrived and waxed numerous and continued to multiply.

Thanks to the common council of our own city, riders of the bicycle have now one ordinance decidedly in their favor, and a few are debating whether it is expedient to ask for another. It is generally believed that the ordinance passed Monday night will remain a dead letter unless emphasized by a resolution instructing policemen to be as industrious in looking out for broken glass and carpet tack fiends as they have been in arresting riders of lampless wheels. It is but the work of a second to throw a bottle or piece of glass into the street, when there is no one nigh to hinder, and the indignant victim is out of pocket just the same to pay for his puncture. Nor is the policeman any the wiser if the deed is done when he is a block away. Unless the police or some other department is instructed to go so far as to remove from the street any thing that will damage a bicycle, the ordinance referred to will remain nearly, if not quite, obsolete. The matter of a bicycle track is now being agitated in many places, and it seems as if it would be a wise plan to talk the matter over here in Duluth and decide what should be done.

A large percentage of the wheelmen seem to choose the space between the street car tracks. They probably do this because they are hindered by fewer turns and pedestrians. This track is especially advantageous, for it is impossible for a footman to reach the center of the street before a rider can see him and give the alarm. If this track were designated as a right-of-way, it would be necessary to restrict further the speed of wheels while passing street cars at the crossings. It would also be necessary to have the paving repaired in a number of places where paving blocks are above or below the right grade. Mr. Editor, the bicycle is the only vehicle now in use which does not injure a roadway. If it is deemed best to ask the owners of such vehicles to help pay for road making and other public improvements, is it at all strange or unreasonable that these owners shall expect our roads to be so constructed as to meet their requirements?

It is still an undecided question to what extent a city is liable for damages to wheelmen when caused by defective roadways, but it is a question over which the heads of our city governments should begin to ponder. The matter of a bicycle track is also one of considerable importance, and the writer would like to see the question agitated.

As The Herald has from time to time remarked, the scorcher should be suppressed, and to this end would it not be a good plan for Duluth to follow in the footsteps of a number of other Western cities and appoint special policemen without pay from the members of the Duluth Bicycle club and instruct them to arrest every scorcher in sight.

THE MESABA MINES.

Good Progress is Being Made at the Hale.

At the Hale W. E. Dorwin, the contractor, is now making good progress, says the Mesaba Range. A second level in the pit is being opened up, and soon a large face of ore will be ready for the shovels. The milling system of mining has been abandoned entirely, as it was the means of mixing too much sand with the ore. George M. Wood has a large force of men and teams at work stripping at both the east and west ends of the cut. It is proposed soon to move the railroad track and strip the ore south of the "horse" of rock along the south side of the present pit. This rock will have to be removed, but when it is, a large body of ore will be opened up for mining. All indications are that the Hale will yet prove to be not only a big mine, but one of the best on the range.

Orders were received at the Cincinnati last Thursday to resume operations at shaft 2, and ore is now going forward from both shafts. Sinking in shaft 1 is still in progress.

T. F. Cole, general manager for Corrigan, McKinney & Co., was here last week. It was thought that when he arrived something definite would be known as to the resumption of work at the Williams mine, but such was not the fact. The local management, however, expects orders to start up any day.

Edward Sweeney, of Crystal Falls, Mich., who has been running some diamond drill in the neighborhood of Evelith, has arrived in Biwabik, having secured a contract to do some drilling for the Minesota Ore company on the Cincinnati mine.

THE TEMPLE OF SERPENTS.

The small town of Werda, in the kingdom of Dahomey, is celebrated for a loathsome den called the Temple of Serpents, says the Chicago Chronicle. It is a long building dedicated to the priests and mystery men of the kingdom, and in it they keep thousands of snakes of all kinds and sizes. These slimy, crawling creatures literally own the village, as well as the temple, which has been erected for their special accommodation, and may be seen hanging from the rafters and door posts of any house in the town. In Werda to kill a serpent is a crime punishable by death. The serpents in the sacred temple are fed by a regular corps of hunters, who are paid for their services out of the public exchequer.

A FARCE

The Assessment of Mining Properties in the Township of Biwabik.

Ridiculously Low Valuations Have Been Placed on the Various Mines.

County Board Should Raise the Valuations to More Reasonable Amounts.

The assessment of mining properties in the township of Biwabik, as made by Assessor McGilvery and as approved by the township board, is as follows:

Mine.	Amount.
Biwabik	$60,080
Canton	38,000
Duluth	30,040
Williams	30,040
Cincinnati	30,040
Hale	30,040
McKinley	30,040

The Mesaba Range, published at Biwabik, thus comments on the above: How the assessor arrived at the figures it is difficult to understand—neither does he offer any explanation, except that he says he understands all mining property in the county has been assessed on the same basis and that the county board will not raise these valuations. If it is a fact that the county authorities have given assessors to understand that valuations are to be thus and so, perhaps the local assessor is not to be blamed for following instructions, but whoever is responsible for such a ridiculous assessment must bear the onus of having turned a grave public duty into a howling farce.

There was evidently no attempt to arrive at even an approximate valuation of the different properties. Why the $40 was added to the $30,000 is a stumper. Why the Biwabik mine should only be assessed at double the amount of the Williams or the Cincinnati is an unsolved problem. Why the Canton, with its thousands of dollars' worth of surface improvements, should only be given a small advance over the Hale is an example that would vex a college professor to solve. Why the McKinley mine, with millions of tons of ore in sight, should bear an equal valuation with the Duluth, having only a small strip of ore, is another stunner. Somebody must have worked his brain awful hard.

Take the Biwabik mine as an example. Let somebody offer J. M. Williams $1,000,000 for his interest in that property and he would be put away with a wave of the hand; let him offer Mr. Rockefeller $2,000,000 for the Consolidated Interest, he would undoubtedly be informed that owing to the burden was heavy to carry the Standard oil magnate would be more humane than to transfer it to other shoulders at that price. The merchantable ore in sight at the Biwabik has been estimated as high as 28,000,000 tons. The lowest estimate is 20,000,000. Figuring on the latter estimate, the fee owner and the original lessee (the Consolidated) will each receive 25 cents per ton, or $5,000,000 a total of $10,000,000 from this one property—and yet it is assessed at $60,080. The output of the mine this year alone if it reaches the allotment of 350,000 tons, will bring the fee owner and the Consolidated a total of $175,000—say nothing of the profit to the operators. If the output reaches but 200,000 tons the royalty owners will receive this year $100,000 in clean cash for which they give absolutely nothing in return—and yet the entire property is assessed at $60,080 (don't fail to notice the $80).

What is true of the Biwabik is also true in a measure of all the other properties. But some of them have not one-tenth of the value of others—yet they are assessed practically all alike.

The Range is no stickler for heavy valuations just now, because under present arrangements some of the operators are compelled to pay the tax, and it would be satisfied with a moderate assessment until the laws can be so changed as to compel the fee owners and royalty owners to bear their just share of the burden, but even under present conditions the assessment ought to be somewhere within reason. If the Biwabik plan of assessing is universal throughout the country the revenue derived will be no greater than under the 1-cent per ton arrangement. To be sure, under the new system taxation will be more equally divided between producers and non-producers and will bring more money to the school, township and county treasuries, but less to the state than the old. The assessments should be high enough so that the state will receive at least as much as formerly and the county at least ten times more.

If the county board does justice to the citizens it will raise these mine valuations to an amount somewhere within reason, and if the county board fails in that duty the state board should see that it is performed. The people who have been working during years past for reform in mine taxation will not be satisfied with any such sham reform as these assessments would bring about.

CREATED A SENSATION.

Chicago Tribune: He had followed her for blocks. Unnoticed, the hundred sights of State street passed him by. He saw neither the window displays nor the fair women, nor the brave men, nor the policemen on the crossings. He had eyes for none but her. He did not notice even the friend upon whose arm she leaned.

"Wonderful!" he muttered, into his moustache. "Beautiful! I have never seen anything like. If I could but paint the poise of her head! Still, it would be useless; no one would believe it."

He was not the only one who had noticed her. Others looked after her in admiration. In all that crowded street, from Randolph to Van Buren, she was the only woman who did not crane her neck, look first over one shoulder, then over the other. She faced the way she was going, and the carriage of her head was that of a goddess. He quickened his steps, and came opposite her. Covertly he peered into her face.

The woman was blind.

GOSSIP OF ★ ★ THE STAGE.

"Lost, Strayed or Stolen," a musical farce by Cheever Goodwin and Woolson Morse, was originally produced in Chicago last week with sufficient success to warrant hopes of its being profitable and popular next winter. A four-act search for a baby, who has been lost by its nurse just when it is needed for christening, is the basis of the plot, and as the hunt proceeds in such places as a regimental barracks, the boudoir of a burlesque actress and the Luxembourg gardens, there is plenty of opportunity for amusement and adventure. Jennie Goldthwaite plays the burlesque actress and sings a Carmenesque love song and a negro lullaby. Fred Wright, Jr., M. A. Kennedy, R. F. Cotton, Charles Plunkett, Cyril Scott, Rose Beaudet and Alice Holbrook have the other important parts. There is a great deal of jingling music in the play. One of the songs is called "Ootchy-Kootchy." In it a fond parent tells us that:

There's a baby now at our house—
And I croon this sort of thing:
Ootchy-kootchy! Ootchy-kootchy!
Bless his little heartums!
Googly-goo! Googly-goo!
Hear him laugh and crow!
Eetchy-keetchy! Eetchy-keetchy!
Was he bright and smart-ums?
Popsy-wapsy's baby boy!
There's nuffin' him don't know.

"Pudd'nhead Wilson" will be sent out next season. Mr. Mayo's successor in the title part will be selected within the next two weeks.

The greatest of American extravaganzas, Rice's "Evangeline," is entertaining the midsummer crowds at Manhattan Beach. Between the acts Edward E. Rice climbs into the leader's chair and "personally conducts" a new march. Big George Fortescue is playing his famous old part of Catherine, Cheridah Simpson is the Gabriel and Fred Solomon is Le Blanc, the notary, a character which many celebrated comedians, including William H. Crane and Nat C. Goodwin, have played. The program at Manhattan Beach contains an interesting address to the public from Mr. Rice. He explains that burlesque and extravaganza are entirely different, the former being illegitimate and the latter legitimate. "Extravaganza is concrete; burlesque is abstract," he says. "Extravaganza requires intelligence; burlesque needs only invention. There is an enduring quality in extravaganza, which is shared by only the finest works of great writers. No modern English or American dramatist is the author of a play that has lasted twenty years in popular favor. 'Evangeline' fell in perfect proportions from the merits of its author's fancy and is still untarnished by the fingermarks of time." The famous features of the old-time "Evangeline," the omnipresent Lone Fisherman and the Dancing Heifer, with which the fame of Henry E. Dixey and Richard Golden is imperishably connected, continue to amuse, and of course the spectacular part of the show is perennial and a joy forever.

Charles McCarthy, who is playing "One of the Bravest" in the English provinces, had a bad fall on the stage in the fire ladder scene at Wakefield two weeks ago. He was laid up in the hospital unconscious for seventeen hours, but is recovering. "You know you can't kill an Irishman hitting him on the head," he wrote to a friend.

Fred Hallen, after one season of being merely a manager, is now doing a sketch, with his wife, Molly Fuller, in a Chicago roof garden.

Matthews and Bulger, two clever young fellows, who made a hit in "Rush City" at the Grand early last season, are to star in a farce comedy under the management of A. M. Miller, Jr., and Fred Peel.

When Nat Goodwin got to San Francisco on his way to Australia he told an Examiner reporter about his experiences in the "all-star" cast of "The Rivals." "Oh, what a picnic that was," he said. "'Pon my soul, you never saw anything like it, y' know. It was great, it was—well, I can't think of any other word for it—it was sublime. I want to tell you about old Jeff. I'm his adopted son. Fact! We dressed together, y' know. But say, wait till I tell you what he did the last night we played. Made me blubber like a child, 'pon my soul. He put his arms round me and said, 'Well, Nat, you're going to play "The Rivals" in Australia, and you're going to play my part. I don't know what I can give you, but—allow me to present you with my wig.' And he pulled it off his head and handed it to me. It's the same wig he'd been wearing in 'The Rivals' for I don't know how many years. I only hope I'll play it half as well as the old man plays."

"Business! You never saw anything like it. Talk about grand opera, or Bernhardt, or Irving—why, they don't compare with that show. Why, there was one performance in Philadelphia when there was $9700 in the house, and $900 one night in Brooklyn. It was just a picnic from start to finish. We were just like a big family. It was like the old days—the old greenroom days. We had a train of five cars, and a chef, and carriages wherever we went, and everything the heart of man could desire. Fun? Never had so much in my life! We were like children—just like a lot of kids. Oh, I tell you, it was a great love feast. It was elevating. It showed that actors can do something else besides loafing around barrooms."

The distinguished Shakespearean comedian, William F. Owen, has decided to instruct a limited number of pupils in dramatic art during his stay in Kansas City.

A young English actress, Miss Esme Beringer, is giving an interesting performance of Romeo, with her sister, Vera, as Juliet, in London. An enthusiastic critic writes of her: "The new Romeo is a boy, and the boy is a girl. Picture to yourself a handsome Italian youth, with dark skin, bright eyes and gleaming teeth; an impulsive, hot headed Southern creature, easily moved to passion, easier moved to tears. Picture to yourself a temperament so different from ours, swayed this way and that, loving and scarcely knowing what love is; hating without a trace of venom in the hate; a boy with the womanish part of his nature not quite knocked out of him; a boy who can, by his very passion, be made drunk with grief; a boy who, by a spasm of idiosyncrasy, can take a measure of an unmade grave, and there you have something like the ideal Romeo. Something like the ideal Romeo of Shakespeare's text has been found in Miss Esme Beringer. Scarcely one Shakespearean enthusiast present believed it was a woman. I; was not a woman—at all; it was a boy. No suggestion of sex entered into the study. We had to forgive nothing to beg nothing. There stood before us a comely youth—poetic, imaginative, impulsive, with the hot fever of Italy in his veins, with an adorable charm of manner, and a voice tinged with the golden sun. It was al warm, sunny, poetic, imaginative. There was not a trace of baseness or sensuality in this delightful study. Would that Shakespeare's text could ever be delivered with such exquisite grace of diction. The voice rang true, it echoed and echoed about the crowded theater; but the brain was there as well as the voice, and we honestly believe that many present had never understood Romeo so well as when line after line, sentence after sentence, scene after scene, did not pass in a dream, but went straight to the mind and understanding. A better pronounced performance of Romeo than that given at the Prince of Wales' theater has seldom been heard; a more ideal Romeo has seldom been seen. The mind throughout the play refused to believe that it was not a passionate Italian boy before their eyes. It was certainly a revelation in Romeos."

Augustus Thomas' new comedy, "Don't Tell Her Husband," is to be produced in London, in September, under Charles Frohman's management.

An English comedy, "Mary Pennington, Spinster," and a dramatization of Anthony Hope's "Mr. Witt's Widow," are two of the plays secured for Georgia Cayvan's starring tour.

The Herald says that one night last week two New Yorkers were talking in front of the theater after the performance of Strauss' "Waldmeister." One of the two asked his friend how it had gone. "Immense," was the reply. "Received with great embonpoin." "Embonpoint?" said No. 1, inquiringly. "Yes, embonpoint. French for enormous success."

John Griffith will play "Richard III" in addition to "Faust" this season.

The Dramatic News says that Odell Williams is committing to memory one of Col. Ingersoll's lectures, with the intention of delivering it to the public. Mr. Williams has discovered something of a personal resemblance between himself and the great agnostic orator, and proposes to heighten the likeness by the employment of a wig and grease paint. Thus made up, he will deliver the Ingersoll lecture over a route already booked.

Al Hayman has leased Abbey's theater, New York, from the Goeler estate and will change its name. His policy will undoubtedly be to play the leading foreign stars and companies, following pretty much the same lines as the former management. He is a large importer of English theatrical attractions. Mr. Hayman is one of the most conspicuous figures in American theatrical management. He has amassed a large fortune, and probably has more different theatrical ventures on hand than any two other men in the business.

Bessie Tyree—Lord Tommy of the "Amazons," you remember—is wheeling through Europe with Mr. and Mrs. Bronson Howard, Henry Arthur Jones and Daniel Frohman.

Ed J. Connelly, the comedian, says in a note to the Dramatic Mirror: "Manager Judah, of Kansas City, and myself have contracted to clear Lake Ronkokoma of bass this summer. We are off to complete the job. Will let you know result later."

Miss Georgia Cayvan, who has not acted since her retirement from the Lyceum Theater company two years ago, returned to New York last week from a short rest in England, which she took to restore her health and give her strength to prepare for her appearance as a star next autumn. Miss Cayvan looked healthy when she told a Sun reporter some of the results of her observations of the Paris and London stages. "Her debut has been delayed as much from her inability to secure good plays as from her ill health.

"I am convinced," she said, "that there is little to be found either in Paris or in London suited to the tastes of American audiences. In London there has been an improvement of late, and there has been a refreshing breeze of morality and purity succeeding the problem plays that have occupied the stage for some time. We are going to benefit here after a while from that. I am certain that there is no profit to be made out of impure plays in this country. I can only repeat what I have always said on this subject, and that is, that I never return here from Europe without realizing that America is distinctly a moral country.

"The best of the plays I saw in London was 'Rosemary,' which is drawing large audiences that delight in its fresh, pure tone after the class of plays that has occupied the stage there. It is like a breath of June country air, and I cannot remember that I ever enjoyed myself more at a theater than when I saw the play. I also saw Mrs. Kendal in her new piece, 'The Greatest of These,' and while I do not believe that it would succeed here, I am certain that Mrs. Kendal has never before done so good work as she does in this drama of Sydney Grundy's. It is a problem play in a measure, but not so much as some of the others. I saw Mrs. Patrick Campbell on the first night of 'Magda,' and I enjoyed her as much as I have in all the roles I have seen her play. She is full of exasperating faults, but she is strong in what all of us love most to have, which I suppose can be described best as temperament. Her performance of Magda was a fine one, and I felt for a few minutes that I should like to play the part the night I saw her.

"But I got over that, for I don't think the role is one that appeals to an audience so much as it does to an actress. I think Duse and Bernhardt and all the great actresses who have played the part have been attracted to it because the woman herself was an actress, and they felt that they could particularly sympathize with her. I saw Bernhardt in Paris under circumstances that were very unfavorable, as I was ill, and I took away with me only the impression that the performance as a whole was remarkably finished and artistic. I did not recall her playing well enough to compare Mrs. Campbell's with it. Besides, I am not the least of a critic at the theater. Unless something is particularly bad, I am certain to enjoy it. If plays and actors cannot please me they must be very weak indeed."

It is pleasant to know that there is one class of performers with whom business is brisk. They are the "variety fakes." They are in great demand, so much so that their ranks have been swelled last year, and especially this summer, by the addition of many "regular" actors. This is a "turn-about-is-fair-play" kind of reciprocity. For over twenty years the "regular" stage has been largely recruited from the variety boards, and many of our now best actors were originally variety actors. Nat Goodwin, among the men, and Lillian Russell, among the "opposition" sex, are examples. "Continuous performance" houses and roof garden shows are responsible for the demand for variety performers. Any male or female variety performer of even average merit, who is not engaged at present, has only himself or herself to blame for idleness.

Al Hayman has got the lease of Abbey's theater in New York. He and the Frohmans have a "corner" on all the leading theaters on the Pacific coast, and they are making a strong bid for the control of those in the best cities of the East and center of the country. Their enterprise, aggression, or whatever you may call it, is "viewed with alarm" by many stars. A business manager said the other day: "If the Haymans, the Frohmans and Nixon and Zimmerman keep on they will soon be in a position to dictate their own terms to every star and big attraction in the country. They will soon have a chain of leading theaters extending from Boston to Chicago, and from there to San Francisco, to Tacoma and Seattle. In a few big cities, like Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Chicago, I can find theaters to play in which they don't control, but in many places they have the only first-class theater in the town. If I play against them in the cities I have named they won't give me 'time' in the other cities. This being the case, what am I to do? Last season my terms were 50 per cent straight in the four big cities named, and from 60 to 75 per cent on the gross receipts in all the other towns in which my star played. I am very much afraid that next season 'fifty straight' is the best I may be able to get for my entire tour."

This looks like a veritable theatrical trust. Does it not?

Another manager, speaking of the matter, said: "This matter will regulate itself. No one firm, or two or three firms combined, will be able to control the theatrical business of this country. Such a trust may corral all the leading stars, but other managers will then return to the stock company system. It has been the success of the Girard Avenue theater in Philadelphia and other theaters similarly managed that induced Joe Brooks and Harry Miner to form the syndicate. They intend running several grand companies and producing new and original plays, as well as the best of the standard dramas, in the very best manner. Any of their plays which make 'hits' they will sublet to managers in minor towns and play them with 'number two' companies. The theatrical business is different from any other, and I do not think it can be managed like a chain of groceries or banks. Jack Haverly found that out; so did Jim Hill. I must say that Al Hayman so far has been very successful, but he isn't out of the woods yet by any means."

The American dramatic is not much in evidence just now. He may be working hard in secret; but if he is he is not advertising the fact. "Nym Crinkle" Wheeler and Col. Alfriend, the authors of "The Great Diamond Robbery," have nearly finished another play of melodramatic import, and a stage adaptation is being made of "A Daughter of the Tenements;" but those are the only notable works I wot of. We are to have plenty of new plays by foreign authors, however. Georgie Cayvan—I wonder why she doesn't change her name to Cavanaugh; it would be so much easier to pronounce—is to give us an English play, and report says several English players. Wilson Barrett will send over "The Sign of the Cross" in the hope that, now that it has the stamp of London approval, it will be a greater popular success than it was when originally given in this country. E. S. Willard will also fetch with him several foreign plays.

"WORN OUT."

A COMMON EXPRESSION USED BY AMERICAN WOMEN.

Many do not Realize the Full Significance of These Two Words.

When a woman is nervous and irritable, head and back ache, feels tired all the time, loses sleep and appetite, has pains in groins, bearing-down sensation, whites and irregularities, she is not "worn out," but feels as if she were.

Such symptoms tell her that a womb trouble is imminent, and she cannot act too promptly if she values her future comfort and happiness.

The experience and testimony of some of the most noted women of America, go to prove beyond a question that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct all such trouble at once by removing the cause and restoring the organs to a healthy and normal condition. If in doubt, write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., as thousands of women do.

Here is a lady who says:—

"Let me add my name to your list of testimonials. For years I suffered with such a weakness of the back I could not stand straight. I had terrible pains in my womb. The doctor said an operation must be performed, as there was no other way to be cured. I was afraid to have the operation performed, and kept trying the medicines that I saw advertised. At last I tried yours. After taking three bottles I felt like a new woman. I recommend it to every woman, and cannot praise it enough, for it saved me from the surgeon's knife."—Mrs. Mark Buch, Dolgeville, N. Y.

WORKING GIRLS' FUN.

Admirable Summer Resort For New York's Toilers.

New York, June 26.—The working girls of this great city are oftentimes pitied. True, they work hard, some of them from 7 o'clock in the morning until 6 in the evening, at laborious, monotonous tasks, in an atmosphere none too healthy and amid surroundings which would shock their more delicately reared and fortunate sisters. But in the summer time they have their outings of a week or two, and more actual, honest enjoyment is jammed into the seven or fourteen days than the average girl gets out of a whole season at a fine hotel on an allowance of $100 or $200 a week from her wealthy father.

Miss Grace Dodge, Mrs. Mason Davidge and Miss Virginia Potter, three wealthy women who have practically devoted their lives to the working girl of the metropolis, decided eight years ago to purchase some land on Long Island near a little village called Miller's Place, and there erect two houses called Holiday house and Harbor house—and from the last of June until the second week in September they are filled with women. The houses belong to the New York Association of Working Girls' societies. Any girl, a member of one of the many clubs belonging to the association, can make use of this summer resort.

The houses are within a stone's throw of each other. What one lacks the other supplies. The Holiday house is the older, and with its broad lawn and grand old trees, suggests the country resort; the Harbor house has a beautiful view of the Sound, and a wooded path leads from it to the beach. Both the houses have broad piazzas and many windows. They are furnished simply and comfortably.

There are old-fashioned open fireplaces in each parlor, a piano, which the girls delight in using, and divans in denim, banked with soft pillows. All over the houses the floors are painted, and here and there are rugs. The walls are tinted, and on the first floor the broad windows open on the veranda. Here there are plenty of rocking chairs and hammocks and girls to fill them.

There are two dining rooms in each house and about twelve bedrooms. Some of the rooms are so large that they comfortably accommodate four girls. Each girl has her own bed and a screen, so that she may dress in privacy. The servants employed in each house consist of a cook, laundress, two waitresses and a man. Each girl comes for two weeks, and her board for that time, including her railroad fare, costs $7.50. The payment of her board bill gives her a feeling of independence, and no summer girl at Saratoga or Newport has a better time.

It is only necessary to spend a day in the houses to prove this. The girls think the grass which carpets the lawn in front of Holiday house "simply beautiful." They grow enthusiastic over the seawashed pebbles and the flowers of the fields, and they also show a marked admiration for a tiny black kitten which has the freedom of the place.

The rules and regulations of the vacation houses are few and the girls spend their time as they please. At 7:30 the rising bell rings, and at 8 breakfast is ready. On Sunday the breakfast bill of fare consists of oatmeal, fish cakes, coffee, bread and butter and a glass of milk. Three mornings each week hot bread is served. There is always a bowl filled with wild flowers in the middle of the table. It stands on a linen square, but no tablecloth is used. The china is dainty and pretty. It is principally in white and gold and Delft blue and white. Grace is said before each meal, the girls standing behind their chairs with bowed heads.

One o'clock is the dinner hour, and the menu consists of a roast, two or three vegetables, tea and milk, bread and butter and a good but wholesome dessert. Thursday is ice cream day. Supper is at 6 and cold meat, a relish of some kind, like lettuce or potato salad, bread and butter, fruit and cake is the usual menu.

At each house forty-two quarts of milk are brought every day. The only work required of the girls during their vacation is to make their beds and dust their rooms. This they do carefully and neatly right after breakfast. They have learned the art of bed-making to perfection and always arrange the sheets and pillows to air while they are at breakfast. The morning is spent at the beach, where many of the girls swim and dive like fish. There are ten bathing houses at their disposal, and the suits which the girls wear are wonderful to behold, but they all go in the 8th with great regularity and have the best kind of a time. After the bath the hammocks are at a premium and the girls read or take a nap, as they feel inclined.

The houses are all well provided with books and magazines. Driving is the popular amusement of the afternoon. The girls go off in parties of eight, with one of the ladies in charge, and the cost to each girl for a drive of two hours or more is 25 cents. On an average they take a drive about three times a week. They bring with them about $2 spending money, and are noted for the generous way in which they treat their friends. They patronize freely the one and only store at Miller's Place. Here they also spend much of their time getting weighed. Besides getting weighed, they also derive much enjoyment from watching the changes in their complexion. They like to get sunburnt, and they are even philosophical enough not to object to freckles.

Though the days are pleasant and fly by all too fast, at the vacation houses the best fun of the summer comes in the evening. At the stroke of 8 the girls all start for the barn, which is between the two houses, and is an ideal sort of place in which to have a jolly time. The rafters are covered with red bunting and hung with Japanese lanterns. There is a stage at one side, with a curtain, which rolls up and down, and a solid floor has been laid which is always kept polished for dancing. The girls gather in the barn and entertain one another by singing, recitations, tableaux and dancing. They know all the latest dances and have great fun selecting their partners.

Friday evening is the gala night of the week at the barn. Any one in the village having one of the printed cards of invitation issued by Miss Ford may come and join in the fun. Great preparations are made during the week for this evening, and the girls take delight in practicing for the charades and tableaux, which are always a feature of the evening.

BIG AND GOOD.

BattleAx PLUG

Sometimes quality is sacrificed in the effort to give big quantity for little money. No doubt about that. But once in a while it isn't. For instance, there's "BATTLE AX." The piece is bigger than you ever saw before for 5 cents. And the quality is, as many a man has said, "mighty good." There's no guess work in this statement. It is just a plain fact. You can prove it by investing 5 cents in "BATTLE AX."

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.—

Notice is hereby given that heretofore Huntington W. Merchant, (unmarried), mortgagor, executed and delivered to Clarence B. Dickson, mortgagee, a certain mortgage bearing date the 15th day of March, 1892, whereby he mortgaged to said Clarence B. Dickson to secure the payment of the sum of $2372.35, three years after said date, with interest payable semi-annually at eight per cent per annum, according to the condition of a certain promissory note of even date therewith, and of six coupon interest notes thereto attached, and bearing even date, each for the sum of $94.95, and each drawing interest after maturity at the rate of eight per cent per annum, the following described property situate in the county of St. Louis, state of Minnesota, to-wit: Lots numbered nine to eighteen inclusive, in block numbered twelve, of Merchant's Park Division of Duluth, and lots numbered one and two, in block numbered ten, of Harrington's Addition to Duluth, all according to the recorded plats thereof on file in the office of the register of deeds in said St. Louis County, Minnesota, which said mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 11th day of April, 1892, at ten o'clock a. m., on page 22 of Book 94 of mortgages, of the records of said office;

That said mortgagee is still the owner of said mortgage, and of the indebtedness secured thereby, and that no part of the principal sum secured by said mortgage has been paid, except the sum of $800, paid in December 28, at which time, in consideration of such payment, there was released from the operation of said mortgage said lots numbered one and two, in block numbered ten, of Harrington's Addition to Duluth, in said county, by an instrument in writing executed by said Clarence B. Dickson to said Huntington W. Merchant, bearing date the 28th day of December, 1892, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds for said St. Louis County, on the 7th day of February, 1893, at 2:40 o'clock p. m. on page 421 of Book 76 of mortgages, of the records of said office.

That default has been made in the conditions of said mortgage in that the whole of said principal sum secured thereby is due and unpaid, except said sum of $800, the coupon interest note due March 15, 1894, is partly unpaid, and the coupon interest notes due September 15, 1894, and March 15, 1895, are wholly unpaid.

That there is claimed to be due and there is due and unpaid of the debt secured by said mortgage at the date of this notice $1888.38, principal and interest, and $98.08 for taxes on said lots in said Merchant's Park Division of Duluth, paid by said mortgagee on April 15, 1896, and the sum of $48.23 for special assessments upon said last mentioned property, paid by said mortgagee on April 24, 1896, and that no action or proceeding has been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover said debt or taxes or any part thereof.

Notice is further given that under and by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained and made a part thereof, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises above described, except those premises released as aforesaid, at public auction, by the sheriff of St. Louis County, to the highest bidder, at the front entrance to the court house, in said city of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of the 5th day of August, 1896, to satisfy the amount which will then be due on the said mortgage debt, and for taxes paid by said mortgagee, together with $50 attorneys' fees, as stipulated in said mortgage, and costs and expenses of these proceedings, as allowed by law.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of that certain mortgage made, executed and delivered by Thedore Grote and Agusta Grote, his wife, mortgagors, to Mary J. Crosby, mortgagee, bearing date the 8th day of March, 1895, and recorded in the register of deeds' office in and for St. Louis County, state of Minnesota, on the 16th day of March, 1895, at 3:50 o'clock p. m. in Book 93 of mortgages on page 283.

And whereas said default consists in the non-payment of the annual installment of interest, amounting to the sum of twelve and 00-100 dollars which became due and payable by the terms of said note and mortgage on the 8th day of March, 1896, by reason of which default said mortgagee has elected to exercise the option to her given by the terms of said note and mortgage, by declaring and she does hereby declare, the whole principal sum secured by said mortgage with accrued interest thereon to be due and payable.

And whereas there is therefore claimed to be due and there is actually due upon said mortgage debt at the date of this notice the sum of one hundred sixty-four and 25-100 dollars principal and interest.

And, whereas said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the default above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein to-wit: The east one-half of the northeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section thirty, township fifty north, of range fifteen west, St. Louis County, Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances.

Which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the 30th day of June, 1896, at 10 o'clock a. m., at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt of one hundred sixty-four and 25-100 dollars and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

MARY J. CROSBY,
Mortgagee.

THE BICYCLE WORLD.

Even the deck of an ocean steamer is now being used as a bicycle race track by trans-Atlantic voyagers. One of these marine greyhounds carried with her on her latest trip from New York five young women who by special arrangement had their wheels stored in their state rooms. Ordinarily the machines are stored with other freight in that vast region known on board ship as "below," but these young people obtained special permission to have their wheels handy, the reason being that they intended to have a race or two before reaching the end of their voyage. They are going on a wheeling tour abroad, and this exercise can be indulged in on account of the captain's good nature. This species of amusement at sea is not new. The stewardess of the steamer carrying the five young women said, in speaking of the forthcoming race:

"It will be allowed, as the promenade deck is wide. Some afternoon steamer chair loungers will clear a way, and the bicycle race will be welcomed as a delightful contrast to the hackneyed concert. We had one the last trip over, in which nearly a dozen young men and women took part. Everybody bought the right to make guesses as to the prospective winner among the various participants on the payment of 25 cents, and the proceeds were turned into the steamer's fund. There was a huge ribbon badge given the young man and the young woman selected by the voters to defend the choice of the passengers, and then he and she retained their badges or handed them over to whoever proved, against wind and wave, to be the speediest cycler in the racing contingency. As far as I know, bicycle racing is about the newest diversion offered yet for amusing our ship's passengers, for, no matter how quick the voyage, there is always a great majority, especially of the young people, who, directly they struggle up from their seasickness, demand recreation in some form or other. They are not content to lall away in rugs in a sheltered corner and read novels, as the ideal traveler does, but, Americanwise, demand diversion and exert their wits to find amusement pretty much after the fashion of all landlubbers."

GOES BY ELECTRICITY.

An electrical tricycle from France is now on its way here for exhibition purposes, and also with a view to its introduction in America. It is a heavy and cumbrous machine. The electric motor is supported by the axle of the two rear wheels. The cooling of the cylinder is effected by radiating fins. The crank shaft of the motor is fitted with pinion gearing, which drives the main axle, by means of an external spur wheel, through the medium of a compensating device and chain. Pedals are fitted to this machine in order to permit the user to assist, if necessary, in surmounting hills and also to give the first impulses to the motor upon starting.

FEAT OF A ONE-LEGGED MAN.

Among the many forms of trick riding witnessed at the recent cycle carnival in Madison Square garden, New York, perhaps the most startling feat was that performed by Charles J. Kilpatrick, a one-legged man, who rode down a narrow flight of wooden steps built from the roof of the garden to nearly the center of the floor.

Kilpatrick's feat is more harrowing than any dive that was ever executed from those historic iron roof girders. He uses no net. His staircase is a good deal steeper than a toboggan slide and scarcely five feet in width. He hobbled about on the dizzy landing on his one leg, testing his wheel on the steps and seeming to doubt himself. Half the women in the audience turned their backs and listened to hear him fall. One false movement of the handle bar of his bicycle would certainly have been fatal. Kilpatrick mounted his saddle and the attendant gave him a push. Down the steps he glided, as if they were asphalt, varying little in his course from a straight line. The gathered momentum sent him speeding across the floor as if he had been shot from a gun. It looked as if he could not stop short of Madison avenue, but his one leg proved more potent than appearances and brought the machine to a standstill at the west exit.

COSTLY RACING IN FRANCE.

Bicycle racing is carried out on an expensive scale in France. In that country the pacemaking is the best in the world and calculated to be the most expensive. One firm in France has about forty quads and triplets that are used exclusively for this purpose, and a whole army of pacemakers. The latter receive $4 each for every meeting, and the result is that racing is an enormous expense to the manufacturers. The race promoters in France are now aiming to get as much speed out of riders by the aid of pacemakers as is possible until electric pacemaking becomes possible. From tandems there has been a transition to triplets and then to quads, but attempts to use quintuplets have not been a success. Those machines can only be used on the largest of tracks, so are not always available. The popular pacing machines now in use are the quads and triplets, but the latter seem better suited for the purpose. It has been the general idea that four or five men on one machine are better pacemakers than tandems, but this theory lacks confirmation. The fault with the big machines seems to lie in the inability to get teams of riders that can work well together.

TIMBER USED IN WHEELS.

All the choice timber of the carriage and bicycle trade has to be selected when the trees are growing, for when they are cut up into logs it is impossible to determine the period of growth at the time of cutting. The sap dries out in a month after being cut down, and the trees may have been too young for good carriage timber. In Northern states the experts generally go into the woods in August, but in the Southern states a few weeks later. The trees selected are marked by chipping off the bark at certain places. From November to January they are cut, the markers going into the woods again to identify their marks. The best manufacturers of bicycles select their timber in the same way. The wood rims of a bicycle require just as much strength, resilience and toughness as the spokes and hubs of a carriage. The best forest ash probably makes the most satisfactory rims, and a close-grained hickory, properly cured and bent, gives about equally good results. The coarse-grained hickory is heavier than the fine grained, but when put to the test the lighter wood sustains from 10 to 15 per cent greater weight without breaking.

HANDSOMELY DECORATED BIKES.

There is a mildly developed fad for jeweled, silver-plated, and otherwise decorated bicycles. Several silversmiths of Chicago have sold a few such wheels, and one was turned out in Chicago for advertising purposes which was said to be worth $2000. The costliest yet sold here brought $850. Another sold for $450, the purchaser being the maker of the wheel in its undecorated state. Most of those thus far sold were women's wheels. A man's wheel elaborately decorated with applied silver and held at $325, is yet unsold. This last has solid ivory handles, with decorated silver buttons at the ends. The front fork is nickel-plated and then decorated with a scroll of applied silver. The handle has silver decorations, and so has the little leather tool kit. The lamp is silver-plated, and a little silver watch is attached to the bicycle by means of an ingenious contrivance of springs. The ends of the pedal spindles are decorated in chased silver. Some wheels have been gilded and engraved, while still others have been decorated at conspicuous points with inset jewels. One bicycle lamp was decorated with amethysts and other gems. It is hardly expected that men will take up with this expensive fad, and thus far few richly decorated wheels have been sold. The thing was at first undertaken as an experiment. A few well-paid actresses have bought such wheels, and one was sold to "a titled Englishman for his wife. The wheel decorated in applied gold is yet to come.

NEW HORSELESS CARRIAGE.

Before long people may apparently expect to see the horseless carriage a practical everyday affair. A Connecticut man has advanced so far in the study of this means of travel that he is ready to equip any sort of vehicle with a motor, using either electricity, gasoline or compressed air as the power. His latest invention is a motor-cycle built for two, in which the power is applied to the front wheels instead of the rear wheels, as has been the custom heretofore. The invention is a very simple one, with no loss of energy between the motive power and the driving wheels. This latest machine carries two sets of pulleys which regulate the speed. One set of pulleys is larger than the other. The small set is used in hill climbing, where low speed but high power is required. At the top of the hill a turn of the hand shifts the pulleys and the speed is increased at once. The motor-cycle is equipped with brakes and can be stopped quickly. The whole machine is controlled by a lever which makes and breaks the connection between the motor and the driving wheels. The machine is constructed on the same principle as the bicycle. With gasoline as the motive power the whole outfit weighs 200 pounds. With electrical equipment it is twice as heavy.

CYCLING IN A NIGHTGOWN.

At a two-minute clip, clad only in a flapping nightgown, John Lamoreaux, of San Francisco, rode on his wheel at 5 o'clock the other morning. The few policemen and home-goers who saw him were too astonished to try to stop him, and, when they recovered themselves, chased after him, thinking he was a somnambulist. The rider attended strictly to business, and never eased up until he reached the park hose-house, when, battering on the door, he gave an alarm of fire. He lived in the building at 803 South Spring street, and was awakened by a fire in a neighboring room. Not stopping to put on any clothes, he jumped from his bed to his wheel, and by his promptness undoubtedly saved several thousand dollars' worth of property.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS FOR WHEELS.

The effort to produce a successful electric light for bicycles is continued in various quarters. An Ohio company has begun the manufacture of an electric lamp that is warranted to burn, to give a light and to last. In its general appearance the lamp does not differ much from the oil lamps, except that it is narrower, and the reflector which holds the lamp projects further from the surface. The body of the lamp resembles a small electric cell more than anything else, and that is really what it is. It is attached to the front of the bicycle in the ordinary position. The power which supplies the light indicates how common and handy electricity has become. The current is bought in a solid package, and is known as a charge. The construction of the lamp is so simple that anyone can recharge it without difficulty. The light is furnished by a small incandescent lamp backed by a powerful reflector. The annoyances occasioned by grease, oil and gas are done away with. There is no smell and no smoke, and one charge of the battery is said to be sufficient to maintain the light for hours.

HELPING DAN CUPID ALONG.

An Eastern paper recently published a symposium from clergymen, physicians, marriage license clerks and wheelmen on the question, "Is cycling conducive of matrimony?" All of them agreed that it is. They all say that bicycling brings young men and young women together under circumstances of companionship that exist in almost no other way. The extreme popularity of the tandem—of which the manufacturers this year cannot supply enough—has also had a great deal to do with it. The manufacturers say that whenever a young man comes in to buy a drop-frame tandem he has the same sheepish appearance as has the young man who is buying an engagement ring. For the benefit of the uninitiated we may say that the drop-frame tandem is distinctly for a man and woman, the front frame being dropped for the lady's greater comfort.

ROUTE OF AN ENGLISH TOUR.

It is becoming more and more the fad to go on wheeling tours around European countries. On the Glasgow steamers one can get a round-trip ticket for $75 first-class. A pleasant trip is to land at Southampton, run up through Winchester, Aldershot, and across Surrey to London, do London, then journey to Windsor castle, Eton and up the Thames valley to Ascot, to Wallingford, to Oxfordshire and then to the glorious old city of Oxford; then to Woodstock, where Fair Rosamund dwelt; then to Blenheim, the palace of the duke of Marlborough; thence to Shakespeare's birthplace, Stratford-on-Avon; then by Warwick to Coventry, where "Peeping Tom" peeped; then to Chester and up the River Dee, by Lake Windermere, and then Keswick, Newcastle, Carlisle and Solway Firth, through Dumfries, and thence to Glasgow, where you can take a steamer home first-class for $40. The rural inns are of the best description, and you can get the most delicious roast beef, good ale, bread, butter and cheese for a song. For sensible people, who have good health and good appetites, the trip would be an ideal one.

ASSISTANCE TO BEGINNERS.

Still another device has made its appearance to assist beginners in learning how to ride. It consists of two tubes, fastened on the saddle post and extending downward at right angles on each side. The ends of the tubes carry small wheels. These tubes can be lowered so that the wheels touch the ground, and in this way proper support is given to the bicycle. It is doubtful, however, whether any of these devices will aid in making an expert rider. On the contrary, it does not seem probable that anyone who learns to ride by the aid of one of the many devices put forward will ever have thorough confidence in himself.

BICYCLE NOTES.

Ne Plus Ultra: Jones—Brown is a crank, isn't he? Smith—A crank? Why, he isn't even satisfied with the wheel he rides.

Bicycle livery has become a distinct business all over the country and now there is scarcely a town of any size where wheels cannot be rented by the hour, day or week.

"Poor Dick is gone. He was a devoted cyclist, wasn't he?" "Yes, indeed; he left a will stating that he was to be cremated and used to help out on our new cinder path."

If the face becomes badly burned through wheeling in a high wind, rub it with olive oil and vaseline, or cover the face with cloths dipped in warm water containing bicarbonate of soda, which is both healing and cooling.

Wheelmen spending the summer at the seashore cannot take too much care to protect their wheels from the sea breeze, which will soon ruin the nickel-plated parts. A good plan is to dry the wheel after using and then cover with a blanket.

It is noticeable that the companies who insure against bicycle accidents expressly stipulate that no damages shall be collectible in case "the insured" is violating the law at the time an accident occurs. Strictly interpreted, this means that a man badly hurt while riding on the left side of the street or road would derive no benefit from his insurance policy.

HEALTH DESTROYING VAPORS.

Water impregnated with the seeds of malaria, produce incalculable misery throughout vast portions of the North and South American continents. The most effective medicinal defence against these producers of physical mischief is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Wherever the great endemics, chills and fever, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake are prevalent, the Bitters is alike the chosen preventive and remedy. In Mexico, Guatemala, on the Isthmus of Panama and in South America, no less than in the United States, it has demonstrated its superlative efficacy, and has received the commendation of the medical profession. It remedies rheumatic, kidney and stomachic ailments, nervousness and debility, and counteracts a tendency to premature decay and the troubles attendant upon advancing years. Appetite and the ability to sleep are both aided by it. Use it with persistence, as it well deserves to be used, and the trial will avail you much.

LORD WOLSELEY A WORKER.

To illustrate some of the disagreeable things which the soldiers suffered in the Soudan, says the Springfield Republican, Mr. Nourse tells the following anecdote of the postal service, which also well shows how democratic was Lord Wolseley, the commandant. Nourse went into the postoffice at Korti to look for some letters. The postmaster was a native and not very much of a bawler-out, and said that there was nothing for him after a superficial glance at a big pile of papers and letters.

Nourse asked to see the pile of letters, and while he was looking them over a man with nothing to designate his rank came into the office in company with another. He took in the situation at a glance, and said, "Let's clean this thing out." Whereupon they jumped over the counter and bundled the postmaster out, neck and heels. Then they began the examination of the office, and found it congested with mail for the army.

They searched every nook and cranny and threw the letters for one regiment into one corner, those for another into another, with all the newspapers in the center of the floor. Then they went through each pile and separated it into companies, and before night every letter was in camp and distributed, and the next day the papers were out. Nourse at the time did not know who his companion in the good deed was. He asked his name, and his answer was, "They call me Charley." Some time afterward Nourse was going to see the commandant, and, sitting near his tent, saw his companion at the postoffice.

"Hello, Charley," he said; "I'm looking for the commandant. Where'll I find him?"

"Well," said "Charley," "you won't have to look very far. "I'm the commandant. Come inside and have a bit to eat and drink."

It was Lord Wolseley, and a man worthy of the title.

STRANGE HIDING PLACE.

A bass viol player in distress and unable to pay his rent crawled into his big fiddle to die in Paris recently, says the New York Sun. He was missed after a day and discovered on the landlady's selling the viol for rent. It was found difficult to get him out, even after the back of the viol had been removed, and as the man is insane, no explanation of how he got into his instrument has been found.

AMONG THE SPORTS.

There have been sports until you could not rest this week. Last Saturday the Duluth High School Athletic association held the best field day in its history with the Minneapolis Central High School Field and Track Team, and it was a very pretty and successful event, even though the Minneapolis boys won out on points. It is worthy of note that the Duluth athletics won nine out of seventeen first places, and that the Minneapolis men made up their surplus of points from second places.

• • •

Saturday and Sunday the Duluth Baseball club played two lively games at Marquette with the latter club, and they broke even in two very even games. There was no ball in Duluth this week because of the presence of the women bikists, who are compelled to run over Sunday and Monday nights because of two days lost on account of dampness. Next week, however, there will be ball games Saturday and Sunday, July 4 and 5, with the Hamm's Export nine, of St. Paul.

• • •

During the week, with the exception of the days lost through dampness, the female bicyclist racers have been attracting crowds to the ball park, undisturbed by the machinations of Dottie Farnsworth, who grinds her teeth down in Minneapolis as she indites pink stationery to the sporting editors, the burden of which is "hippradrome."

• • •

Today the Marshall-Wells races were scheduled to come off on London road, while down on Lake Minnetonka the Duluth eight is to row the Minnesota eight at 6 o'clock. The Duluth boys left Thursday and got into the water with their shell yesterday, and were prepared to give the St. Paul boys a hard pull for their money this afternoon. The Duluth crew is a few pounds better than the St. Paul's in average weight, although the St. Paul Dispatch, by figuring in their 110-pound coxswain in the average, making it 159 2-9 as against the Duluths' 162½. Figuring in the Duluth coxswain at 120 pounds, it makes the Duluth average 157 4-9.

• • •

With the advantage in weight and the advantage of several years of rowing together, the Minnesotas had the best chance for first place, but if they get it it will not be an easy matter, and Duluth will do in the race from first to last.

• • •

Winnipeg is keeping very quiet in a rowing way this year, though Rat Portage is actively working up its junior four and four in singles.

July 4 the University of Wisconsin eight will row the Minnesotas at Minnetonka, and after that the Lurlines are going to take the varsity's trainer, Larry O'Dea, who trained Wisconsin to beat Yale ten lengths.

• • •

The junior four of the Minnesotas has been picked and it is on the lake preparing for the regatta. It is as follows: Henry Blakeley, stroke; A. E. McCaughey, 3; Whidden, 2; Dr. Sankler, bow.

H. O. Messier is figuring on a six or eight lap cycle track for the Duluth Cycle club. This would be the second largest track in the country.

Tom Duggan, another of the many good boxers that were made in Australia and picked this country out as a good land to come to, is in training, together with Tom Denny, over at Zehden's place, at College Point, says the New York Mercury. Duggan is as clever a man at his weight as has yet been brought from the "upside down" land. He defeated McInnerney twice for the title of champion middleweight of Australia, and has a score or more of bona fide victories tacked on the lid of his trunk. He is not preparing for any special battle, but is getting into condition for next season, when he expects to gather in a number of the local scalps, together with a few postage stamps.

• • •

Duggan and Denny were taken to their new training quarters by Nick Long, who generally acts as guide to the Australian boxers when they land in these waters. "Nick" is a walking directory of the sports who have shown in the fistic arena for the last thirty years. He knows them all from personal acquaintance, and especially the Australians, having spent a number of years in the antipodes.

• • •

Duggan is a quiet chap and neither smokes, chews or drinks, and that is something remarkable to say of a pugilist. In fact, he appears to be an unsophisticated country boy, which, in fact, he really is, but a mighty clever man with the gloves for all that.

He was paid quite a compliment the other days when Neise Innees, the publisher of the Ring Record, wrote to Long for Duggan's photo and record, for reproduction in the next issue of the Record.

There are few of the newcomers that get their faces in the Record, and it speaks well for Duggan.

Long had a great deal of trouble in arranging the match between Geaidy Bill and Dick O'Brien for the Woburn Athletic club, and only did so after several days' hard chasing, and one can imagine his disappointment when he received word last Monday that the match was off on account of fear of the police.

There was quite a crowd of sports lounging in the Sturtevant house one day last week talking over old fights and fighters, and, of course, Sullivan's name came up. It started a controversy about the popularity of fighters, and the general opinion seemed to be that as long as Sullivan lived, and long after, his name will always have the power to call forth enthusiastic cheers from the people whenever it is mentioned in a crowd.

• • •

There is one thing that can be said of the big fellow, and that is he was never a fakir, even going against the wishes of his managers sometimes in refusing to fake a fight and allow a draw.

It was a case of win or lose with him at all times.

At the time he met Patsy Cardiff in Minneapolis, there was only one man who knew his arm was broken until after the fight was over, and that was Sheedy. I remember that night well. The building was the old Washington rink, and it was as cold as a barn. Everybody expected to see the Minneapolis man put out in the first round, and, of course, there was a great deal of money put up on the event, even Pat Sullivan, the referee, who was a well-known Minneapolis gambler, had put up a couple of thousand on it in favor of Sullivan. The crowd was consequently disappointed when the four rounds ended and Cardiff was still in the ring, and a number of them commenced to hiss.

When Sheedy stepped in the ringside and announced that Sullivan had broken his arm in the very first blow he struck at Cardiff, they would not believe it and several cried "Fake!"

It was not until the next day when the account of his arm being set wrong appeared that it was believed to be anything else than a fake. How the big one's arm had to be broken again and reset five weeks later is a matter of history.

• • •

Probably the most unpopular man in his own town that ever stepped in the ring was Patsy Cardiff.

He and Professor John Donaldson were running a saloon in Minneapolis at the time of his meeting with Sullivan, and, of course, for a few weeks after the event the trade was quite large.

Cardiff had no heart at all, and was as big a bully as ever stepped in shoe leather, and he was so set up by his standing up in front of Sullivan for four rounds that for weeks afterwards he wanted to show his customers how he did it, by fighting at them and claiming that he had done so to Sullivan.

The fact is that Cardiff was winded from running when the four rounds were over.

Owen Sullivan, the Irish-Australian-South-African, returned to his home in Johannesburg last week. He is a great big, raw-looking sort of chap, but very quiet and pleasant to meet, and will never talk about his numerous victories unless asked about them, and even then it is a hard matter to get him to say much. Modesty is a virtue seldom met with nowadays, and it is therefore all the more pleasing to see.

Sullivan is very well off and knows how to take care of his money without being close about it. He is interested in some gold properties near Johannesburg and has won several purses of considerable amount. He made a number of friends during his short stay here, and will probably come back again some day.

An attempt is being made to curtail trotting races, the New York Herald now taking a hand in it by publishing interviews with prominent New Yorkers. In the number of views expressed it is surprising to note that not one hits upon the only legitimate way to keep the number of heats within proper limits, and, at the same time, force all hands to race for first place from the first heat. They suggest: stopping the races at the fifth heat and cut up the money as the horses then stand. There is a doubt as to whether the National association would allow a three-in-five heat race to be stopped in that way. The proper way is to shut off all non-heat winners at the close of the third heat and let those who have won heats finish the race out.

The richest event of the summer meeting of the Coney Island Jockey club will be the realization stakes on Saturday, July 11. It is very well known that the Brooklade's colt Gunbolt is being groomed as a special preparation for this race. It is believed by those best informed on turf matters that the colt will have to fall far behind his form of last year to lose the rich stake. He showed as a 2-year-old not only uncommon speed but staying power over seven furlongs of ground and a mile, and there is no reason, notwithstanding his illness, to believe that he cannot cover the realization distance. Others engaged in the rich 3-year-old prize are Margrave, Hazlet, Hastings, Silver II, Hamilton II, First tMate, Bonaparte, Crescendo, Baritone II and Ramiro.

PURE WATER.

Simple Tests to Discern the Article.

At this season, when so many people are planning their annual vacations, the subject of water supply is an all-important topic.

The New York World is in receipt of numerous letters on the subject, and answers them as follows through the medium of Dr. J. F. Whitmyer:

It would be manifestly improper for one to attempt such a thing as a series of instructions for determining the character of water supplied for drinking, considering the fact that complex and elaborate analyses are required for that purpose.

One might, perhaps, mention a chemical test which would show the presence of certain impurities, while other and possibly very injurious foreign ingredients in the water might exist without detection.

A celebrated authority once stated that "absolutely pure water, consisting of a chemical union with condensation of two volumes of hydrogen and one oxygen, is a chemical curiosity."

The impurities of water are usually placed under two heads, organic and inorganic. Of the first class the impurities may be in the form of bacteria, or they may consist of particles of organic substances, such as decomposing animal or vegetable matter.

Of the latter class the chemist usually finds such things as nitrates and nitrites, free amonia, chlorine and various other chemical substances. The nitrites are usually the product of decomposition, following the contamination of water with sewage.

Water is usually spoken of as either hard or soft. Hard waters contain lime and magnesium salts, or other chemical substances which curdle soap. The impurities usually found in soft water are inconsiderable.

A simple and convenient method of determining whether a water is hard or soft is by means of tincture of soap. This preparation produces no effect when added to pure distilled water. When combined with soft water it causes a slight opalescence, while with hard water a milky appearance is produced, which latter is due to the formation of an insoluble compound through the combination of the fatty acids of the soap with the lime or magnesium salts existing in the water as impurities.

Pure water is transparent, colorless, tasteless and odorless. Any water that is turbid, with an odor and unpleasant taste, may be condemned as unfit for consumption.

In order to be fit for cooking and drinking, water need not be chemically pure. Natural water is seldom if ever free from foreign ingredients.

On the other hand, water may meet all the other requirements given above and yet be dangerous because it is contaminated with disease germs, such as the bacilli of typhoid and malarial fevers.

Bacteria may be found in all well waters. When a well is frequently pumped out and allowed to refill the number of bacteria is almost greatly diminished. The bacteria usually found in well water are comparatively harmless. It is only when the water becomes contaminated with sewage containing the dangerous varieties that use of the water becomes perilous.

In water from a well-protected spring the number of bacteria is usually very small. In the water of lakes bacteria are abundant near the shore, while very few are found in the water obtained from the middle of the lake.

Water is said to be improved by storing for a time. As there is not sufficient sustenance in the water, a sort of starvation process is carried out, and the bacteria perish and fall to the bottom.

The idea that freezing destroys bacteria is still entertained by many. Repeated experiments have proved that freezing merely renders them inactive, and that they multiply with great rapidity as soon as the ice is melted and the conditions are favorable.

Mineral springs are, as a rule, more or less free from bacteria. This freedom is attributed to the carbonic acid gas with which the water is impregnated.

There is no simple method of ascertaining the presence of bacteria in water. The microscope is usually employed for that purpose. There is a preparation known as Pasteur's solution that is sometimes used. This solution consists of ten parts of candy sugar, one part of nitrate of ammonia, 100 parts of water and the ash of one part of yeast.

The solution is mixed with suspected water in a flask. If the solution remains clear it is an indication that the water is free from bacteria. If it becomes subsequently turbid it means that bacteria are present.

Although there is no simple method of determining the presence of impurities in water, there is a very simple way of rendering it fit for use, at least so far as bacteria are concerned. Boiling will destroy them, one and all.

It is only necessary to boil the water five minutes, but it is better to boil it ten or even fifteen minutes when there is reason to suspect contamination of a serious character.

Many people believe that by mixing an equal quantity of wine with water containing bacteria a harmless drink may be made. This impression is erroneous. It is true that some bacteria perish in the mixture, but the majority do not.

People entertaining such an idea would better follow the Biblical injunction and "drink no longer water, but use a little wine for the stomach's sake."

A MONSTER SAWFISH.

One of the most wonderful catches ever made with the rod and reel was accomplished by N. M. George, of Danbury, Conn., on Friday last, says the Tropical (Fla.) News. He was fishing for tarpon at Nigger Head, a few miles down the river with A. F. Gonales as guide, when he got a strike. It did not take long to ascertain that the game was even bigger than the silver king, and Mr. George settled down to give the fellow battle. The fish soon came to the surface. He was a monster sawfish and he slashed his saw about in the water at a great rate. Mr George handled the fish most skillfully and proved that he is a thorough expert in the use of rod and reel. The battle lasted one hour and twenty minutes, when the sawfish was brought to the gaff and killed.

He measured 14 feet 8 inches in length, and weighed 625 pounds. His saw was forty inches in length and five in width, and his dippers measured fifty-six inches. Th's gives Mr. George the record on the Caloosahatchee for the largest sawfish ever caught with rod and reel. Mr. George says he doesn't care to tackle another, and this is the conclusion of all the noted experts who have ever played a sawfish. This may read like a great fish story to people who know little of the great fishing on the Caloosahatchee river, but the facts as given are absolutely correct. The gentlemen who come here from all parts of the world to catch tarpon are genuine sportsmen, and would scorn to have an incorrect record made of any of their catches, which are all made with rods and reels.

Almost as numerous as the leaves of the trees are the neck finishings of the up-to-date summer girl.

She has the majority of her ordinary waists finished at the neck with just a plain little band, which acts as a foundation for the various collar arrangements she has in store with which to change the general look of each waist, says Alice May Gilliam in the New York Mercury. It is surprising the difference such a small thing as a collar will make, but it is a well-known fact to every woman, and she takes full advantage of it. Ribbons and bows have had a longer lease of life than generally falls to the lot of any fashion fancy, but they are still prime favorites in the collar line. The only noticeable change in them is that the bow has, in some cases, moved from the back of the neck to under the chin; but this idea is not nearly as becoming or graceful as the old way, and for that reason, not as popular.

Laces and fluffs of all kinds play an important part in the neck touches for summer evening gowns.

Like boa-like arrangements of fluffs of puffed and knotted lace or net are handy and bewitching wraps for cool-ish evenings on porches or to throw around one's neck after dancing.

Stocks of all styles and colors are on the high wave of summer girl favor, from brilliant red to solemn black. With big bows and tiny bows they march at the head of the line of shirt waist finishings.

It is quite the thing to number among one's shirt waists a navy blue or black taffeta, cut on the regular shirt waist pattern, and to wear with it white collar and cuffs. It is exceedingly neat and stylish. A good many of the silk shirt waists are made with full fronts, which hang over the belt on the blouse plan.

ABOUT BELTS.

But speaking of belts, they are very much in evidence, and are growing more elaborate and strikingly beautiful as the days go by.

Even the leather belts have lost their old-time simplicity, and now they appear decorated with wonderful buckles, worked in silver or gold, and reminding one of some Chinese puzzle. Of all the gorgeous affairs in the belt world the Oriental fancies claim first place. They are mostly made of antique silver, thickly set with jewels—generally make believe—and are really wonderful in all their Eastern splendor. A belt of this kind is made of silver in squares about two inches in size, joined with tiny chains, and instead of tightly clasping the waist, hangs in a V at the front. The whole affair glints and sparkles in the sun like some living thing, so thickly is it sprinkled with brilliant stones. Linen belts are among the novelties, and they also boast fancy buckles of many designs.

The fashionable world is belt crazy just now, and she who has a large craze has reason to be happy if it is accompanied by a pocketbook of corresponding proportions.

For the shore the favorite gowns are of materials that don't drop into nothingness at the first breath of salt air, which is the high enemy of all flimsy stuffs. Of course, for dress up and evening wear one braves anything, even the damp sea air, to be daintily dressed, but for general wear, duck suits and fancy ginghams are the next best things after serges.

A charming little gingham, which is one of a seashore outfit, is cream in color, with a lace stripe of blue, which is a pretty trimming in itself, though the gown in question has a large sailor collar, waist front and finishing to the sleeves of plain blue gingham. White duck, with some touch of dark color, is exceedingly effective. Then the duck "does up" so well, which is a high point in its favor.

For children the duck suits of the "natural dirty color" have attractions for some mothers, but the majority prefer to see the little tots in "clean" colors, even if it does mean frequent trips to the tub for the dresses. White duck sailor suits, with navy blue collars and cuffs, and with also an anchor, the pride of the child's heart, embroidered on the waists somewhere, are cute styles for the tots.

BRETON CHAIR AND CUSHIONS.

MATRONS AND MAIDS.

Variety Stage the Birthplace of Many Costumes.

Every new season the fact becomes more apparent that fashions in dress are started on the stage. It therefore behooves modistes and couturieres who would pose as originators of new fashions to secure the favor of the histrionic artists who bring them before the public as no amount of printed advertising can ever do, says the Chicago Chronicle. But they are not the great histrionic lights who are called upon to "boom" a new style. Such artists as Ellen Terry, Julia Marlowe and the immortal Sarah do not stoop to the style of play that admits of a modern costume. Hence the seeker after fame passes them by and goes straight to the variety stage. It may be a shock to those dignified people who would not cross the threshold of a vaudeville theater to be told that the very costumes which they have upon their stately backs were first made fashionable by some good-looking variety performer.

An interesting case in point is the progress of the reform in sleeves. Early in the winter we were told positively that sleeves were smaller, but we looked in vain on the streets for evidences of this diminution. It was not until Crane came out with "The Governor of Kentucky" and those stunning twins in small sleeves that anybody really believed the rumor. The English stage had a like influence upon the British public, only it started a little earlier over there.

The "nose hat" that everybody is wearing now made its debut in "Bohemia," a play that came out in the early spring. This is the hat that turns up so far in the back with masses of flowers and foliage on the hair, and a brim that nearly covers the eyes in front. A special style of collar has been devised to go with the "nose hat." It has the appearance of an ordinary stock in front, but in the back there is always a fan of lace or ribbon standing half way up the back of the head and almost touching the flowers on the hat.

SEEN IN LONDON.

The festive Julie Bon Bon has the honor of bringing out the new combination in the costumes which she wore at the production of "The Gay Parisienne" in the Duke of York's theater, London, one of her most fetching costumes is pronounced in its two purples. The bodice is a light tint of chiffon, fulled on the bias puffs and strapped with darker purple velvet ribbons. The sleeves have the light background, with figures in dark purple. To modify the combination a little there are flounces of white lace over the shoulders and a large, fluffy white chiffon bow in front. The skirt is of the lighter tint, with seams strapped with dark purple. Points around the bottom of the skirt are embroidered lightly with purple silk. A ribbon sash, purple gloves and a hat of rough brown straw with purple trimmings complete a costume that the duchess of Marlborough or any other notable need not be afraid to wear, notwithstanding its origin.

Sunlight yellow is another popular tint which appears in a dress of yellow China silk. Light Persian embroidery just a tone darker than the material and white chiffon ruffings are the trimmings. The hat is yellow mulle, wired and flared way up in the front, with bunches of forget-me-nots on the hair, and black feathers peeping over the brim. This costume is a little too airy for ordinary wear, but no fault can be found with the girl who carries the parasol. Her gown is chin silk of a light straw color, with brown figure. The skirt is plain and the bodice, too, but for a lattice work velvet yoke bordered with fluffy chiffon. The hat is yellow leghorn with black feathers and an audacious clump of aigrettes sticking right through the brim.

The parasol deserves a word or two. It is grass linen lined with white china silk and puffings of mull. There is a ribbon stripe on the outside which shines through the lining in a very effective style, and a border of lace.

The ribbon stripe and the puffed lining are very popular with the coming summer girl, as is also the "canopy top" which has such a pretty, slender curve at the neb.

One of the prettiest parasols recently seen has a deep blue lining, and is covered with silk batiste put on quite full. Around the edge are two flounces of linen. But it is the swan handle done in abnormal blue that makes this particular sunshade a thing of beauty and a joy—till it fades.

NEW SUMMER GIRLS.

They Will Have an Expensive Wardrobe.

There is to be a new summer girl this year. She will be a young person who will take an astonishing interest in mud pies and doll babies, but who, as far as her gowns are concerned, will rival her debutante sister. Her wardrobe for her summer vacation will equal the trousseau of any June bride; that is, if she is a fashionable small girl.

Of course she goes in for athletics, and must have a bicycle suit, a tennis frock and a bathing costume, says the New York Journal. Then there are her morning gowns, her outing suits and her party frocks, to say nothing of her Parisian-made hats and her much-felted silk petticoats. And all these gowns are being planned for the baby summer girl who, as a general rule, is still a kindergarten young lady.

If this new summer girl is the daughter of a very fashionable mamma she will own at least a dozen outing costumes this year. She must have sailor suits in plenty. Those made of Holland linen are the newest, and are most serviceable little frocks to wear during that interesting occupation of building sand houses or digging holes through to China. These little suits may be bought ready made in the shops at from $3 to $5. They have a full, plain skirt, made with a hem and a blouse waist with a deep sailor collar. The collar is trimmed with two bands of white pique, which add much to the effect of the little costume.

PIQUE SAILOR SUITS.

Pique sailor suits are also much the vogue. They come in a variety of delicate colors. Some are in white, trimmed with white insertion and white embroidery, and others are of white combined with a colored or figured pique. One of the prettiest of the little sailor suits that were seen was in white and light blue. The blouse waist and plain skirt were made of the white pique, with the sailor collar, necktie and shield in light blue. The collar and gauntlet cuffs were trimmed with white insertion and embroidery frills. For a young lady aged 5, this suit can be bought ready made for $9. Besides the pique sailor suits there are outing suits of this material, consisting of skirt and reefer, for girls a trifle older. They are worn with shirt waists and make a stylish little costume. Some of the most effective are of yellow pique, trimmed with pearl buttons and white insertion. The pique in Dresden designs is also effective as a trimming and to face revers.

That pique is one of the most fashionable materials for children this season is shown by the fact that there are not only pique dresses, but hats, bonnets, coats and capes.

The pique capes are newer this year than the coats. They reach nearly to the waist line, are very full and lavishly trimmed with embroidery. Many of them have sailor collars of all-over embroidery, which fasten in front with a big mull bow. Pique hats are sold to match these capes.

There is still another sailor suit which the small girl must count among her outing costumes, and that is the one made of brilliantine. These suits come as high as $16, but their durability is very great. The prettiest of these brilliantine sailor costumes is in dark blue, trimmed with white and made gay by rows of tiny gilt buttons.

The striped Galatea sailor suits are in evidence this year, though they have been worn for many seasons past. They are always useful for morning wear. On bargain days sailor suits in lawn for very small girls may be bought ready made for $1.15.

OUTING SUITS.

For girls between the ages of 6 and 12 there are outing suits made of storm serge which in design are exactly like the outing suits made for grown-up summer girls. The suits have the plain full skirt and either the jaunty cutaway jacket or box coat. In either case the sailor collar is apt to be worn.

There are any number of different materials used for sailor collars. A good idea is to buy three or four of these collars and wear them at different times with the same suit. A sailor collar to match the suit, if in dark blue, looks effective trimmed with bands of red cloth and outlined with gilt braid. The grass linen sailor collars are exceedingly stylish. Many of them are trimmed with grass linen insertion, while others have a broad line of embroidery beading, through which bright ribbons are run. Sailor collars of all-over white embroidery edged with an embroidery frill are a pretty addition to any outing suit; with the sailor collar gauntlet cuffs are sold to match.

The athletic new summer girl regards her bicycle suit as her favorite costume. If she is the young person who wears Parisian made hats and silk petticoats then she has her bicycle suit made to order. In fact, she has two, one of linen and one of covert cloth. The suits are made with a divided skirt and worn with bloomers. The jacket is generally a Norfolk or a blazer to be worn with shirt waists, and the hat is made of the same material as the suit.

OUTING HEADGEAR.

When the hats and bonnets were designed this year for the small girl of fashion, simplicity was apparently forgotten. The hats for baby girls are quite as elaborate as those worn by society young women.

The newest idea is to combine some flimsy material like chiffon or gauze with fine straw braid. For example, one of the most fashionable bonnets of the season for a young lady of 4 is a poke of yellow straw braid combined with three puffings of white chiffon. The inside brim of the poke is a mass of soft shirred chiffon, and the outside is finished with a becoming little puff. The bonnet is trimmed with white gauze and satin ribbon and graceful bunches of daisies. The ribbon ties under the chin in a big bow.

Many of the round hats for small girls have a straw crown, and an accordion plaited gauze brim. Then there are a variety of pretty grass linen hats, made over silk and trimmed with flowers which match the silk in color.

For dress occasions, when the poke bonnet is not considered becoming, there are very effective hats with a Leghorn brim and a silk Tam O'Shanter crown. These hats are trimmed with tips and also tie under the chin with wide ribbons. But besides these elaborate creations there are many pretty hats and bonnets for baby girls which are very inexpensive.

THE SMALLL BOY.

The small boy who is going to play with the new summer girl has almost as extensive a wardrobe as she has. His sailor suits are many and his blouse waists equal her shirt waists in variety.

When he has not reached the dignity of trousers, he wears a kilt skirt and a lawn waist trimmed with much embroidery. His necktie is then the most conspicuous part of his costume. But when he wears trousers with real pockets at the sides, just like his papa's, then, of course, the necktie fades into insignificance.

Among the most effective sailor suits are those of white duck with the little coat trimmed with rows of gilt buttons and the shield embroidered with a gorgeous gilt anchor. With these suits, duck sailor hats are worn with a gilt band.

The newest sailor suits for vacation wear are of linen. They have short trousers trimmed with tiny buttons and a little coat which shows to advantage a linen or white shield, upon which a beautiful anchor is embroidered in gay colors. Many of these suits have anchors also embroidered upon the sleeves.

NEWEST PARISIAN MILLINERY.

JUNE AND JULY.

Months of Light and Summery Attire.

Fashions blossom out very readily in the month of June, when weddings, garden parties, and the races demand so many dressy costumes suitable to the occasion, and pretty new gowns delight the eye at every turn. Appropriate dress has come to be a very important question in these days, when distinctive modes for special entertainments are the rule for perfection in dress, and so many women prefer to stay at home rather than go to any fashionable social function without the proper gown, says the New York Sun. The study of art in dress, too, has grown to be something besides a purpose to make women beautiful in the eyes of men, and the artistic and practical consideration for the fitness of things has a larger share of attention than it did in the old days when women were not so emancipated.

Anything strikingly new in fashions is almost out of the question until the summer wanes, but slight variations of style in trimming and design are continually coming into notice, and the usual effect of time on the early modes, which is sure to bring softer colors, better harmony, and less exaggeration, is very apparent this season. In all the latest wool and taffeta silk gowns the diminution in size of sleeves and fullness of skirts is very decided, but in all the thin gowns the skirts are still very full, with plenty of decoration in the way of insertions of lace both in the seams and around the bottom, or ruffles set on straight around or in scallops. Small bows of ribbon are used with the festooned flounces to finish each point, and rows of velvet ribbon, with sometimes three colors on one skirt, are also one of the phases of skirt trimming.

The old fashion of tucks has been revived in the muslin and batiste gowns, and one pretty dress of mauve spotted muslin has three one-inch tucks around the skirt, commencing fully four or five inches from the bottom, and each one headed by a quilling or narrow lace edging. Insertions of lace trim the seams, and lime-green ribbon forms the belt and collar. The bodice has a band of insertion down the middle of the front and back, and the material, which is tucked, is arranged on either side so that the tucks slant to the side seams with pretty effect, and narrow lace edges each one. The lower sleeve of tucked bands and slanting rows of lace insertion is without lining, and the short puff at the top does no hide the outline of the arm on the inside. Wrinkled sleeves of silk, as well as of thin materials, are especially good style, with a short puff or epaulette-shaped pieces at the top, and they are extremely becoming to a thin arm. Short elbow puffs are really the most popular sleeve for muslin gowns.

INDIA MULLS.

Embroidered India mulls, in white or never before, and as the season advances India foulards are more and more in evidence. Navy blue with sprawling conventional patterns of white all over it is a favorite coloring, and white with dark blue figures is another pet fancy. Skirts of these thin silk gowns are sometimes made separate from the lining and trimmed with ruffles or ruches of the same.

AN IMPORTED GOWN.

One imported gown of blue and white has two narrow ruffles edged with a narrow loop fringe in the same shade of blue, and one row of white satin baby ribbon finishes the narrow hem. The same ruffles without the fringe trim the draped revers on the waist, and the vest is of embroidered white satin. The stock collar is of white with a frill of lace inside. White chiffon is used for vests in these gowns, which are often made very plain with a finish of white ribbon at the neck and belt for their only decoration. Grass lawn is introduced in combination with foulard silks for waist trimming; but this goes without saying, as every other waist you see, whatever may be the material, has some sort of batiste trimming.

India silks in all-over patterns of mixed colors are made into simple full waists to wear with different skirts, and are decidedly cooler than the cotton shirt waist, with its starched collar and cuffs. Shot silks of three colors are used for these simple waists, and if some thing more dressy is desired, shot silk with green predominating, and pretty suggestions of blue and pearl shining through, is very pretty made up after one of the new models with shirred sleeves and a short zouave, with points in front and at the back falling over a wide-draped belt of black satin. The jacket is trimmed with narrow black and white silk braid, finished with an Irish point collar. The opening in front is filled with a jabot of cream pearl-edged net, which also trims the wrists. Peau de sole, which comes in lovely soft colors, is another fashionable silk for evening and more dressy gowns.

A taking gown is made of the new crepe de chine, in white, and is especially suited in style to summer afternoon entertainments. The skirt has three kilt-plaited ruffles, and the elbow sleeves are accordeon-plaited frills. The waist is fulled on either side of an embroidered white satin vest and banded across with straps of satin fastened down with rhinestone buttons. Silk-striped barege is the material of the second gown and cream French lace and passementerie the trimming. The yoke is of accordion-plaited chiffon, trimmed with Valenciennes insertion, and the new butterfly sleeves are finished with a rosette of lace on the shoulder.

NECK FIXINGS FOR THE SUMMER GIRL.

GRASS LAWN BODICE.

A pretty grass lawn bodice made over pink silk is trimmed with plaited ruffles of lawn, edged with lace and bands from shoulder to waist embroidered in colored silks, and another one of the same lawn shows three tiny lace-edged plaitings across the front to form a yoke, headed by a narrow band of white embroidered insertion. A deep frill over the sleeves has the same finish. A pretty garden party costume of white dotted muslin is made over pink lawn, with two lace ruffles on the skirt, and a pretty feature of the dress is the Marie Antoinette fichu, trimmed with lace and tied with long ends, falling in the back. The collar is of white lace and the belt of pink satin ribbon, which also bands the puffed sleeves.

A model for a white glace silk blouse shows an inner vest of green glace silk. The edges of the front are cut out in scallops, edged with narrow lace and caught down on the green silk with turquoise buttons. Green chiffon frills trim the neck and sleeves. Another stylish model for a gray canvas gown displays the latest shaped zouave with white creped-de-chine rosettes on either side and a wide belt of white chine silk patterned with blurred roses. The sleeves are gathered all the way up and softened with lace at the wrists.

Another design for an outing gown shows still another variety of the short jacket braided and worn over a waist of white flannel. Zouaves of white pique trimmed with Irish crochet lace form a part of the waist of some of the chine silk gowns in light colors, and a white tulle or chiffon vest, with a wide belt of plain satin, in some contrasting color, is the usual accompaniment. A novel idea for a waist to wear with a black and white foulard skirt is carried out in black glace silk, finely tucked, and a wide belt of the same silk, outlined like the front with a piping of bright cerise silk. A white lace chemisette and collar, with fan-plaited ends of red silk at the back, complete this unique costume.

BRIDAL TOILETS.

Advice to Brides Present and Prospective.

And now a word in regard to weddings, says Vanity Fair in the Boston Beacon.

It would be difficult to imagine a prettier wedding than one which took place in a little town where the girl friends of the bride, who was a general favorite, not only planned but executed with their own hands the entire floral adornment of the church.

June wouldn't be June without bevies of brides, and brides wouldn't be brides without dainty and pretty clothes. It is a happy fact, too, that this year every June bride, whether she has a millionaire papa's bank account to draw on, or only the little savings from the small wage she herself has earned, can if she be a person of taste and ordinary good sense be gowned both daintily and prettily, for both the expensive and the more inexpensive wedding gown, this season, is marked by extreme simplicity.

As usual, ivory Duchesse satin is considered the proper material for the bride's gown, with trimmings of Duchesse lace, white chiffon or tulle, but white silk muslin over a white silk drop skirt is also used.

A CHILD'S REEFER.

For bridesmaids, white moire, or a less expensive bengaline, made with colored velvet seems to be the favorite gown.

A very pretty idea is manifested this season in the trousseau, and that is to have the bride's favorite color predominate in all the gowns other than the bridal dress. This gives room for the expression of individuality that is always admirable in the wardrobe of a bride—especially a dawn-of-the-new-century bride.

If the ceremony is performed at the church, and the bride wishes to have color introduced into the group of bridesmaids, a pretty and effective way of doing so is to have one wear blue, another pink, a third violet and a fourth pale green. The gowns should be plain organdie or muslin, made with very full skirts, worn over gored underskirts of white muslin and trimmed at the top of the hem with one or two rows of white Valenciennes insertion.

The chancel was arranged in much the usual manner, with palms and various foliage plants, producing masses of green, relieved here and there by flowers, but the novel feature, and one which drew exclamations of admiration from guests accustomed to the elaborate devices of city florists, was the gates placed about midway down each of the three aisles and covered with white daisies.

These gates were lower at the ends next to the pews, so that they formed a point where they met in the center, and at each one stood a child dressed in white, with colored ribbons, who, as the invited guests appeared, swung them back to permit their entrance.

Many brides who are at a distance from cities, or who cannot afford to order from a confectioner a cake, which is often by no means so nice as that made at home, may be glad to follow a pretty and original way of decorating the frosted tops of wedding cakes used by a lady last year in ornamenting some for a young friend. Taking bunches of young green fruit, tiny grapes, currants, etc., and fern leaves, she arranged them, some singly, some in groups, upon the frosting, pressing them down into the white surface while it was soft, so that they were partially embedded in it, and here and there arranging a little of the frosting over a stem to hold it more securely.

If a reception at home follows the wedding, and there is a bay window in the room, it can be arranged to form a charming bridal bower in which the bride and groom stand during the ceremony.

Frills of Fashion.

The silk gown will not be such a coveted article of dress, because of the price, if the new artificial silk made from wood proves a success. It is now being developed in Switzerland, and is so nearly like the product of the silkworm that it is difficult to distinguish the difference.

White muslin neckties tucked in points at the end and trimmed with Valenciennes lace are among the French novelties, and black and plaid neckties are also much worn by Parisians. It is in all the little accessories of dress that French women especially excel, and the babyeuse in their skirts, their veils, gloves and neck frills, and how they are put on, are all of special importance to them, which is more than half the secret of their success in dress.

Inch wide white satin ribbon, bordered on either edge with narrow ecru guipure, is a pretty trimming for a grass lawn gown. It is set in rows around the skirt and stripes the waist from neck to belt, while the sleeves, which should be tight fitting, are also trimmed from the shoulder to the waist with these bands, and a short puff draped up in the middle finishes the top.

The coat and skirt gown of butchers' blue linen, faced on the edge with butter-colored batiste caught with crosswise lines of tiny gold buttons set in at intervals, is a charming summer dress. The coat with an Eton front and a basque frill in the back is pretty for this, worn with a white tulle vest and a gold belt.

Pink is the prevailing color in much of the summer millinery, and pink straw hats, pink roses, and pink tulle abound. Another popular color is green, in all the divers shades imaginable, and pale lime green straw trimmed with blue or purple is one of the picturesque effects commonly seen this season.

Tan, in all the varying shades, is still a popular color for canvas gowns, and made over pale blue silk, with a wide black satin belt, and a vest front made of a black Madras silk handkerchief, covered with a cone pattern in blue, green and red, the gown is stunning. Two ends of the handkerchief trimmed with black lace, fall below the belt.

Colors and color combinations have grown in importance since warm weather began. Dress in the country is seen at a distance where other details are more or less lost, but where a spot of color against the horizon tells for all it is worth. Evidence of this has for weeks been coming out in the shape of gray gowns, lace trimmed sometimes on the bodice, but for the most part simple enough, with all their effect given by colored ribbons, say a big bow in front at one side of the belt and another at the back of the neck of yellow or green or plum.

White buckskin shoes are the popular thing with white gowns, and pipeclay used as a polish will keep them in their pristine freshness.

Knife pleating has come around again. Narrow ruffles of this sort appear on skirts, up and down the edges of the box plaits on the waist, and the batiste blouse has a basque made of a double frill of knife plaiting.

Some of the leading dressmakers are directing their efforts for a change in fashion toward the dreaded bustle, and some of the newest gowns are padded on the hips and at the back.

White and turquois is a fashionable combination for the bridesmaid gowns, white muslin over white silk, with a turquois blue silk sash and collar, and a lace-trimmed fichu makes a lovely gown.

Beige-colored petticoats are one of the fancies this season, and they harmonize nicely with the batiste and tan gowns so much worn. All the skirts have an inner frill of pinked-out silk.

"Wake up, Jacob, day is breaking!" so said DeWitt's Little Early Risers to the man who had taken them to arouse his sluggish liver. S. F. Boyce.

SMART AFTERNOON BLOUSE.

PACKING MADE EASY.

Some Wholesome Advice For Female Tourists.

Whether one travels to the uttermost parts of the earth or confines her jaunts to "Saturday-till-Monady" trips the woman tourist must, if she values her peace of mind, become a past mistress in the art of packing. For where is one so heroic that she can appreciate Pike's peak or the Garden of the Gods, conscious all the time that her flowered grenadine is being crushed to a crepe paper state in the bottom of her Saratoga? Where is a woman so free from petty vanity that she can enjoy the thought of a Sunday on the Jersey coast in a shirt waist with a rumpled collar. Nature and society are secondary to the packer in their power of affording enjoyment, and no woman should attempt to practice the arts of traveling and visiting until she has mastered that of packing.

In stowing one's garments away in trunks or "boxes," as the English love to say, the first principle is to fill the compartments to the utmost so that the garments give out before the trunk is filled tightly. It is fatal to fasten the lock and to rejoice in the case with which the operation is accomplished. After the trunk comes in the hands of a baggage agent, a partly-filled "box" is like the proverbial pod with one pea in it, and the frocks and hats have occupy the position similar to that of the pea are tossed about, rumpled and crushed sometimes beyond repair. Moreover a scantily-filled trunk is more likely to be broken than a well-filled one.

The sleeves of the thin gowns should be stuffed out with tissue paper, So, indeed, should all dress sleeves. They should then be folded across the back of the bodice, pinned together and turned back from cuff to elbow upon themselves. The bodice can then be folded nearly so as to keep the front unrumpled and the collar free from creases. Two or three pins will tack the folded parts in position so that the ordinary chances of travel will not crush the waist.

Skirts should be folded evenly in two across the bottom. Then they should be turned back upon themselves in such a way as to interfers as little as possible with their plaits. They should be folded across at the line where the stiffening ceases. Bands of lute string ribbon tied across them will keep them in position during all the perils of a journey.

All light lined garments should be wrapped with tissue paper before being consigned to the trunk. Over a layer of dark clothes a cheese cloth sheet should always be drawn, to prevent contact with light clothing.

Hats, when they are carried in the ordinary trunk, must be carefully packed. They must be securely attached to an upright position in the hat box or they will be utterly ruined after the first baggage-smasher has laid his ruthless hands upon the "box." Hats should be stuffed with tissue paper, and any upright adornments which they may boast should be tenderly swathed in the same protecting fabric. It is an excellent idea to render the hat's position in its compartment firm by means of ribbons attached to it and to the sides of the hat tray.

Heavy garments should be packed below airy ones, of course. Small articles, such as fans, handkerchiefs, gloves, veils and the like, should never be placed in a compartment until they have been collected and placed in cases which may be securely fastened. The cases may then be packed.

Packing a traveling bag is often more of an art than packing a trunk. As a usual thing it must contain all the conveniences of civilization as far as cleanliness is concerned, as well as most of the comforts of home. If it is intended to accompany one on an all-night journey it must hold a nightdress, brushes, combs, soap, toilet water, cold cream, manicure implements, wash rags and the like. The night dress which is most easily rolled into a small bundle is of China silk. For traveling this is preferably of some dark color, so that no accident may reveal the traveler as an undignified apparition to her fellow passengers. The night gown should be rolled into a compact bundle and should occupy a side of the bottom of the bag. A linen bag made with several compartments will hold, in one half implements, in another a toothbrush and a long narrow bottle of tooth powder, in another a manicure set, and in a fourth a small whisk broom. The bag, being divided, will roll into a small bundle and may share the floor space of the valise with the night dress. Small linen cases for small bottles, in which toilet water, ammonia and brandy may be carried, are easily made or cheaply purchased, and these make valise packing fairly easy. There is room in a moderately large bag, after these things are put in, for a book, a purse and a few handkerchiefs and collars. Sometimes a careful packer may even manage to insert an extra shirt waist at the bottom of the pile.

NEW SKYLIGHT SUBSTITUTE.

Glass has hitherto been the best material known for skylights, but it was forever cracking, breaking and leaking, owing to the effect on it of heat, cold, blows, storms, expansion, contraction, etc, says the St. Louis Globe Democrat. To overcome these defects many and various forms of skylight frames have been invented, but the troubles are not materially lessened. The introduction of iron and steel in the construction of buildings has made matters worse for the glass skylight. The expansion and contraction of the metal framework plays havoc with the glass, and the yearly cost of repairing is considerable. To meet the need of a more durable skylight material, a translucent wire cloth has been invented, which, when filled with a semi-transparent, impervious substance, does all that glass can do, and a great deal more. While transmitting a large amount of light, it is strong, flexible, weather proof, durable and practically unbreakable. The substance covering the wire cloth is composed almost entirely of boiled linseed oil, which is subjected to an oxidizing process. The material is claimed to be virtually fire proof, and to cost much less than glass skylights.

THE GOSSIPER.

An entire gown of Persian silk, with a ground of pale shrimp pink and scrolled design in green, dull blue and black, is combined effectively with black mousseline de sole, and the richest of narrow pearl embroidery set full of glistening rhinestones. The widely-sweeping skirt has narrow frills set about the foot, reaching to the knees, in curves of the black mousseline de sole, headed by bands of embroidery. The bodice is in the Louis XIV effect, with a much-blousel front, a gauffered white tulle, from which flare wide revers of lace covered pink satin. Immensely wide cuffs of lace-covered satin finish the sleeves. With this gown is worn a small, flat hat of gold braid, massed with brilliant morning glories and heaps of foliage. A charmingly dainty parasol of shrimp pink tulle, all a-glitter with rhinestones and pearls, has an exquisite handle of mother of pearl, with the owner's name set in the stones. Another fetching frock is of the softest of smoke-gray barege, with narrow threads of lilac running through. The skirt has a panel of tiny frills of lilac crepe, spreading widely at the foot and forming a sharp point at the waist. The bodice is a neat little folded affair, with a narrow twist of lilac at the waist, while the sleeves, cut tight are covered with quantities of the narrowest sort of frills.

French nainsook, fine Swiss muslin, mull and organdie are used for white waists. These are elaborately trimmed with embroidery, lace and ribbons.

Celia Thaxter, the poetess of the Isle of Shoals, had not an exalted opinion of the capacities of her sex.

She once said: "Women never invented knitting nor any other art." Yet it is an indisputed fact that the first button establishment was due to a woman.

The machine for making satchel bottomed paper bags was the invention of a woman, men having tried long and unsuccessfully to produce such an article.

A foundry owner declares that the first stove he ever saw was invented by a woman, though the patent was taken out by a man, and the original Declaration of Independence was printed by one Mary Katherine Goddard. There!

"They will play in the dirt!" exclaimed a horrified mother to her fine lady callers, when two whitely dressed young hopefuls came into the reception room with mud-daubed hands and dresses a perfect sight from the dirt ground into them. "Of course, they will," responded the daintiest of the callers. "Mine have a mania for dirt that is appalling; but I had several loads of clean, white sand put in our scrap of a back yard, and the delight of it in my babies is worth witnessing. I can put their pretty white dresses on them and send them to that sand pile, knowing that all I will have to do to make them presentable is to shake them down a little and empty their shoes. Of course, they are not permitted to have water after they are freshly dressed. Just try my plan."

From what little things mere accidents (sometimes) do our most beautiful ornamental inventions grow!

The art of etching on glass was discovered by a Nuremberg glass cutter. By accident a few drops of aqua fortis fell upon his spectacles. He noticed that they became corroded and softened where the acid had touched. That hint was enough. He drew figures upon glass with varnish, applied corroding fluid, then cut away the glass around the drawing. When the varnish was removed the figures appeared raised upon a dark ground.

The materials required for a handy little traveling companion are half a yard of gray linen, a piece of skirt braid, half a yard of three-quarter inch silk elastic, and five flat half-ounce bottles, which latter articles can be purchased at any chemist's shop. It is best to procure the bottles first, as the size of the case can be determined only by measuring them. Take a piece of cardboard and place the bottles side by side, allowing about an eighth of an inch between each. The cardboard should extend at least an inch beyond the bottles. Cut the pattern first in paper, and fold it over the cardboard in envelope fashion, and when it has been proportioned in such a way that the flaps, or pocket meet neatly and exactly without lapping, cut out of the linen two pieces like the pattern; paste one on the cardboard and then sew won the elastic, so as to hold the bottles firmly. It is necessary to sew the elastic on at this stage, as it is impossible to do it later without letting the stitches show through. Having done this paste on the other part, and having accurately adjusted the two pieces, sew well and firmly together just outside of a piece of cardboard. Cut from the linen pieces to make the flap pockets in which to keep court plaster, bandages, etc. These pieces are hemmed and feather stitched and pasted on the case. The braid is next pasted all about the edge, and the whole case stitched up at once by machine. If a very dainty affair is desired, ribbon may be used instead of braid for binding, and the case further decorated by being tied with a large bow.

The quality of mercy is something which few shopping fiends possess in any considerable quantity, and this bit of advice, gleaned from the annual report of the Consumers' league, is very good, humane advice:

Shop during reasonable hours; when possible, early in the morning, when saleswomen are fresh and not tired out and nervous. Avoid making purchases Saturday afternoon, so that eventually the shops may all give a half holiday. If at any time you feel irritated or annoyed by apparent indifference or carelessness of saleswomen, stop and consider what it means to be on one's feet ten to fourteen hours a day, in a crowded space, shoved and pushed about, lifting heavy boxes at times, waiting on impatient customers who wish to be helped to know their own minds, keeping account of sales and stock, taking addresses, often given hurriedly and carelessly, and fined in many instances if written down incorrectly; and all this for salaries ranging from $3 to $8 per week, and to pay out of it for one's board, lodging, clothing and car fare.

Did you ever notice how the jewelers delight in placing only a few dainty feminine ornaments in each window? This has the effect of impressing one with the beauty and value of the limited display and creates a burning desire to see what is contained in the glittering show cases inside. Belts are occupying considerable space in the show windows just now, and a stroll past a half dozen displays confuses one's idea so that it is hard to tell just which to choose—there are so many pretty ones. The narrow ones with a small purse attached seem to fill a long-felt want, and if they only contained a tiny watch pocket somewhere on the under side they would be a god send to the shirt waist maid.

To the cares of housekeeping, Mrs. Cleveland gives scant, if any, time. She has a thoroughly competent housekeeper and well-trained servants, so that this is not necessary nor desirable. Nearly all of the tiny garments prepared for little Esther and Marion were fashioned before their arrival by their mother's loving hands.

As for little Miss Ruth, the oldest daughter, every gown, skirt and even the soft embroidered muslin caps were made for her by her mother and grandmother. Mrs. Cleveland is fond of all manner of embroideries and fine fancy work, and is never without a supply that can be picked up in those rare "odd moments" that come to her in the course of twenty-four hours.

Mrs. Cleveland has many hats and bonnets. She prefers the latter, and orders most of them from a French milliner in Washington. Mrs. Cleveland often trims over many of her bonnets, either those of which she is tired or one that does not suit her fancy. Society little dreams that often, even upon the most important occasions, the bonnet worn by the president's wife is one she has trimmed with her own skilled fingers.

BABY BRAINS.

Some Great Discoveries Made By Children.

Unfortunately it does not always happen that the person to whom we are really indebted for a useful or important invention is he who gets all the credit, says the New York Mercury. The so-called inventor is as often as not a man who is gifted with a quick appreciation of the possibilities underlying some apparently trivial accident or discovery. He adopts and adapts some little idea that chance brings under his notice, and, by thus rescuing it from oblivion, is a very valuable member of the community. But some recognition is frequently due to the individual who gave him the notion, though quite unable to appreciate its value or make any use of it himself.

Children have always been a fruitful source of invention, though they do not often get any credit for it. The adult prefers to receive it all himself, and the child in its simplicity can be trusted not to dispute the claim. Still, there are cases on record where the young discoverers have not been robbed of their laurels.

The children of a Dutch spectacle-maker, named Cornelius Jansen, happened one day to be playing with some of their father's glasses in front of his shop door. Placing two of the glasses together they peeped through them, and were exceedingly astonished to see the weathercock of the neighboring steeple brought within a short distance of their eyes. They were naturally puzzled, and called their father to see the strange sight.

When the spectacle maker looked through the glasses he was no less surprised than the children had been. He went indoors and thought the matter over, and then the idea occurred to him that he might construct a curious new toy which would give people a good deal of amusement. He did so, and Galileo, hearing of this instrument that was said to make distant things appear close at hand, saw at once what a valuable help it would be to study the heavens. He set to work for himself on it, and soon produced the telescope.

A poor Swiss, named Argand, invented a lamp with a wick fitted into a hollow cylinder, up which a current was allowed to pass, thus giving a supply of oxygen to the interior as well as to the exterior of the circular flame. At first Argand used the lamp without a glass chimney, the invention of which important adjunct would doubtless have been delayed for some time had it not been for the thoughtless juvenile experiments of his little brother.

One day, when Argand was busy in his work room and sitting before the burning lamp, this boy was amusing himself by placing a bottomless oil flask over different articles. Suddenly he placed it upon the flame of the lamp, which instantly shot up the long, circular neck of the flask with increased brilliancy. Argand did not happen to be the man to allow such a suggestive occurrence to escape him. The idea of the lamp chimney almost immediately came into his head, and in a short time his invention was perfected.

One of the early difficulties with the steam engine was that of condensing the steam in the cylinder. Savary dashed cold water on the outside, but Newcomen afterward invented a method of directing a stream of cold water into the inside of the cylinder at every raise of the piston. This was accomplished by two stop-cocks, which were turned by hand, and the whole action of the machine depended upon the attention of the person who watched these two cocks.

Humphrey Potter, a boy employed to tend one of Newcomen's engines, belonging to Mr. Beighton, found the constant watching so troublesome that he set himself to contrive a way by which the cocks might be turned on at the right time and yet allow him an opportunity of playing with the boys in the street. Observing that the particular moment at which the valve required to be opened for the admission of the steam was that at which the pump-rod end of the beam was raised to its highest, and that the moment at which the other cock required to be opened was when the piston-rod end was at its highest, he saw that, by attaching strings to the stop-cocks, and connecting them with various parts of the beams, the rising and falling of the two ends would turn the two cocks as necessary. This rude gear of a skulking boy was discovered and practically adopted, rods being substituted for the strings.

An infant in arms was really responsible for the invention of that useful little article, the safety-pin. A blacksmith out of work was spending the day at home, and his troubles were not lessened by the prolonged and agonizing cries of the baby. The child refused to be comforted, and was evidently trying in his own inarticulate way to give the father a valuable "tip." The smith sought diligently for the cause of his child's lamentations, and found it in the pricking of an ordinary pin. He at once set to work to obviate such troubles in the future, and after much well-directed industry, he succeeded in making safety-pins, which were crude in form, but answered the required purpose satisfactorily. How every generation of babies from that time forward would bless the infant whose persistent protests led to an invention so important to them all, if they only knew of it!

NOTICE TO Build Sidewalks.

Notice is hereby given that the common council of the city of Duluth, by resolutions adopted June 15, 1896, has ordered the construction of plank sidewalks as follows:

A temporary 3-foot sidewalk on the westerly side of Nineteenth avenue east from Superior street to First street.

A temporary 3-foot sidewalk on the easterly side of Occidental boulevard, or Sixty-first avenue east, from Tioga street to the middle of lot 16, in block 36, Lester Park, Third Division.

A temporary 3-foot sidewalk on the east side of Fifty-second avenue east from London road to Grand avenue; and

A temporary 3-foot sidewalk on the upper side of Helm avenue from Twenty-seventh avenue west to Twenty-eighth avenue west.

In accordance with the provisions of said resolutions, notice is hereby given to all owners and occupants of any and all lots or parcels of land adjoining the avenues above named between the limits specified to construct sidewalk adjoining their several lots where they abut on the avenues aforesaid at their own proper expense and charge before July 15, 1896. Said walks to be constructed in accordance with plans and specifications on file in the office of the board of public works, and to be built to the established line and grade, or to a temporary line and grade to be given by the city engineer.

If the said owners or occupants fail to construct said walk before July 15, 1896, or if any such work or part thereof is not done in the manner prescribed by said plans and specifications, or if said walk is not built to the line and grade prescribed, then the board of public works of the city of Duluth will cause the same to be done, and the full cost and expense thereof, together with ten (10) per cent additional for cost of surveys, plans and superintendence, will be assessed against said lots.

Duluth, Minn., June 20, 1896.

Nays—Commissioner Swenson.

By Commissioner Swenson:

Resolved, that the county attorney be and is hereby requested to give this board his written opinion as to whether the funds accumulated in the county bond sinking fund or any other sinking funds which they may have under their control may be invested in the county road bonds which were authorized by special election held March 10th last.

Commissioner Dinham moved the adoption of the resolution, and it was declared adopted by a unanimous vote.

Upon motion of Commissioner Miller the board adjourned, to meet at 9 o'clock a. m. June 5th, 1896.

9 o'clock a. m., June 5th, 1896.

The board of county commissioners met at 9 o'clock a. m. this 5th day of June, 1896, pursuant to adjournment.

Present—Commissioners Swenson, Miller, Morcom, Dinham and Chairman Helm.

The bond of the National Bank of Commerce, as security for county deposits, was presented and referred to committee on claims and accounts.

By Commissioner Dinham:

Whereas, the grand jury inquiring in and for the county of St. Louis, state of Minnesota, at the May, A. D. 1896, general term of the district court, made an investigation of the county poor farm, and severely criticized the methods of conducting said farm, to-wit: In reference to burying paupers and the manner of marking their graves for identification; and also with reference to the ventilation of some of the rooms of the poorhouse;

And whereas, it also investigated the hospital accommodation of county sick patients and pronounced the same to be extremely dangerous for the sick and helpless, because of its being a veritable fire-trap;

It is resolved, that a suitable system of marking graves for identification be adopted, to-wit: That the burial grounds be laid out in blocks and lots, numbered from one (1) upwards; and that suitable books be purchased, and the name, age and all particulars of the deceased be entered therein, together with the block and number of grave; also, that indestructible headstones be placed at the heads of the graves, bearing the name and age and date of death, corresponding with book entries.

It is further resolved, that we immediately proceed to build a stone vault at the poor farm, St. Louis county, Minnesota, in which to place the bodies during the winter months until such time as decent interment can be made.

It is further resolved, that a carpenter be sent out to the poor farm house to make such changes in or additions to said house as will enable the superintendent to thoroughly ventilate said building.

It is further resolved that immediate action be taken towards the building of a fire-proof county hospital for the accommodation of county patients.

Commissioner Swenson moved the adoption of the resolution.

There being no second to the motion, the resolution was declared lost.

By Commissioner Miller.

Resolved, that the sum of $320 be and is hereby appropriated out of the proper funds for payment of salaries of the following named persons for the month of June, 1896, and the county auditor is hereby directed to issue his warrants for same when the salaries become due:

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria is the Children's Panacea —the Mother's Friend.

Castoria destroys worms, allays feverishness, cures diarrhœa and wind colic, relieves teething troubles, and cures constipation.

Castoria contains no paregoric, morphine, or opium in any form.

"For several years I have recommended Castoria, and shall always continue to do so as it has invariably produced beneficial results."

EDWIN F. PARDEE, M. D.,
125th Street and 7th Avenue,
New York City.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford Str., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"The use of Castoria is so universal and its merits so well known that it seems a work of supererogation to endorse it. Few are the intelligent families who do not keep Castoria within easy reach."

CARLOS MARTYN, D. D.,

FILLED WITH WHISKY.

A Pneumatic Tire Romance in North Carolina.

A remarkable story has just come to light in which figure moonshiners, a revenue officer, a beautiful mountain maid, cupid and bicycles, says the Philadelphia Times.

In the summer a suspicion which the revenue department has long entertained ripened into certainty that there was an illicit still somewhere in this vicinity which was producing large quantities of "mountain dew." The local officials being well known to the inhabitants, the department sent here a young man from New York, one Jack Dickson by name, whose instructions were to ferret out such information as he could get, while apparently occupied solely in fishing, hunting, and otherwise passing a month's vacation.

The program was duly carried out. Dickson hunted and fished and kept his eyes open, but not even a whiff could he get of the forbidden liquor.

Naturally he had to seek his information with the utmost care, and fearful of arousing suspicion by direct inquiry, he confined his efforts principally to keeping his eyes open and his mouth shut.

One day, nearly two weeks after his arrival, he took his fishing rod and journeyed in a direction not hitherto taken. Trying many mountain streams he caught a few fish, but his spying efforts were as vain as heretofore.

Evening came on, and, not knowing his whereabouts, he was delighted to succeed in getting out of the underbrush onto a wagon road. Undecided which direction to take, he paused by the roadside a moment, when an apparition darted around the bend of the road which fairly took away his breath. A bicycle in this wilderness, and what is more, ridden by an attractive girl! She saw him, of course, and as he admitted himself to be lost, she directed him how to reach her father's farmhouse, extending a cordial invitation to stop, with all the free good-fellowship for which our girls hereabout are noted. Then mounting her wheel, she sped away, while Dickson hurried behind.

The farmer insisted upon his staying all night, and he did so. It was a case of love at first sight. Dickson, being an expert wheelman himself, was captivated by the beautiful mountain rider. Moonshiners were forgotten in the next few days. Within a week he had his own wheel sent hither by express, and was more than pleased to comply with Sallie Newman's laughing orders that it must be kept at the farm. Every day they went out together, starting from the farm in the afternoon and riding through the leafy byways, frequently stopping at the residence of Sallie's aunt in the village for supper, and going home in the moonlight.

Weeks sped away, until one day Dickson was rudely awakened from his dream of bliss by a peremptory order from Washington to return home, his mission having proved fruitless. Sadly he started out with Sallie for a final ride. All unconscious of his woes, Sallie twitted him upon his strange silence, and then challenged him to a race. Away she sped, and he was sorely tried to keep at her side. Neither noticed the fragments of a pane of window glass, dropped on the road by some unlucky farmer, until too late.

"Hold on; our tires are punctured!" shouted Dickson, jumping from his wheel. "By the great horn spoon, what's that?" he added, gazing with amazement at a tiny stream of liquor spurting from both front and rear tires. A moment later the whole situation fell upon him. "Oh, you little moonshiner!" he murmured, and then he let his wheel fall and sprang to catch Sallie, who had swooned.

For six weeks the valiant Dickson had been assisting unawares the moonshiners by carrying whisky in his pneumatic tires, inserted at the farmhouse and deftly removed by Aunt Jane in the village.

Did he arrest the guilty maid? Not much. He resigned his position and married her, and the happy pair now live in Philadelphia, where they are often seen on a tandem in the park.

It is scarcely necessary to add, the tires are now inflated solely with air.

DRUMMERS LIVE LONG.

The chief actuary of a big life insurance company gives it that commercial travelers and agents live longer than men in any other kind of business, notwithstanding the hazards which attend transportation by rail and water. Next to them come dentists, teachers and professors, including music teachers, says the Pittsburg Dispatch.

After these in longevity are hatters, clergymen and missionaries. The last may eventually furnish food for the larder of untutored savages, but they are at first-class risk, nevertheless. Next come bankers and capitalists, who seem to live a trifle longer than butchers and market men.

Lawyers and jewelers follow, and they are succeeded on the list by merchants, peddlars, milkmen and pawnbrokers. Then come gardeners, laborers, civil engineers and canvassers. Perhaps the treatment which canvassers are apt to receive in the ordinary course of their business shortens their lives.

Of course newspaper men do not live so long as any of the people above mentioned. Even bookkeepers and bank cashiers, as well as artists and architects, are ahead of them. They come in later with the printers, physicians and gentlemen who are not engaged in any active employment.

Then follow the apothecaries and photographers, and after them in order bakers, cigar makers, estate agents, army officers and soldiers, publicans, sailors and naval officers. Shortest lived of all seem to be the auctioneers, boarding house keepers, barbers and drivers.

THE MUCH-ABUSED MOTHER-IN-LAW.

Your uncles, cousins, aunts—all who expect to take a summer trip by lake or rail—should call at the South Shore office, 426 Spalding house block, and see what they offer.

It robs them of their terrors — by taking away that clothes-destroying, back-breaking rub, rub, rub. What does the work of washing amount to, when all you have to do is to put the things in to soak and boil—and then just rinse them out? That's the Pearline way of washing—easy for women and easy for clothes. In all kinds of cleaning, too, you get rid of that tiresome rubbing. Any one can see what it saves. And remember, no matter how you use Pearline, it's absolutely and entirely harmless. 494

FLIRTING

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Says It Is a Fine Art Really.

Some of the Innumerable Styles of Flirtation Exposed.

With a Parasol---With a Handkerchief---With a Fan.

Who invented flirtation? asks Ella Wheeler Wilcox in the New York Journal. Did Eve lead Adam a chase through the garden of Eden, I wonder, and alternate frowns with smiles before the ultimate surrender? The Bible historian failed to enlighten us upon this point, but if we are to think of Eve as a typical woman, (and, to judge by her later conduct, she was) it is safe to believe that she flirted mildly with Adam. Those who go further back than to the garden for our ancestry will find evidence enough to prove that the instinct to flirt is a natural inheritance from our animal fore-parents. Observations of people, birds and beasts have impressed upon me this fact, viz.: Wherever sex attraction exists, there, too, exists the impulse of coquetry. The pursued may be consumed with love for the pursuer, yet she flies and seems averse to his wooing, only that he may seek her the more ardently.

Give it whatever name we will, surround it with every society convention, yet it is the inborn and mating instinct which impels women to flirtation. It is the natural weapon of defense of the unpossessed; yet, strange to relate, the silken clothed, as well as the furred or feathered flirt, is almost always the aggressor.

The lower animal is bolder, and, not fearing public opinion, makes little effort to hide the fact that she is in the mood for a flirtation.

Woman, on the contrary, covers her attack with admirable skill—so admirable that others are only onlookers, but the man himself believes that he made the first advance.

The woman who is detected in the initiative is only a bungler or a novice in the science of flirtation.

She is like the general who, before the battle begins, allows the enemy to discover his plans. Man is the most wary of all male animals, and the most notional. He must be surprised to be captured, and to the last he must believe that he was pursuer and captor. Yet, unless the gauntlet is discreetly thrown, he is slow to pursuit.

I wish I might write of flirtation as the deadliest of dangers, and warn all women whose eyes fall upon my words to avoid its pitfalls. But when I am asked to discuss a subject, I must speak the truth of it as I see it, and I am sorry to record the fact that the girl who is utterly devoid of coquetry seldom marries either so early or so well as her flirtishly inclined sister. Men admire and neglect the thoroughly prudent woman. They disapprove of and court the wily coquette. Yet, perhaps, man is not so paradoxical in these matters as he seems. Perhaps he consciously or unconsciously grasps a subtle truth in regard to the fair sex, and observes that prudence is oftener a matter of temperament than principle. The phlegmatic are not always the most virtuous. Circulation, rather than mentality, frequently directs behavior. And not infrequently the cultured coquette makes the truest pet, while a prude in chains a prude remains.

Meanwhile it is well for a woman to understand in what the art of flirtation consists, and what are its legitimate limits before she classes herself among its practitioners. It is the most subtle of all sciences. Its greatest eloquence lies in silence, and glances are more impressive than words. The wise coquette knows that the lips must be subservient to the eyelash. She indulges in sign language, which she leaves the lover to interpret as he will.

When she descends to words and promises, which she utters only to break, she is no longer an artist; she is only a vulgar pretender in the science.

During the last three months I have read a series of tragedies strikingly similar in outlines, wherein betrothed maidens jilted their lovers for another almost at the very altar. It is not of these heartless and brainless beings I speak. For all such there is only due contempt and the misery which such conduct is sure to bring. A bad promise is better broken than kept, to be sure; but the woman who deceives a man to the very day and hour of his expected nuptials is not a coquette; she is simply a perjurer and liar.

The spirit of coquetry is the handmaiden of Cupid and the courier of Hymen so long as it emanates from the unfettered heart. It is an emissary from the devil when associated with the fiance or the wife.

Coquetry leads the lover to the altar; but it sends the husband to the prison or the divorce court. The most virtuous of hearts often dwells in the breast of the girl who flirts. A virtuous heart never dwelt in the breast of a flirting wife.

The season of flirtation is with us. Skies, winds, waves and shaded lanes all invite the unmated hearts of earth to indulge in the most delicious and most dangerous of pastimes.

And thus forever since time began
Has man dared woman, and woman lured man
To that sweet danger that lurks and lies
In the bloodless battle of eyes with eyes;
That reckless danger as vast as sweet,
Whose bitter ending is joy's defeat.
Ah! thus forever, while time shall last,
On passion's altar must hearts be cast.

WITH A PARASOL

Carrying it elevated in left hand—I desire your acquaintance.

Carrying elevated in right hand—You are far too willing.

Carrying closed in left hand—Meet me on the first crossing.

Carrying closed in right hand, held down—Follow me.

Swinging to and fro by the handle on left side—I am engaged.

Swinging to and fro by handle on right side—I am married.

Balancing it on the hand—I am much displeased.

Tapping on the chin gently—I am in love with another.

Using it as a fan—Introduce me to your company.

Twirling it around—Be careful, we are watched.

Carrying it over the right shoulder—You can speak to me.

Carrying over left shoulder—You are too cruel.

Closing it vigorously—I wish to speak to you, love.

Folding it neatly—Get rid of your company.

Letting it rest on the right cheek—Yes.

Letting it rest on the left cheek—No.

Holding it with handle to the lips—You may kiss me.

Holding it with the tip of it to the lips—Do you love me?

Dropping it to the ground—I love you.

Holding it open, directly over the head—Your presence annoys me.

Carrying it closed under the right arm—I scorn your advances.

Carrying it closed under the left arm—Am willing to meet you.

Holding in both hands—I am indifferent to you.

WITH A HANDKERCHIEF.

Drawing across the lips—Desiring a flirtation.

Twisting in the left hand—I desire to be rich.

Twisting to the right—I am thinking of you.

Winding it around the third finger—I am married.

Winding it around the forefinger—I am engaged to be married.

Placing it on the right ear—Has your hour changed?

Drawing across the forehead—Look, we are watched.

Holding opposite corners in both hands—Do wait for me.

Holding by all four corners—I love another.

Drawing it through the hands—I hate you.

Holding it pressed to the right cheek—Yes.

Holding it pressed to the left cheek—No.

Twirling in right hand—I will meet you.

Twirling in left hand—Appointment.

Drawing it across the eyes—I am sorry.

Twirling in both hands—Indifference.

Drawing across the cheek—I love you.

Folding it carefully—I wish to speak with you.

Dropping it—I am sure we will be friends.

Waving it over the right shoulder—Follow me.

Waving it over the left shoulder—Farewell.

WITH THE FAN.

Carrying in right hand in front of face—Follow me.

Carrying in left hand—I desire your acquaintance.

Placing against right ear—How much you have changed!

Placing it against left ear—You are as interesting as of old.

Twirling it in left hand—I wish to get rid of you.

Drawing across the forhead—Beware, we are watched.

Carrying in the right hand—You are much too willing.

Drawing through the right hand—It is useless to approach; I hate you.

Twirling in the right hand—You are too late; I love another.

Drawing slowly across the cheek—I love you.

Drawing across the eyes—I am very sorry for you.

Letting it rest on right cheek—Yes.

Letting it rest on left cheek—No.

Opening and shutting it rapidly—You are cruel to me.

Dropping it in the lap—We will be friends.

Fanning slowly with eyes cast down—I am married.

Fanning rapidly and excitedly—I am only engaged.

Holding fan with handle pressed to the lips—Kiss me.

Holding fan entirely shut—You have changed.

Holding fan partly shut—You are still dear to me.

Holding fan still and wide open—Wait for me.

Resting fan, closed, on right shoulder—You share my affections.

Resting, closed, on left shoulder—I declare war against you.

BRAIN WORKERS SHOULD USE HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE.

Dr. C. H. Goodman, St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have used it for several years, with especially good results in nervous prostration, the results of mental efforts; also in sleepless condition of brain workers."

GREATEST OCEAN DEPTH.

For twenty years and more the deepest spot in the ocean has been supposed to be to the northeast of Japan. There the bottom lies 4655 fathoms down, or more than five miles beneath the surface of the waves, says the New York Journal.

In the latest hydrographer's report of admiralty surveys, made by the British government, this ocean record, which has stood so long, is beaten, for there is official information of a deeper sounding than has hitherto been made. The deepest spot in the ocean, so far as known at present, has been found to be in the neighborhood of the Friendly and Kermadec islands, in the South Pacific. Here the maximum depth is 5155 fathoms, or close upon six miles. This observation, made by the officers on board the British ship Penguin, is all the more interesting for the fact that it bears out the result of previous researches, showing curiously enough as it does that the deepest parts of the sea are not far from land.

Deep sea sounding has come to be of late years an exact science in itself. One curious feature of it, and one which is little known, is that the "leads" used have to be constructed with especial strength in order to withstand the enormous pressure of the mass of water which bears down upon them when they lie upon the bottom. So great is this pressure that the sounding apparatus in ordinary use would be crushed.

TOBACCO

Some Queer Substitutes Which are Used for Deceiving Smokers.

Patent Office Has a Large Number of Patented Ideas.

Pine Needles, Sunflowers, Cornstalks and Other Strange Vegetations.

Among the queerest inventions recorded at the patent office are ideas for tobacco substitutes. Apparently the whole vegetable kingdom has been ransacked for material to take the place of the herb nicotian in the manufacture of cigars, plug for chewers and fuel for the pipe, says the New York Journal. There is hardly a familiar herb whose leaves are not called into requisition. It is no idle tale that the potato, the beet, the cabbage and the turnip help out the commercial supply of the weed. For the preparation of these plants and the imitative doctoring of them, there are numberless ingenious processes.

Many of the patented substitutes, however, do not pretend to counterfeit tobacco. For example, one inventor has secured exclusive rights in the idea of making cigars with fillers of pine needles. The needles are to be gathered when they are green and "full of tarry matter." A wrapper of moist tobacco leaf is put around them, and the cigar when dry is guaranteed to burn readily. It is warranted to cure throat and lung trouble. Another patent is for cigars of sunflower leaves, which are to be cut when the seed ripens. The use of a tobacco wrapper in this case is allowed to persons long accustomed to that weed.

A woman has secured a patent on eucalyptus leaves. She says that they, "unlike tobacco, leave a clean and pleasant flavor in the mouth. Also she claims priority in the notion of employing them for the pipe, for snuff, as tooth powder and, with suitable fats, in the manufacture of soaps and candles. Another inventor proposes to use Indian corn, prepared like tobacco, for chewing and smoking. The stalks of the corn are to be boiled in water to a syrup, to which is to be added quassia, or capsicum, or "other bitter botanic product." The leaves, having been dried in the sun, are to be dipped in this syrup before making them into cigars and plug.

A thoughful individual has devised a preparation that is guaranteed to destroy the apetite for tobacco in thirty days. It is composed of gum resin, beeswax, white wax, poplar bark, Virginia snakeroot and cayenne pepper. Another substitute warranted to allay the craving is a mixture of spikenard, red clover, hops, slippery elm bark, pennyroyal, wild cherry bark, hyssop, ginsenge and tarred rope. All of these ingredients are to be then dried, powdered and mixed in certain proportions. A patent has been granted for a plug tobacco consisting of gentian root, prickly-ash bark, sassafras bark and extract of licorice.

Another patent is for a method by which the smoker is enabled to acquire a mild jag with each cigar he consumes. The manufacturer prepares a mixture consisting of one gallon of rum, one gallon of alcohol, quarter of a pound of oil of apple, half a pound of tonka bean, half a pound of valerian root and quarter of a pint of laudanum. This is to be put in a stone jug and kept tightly corked for a month. It will then be ready for use. While the cigars are being packed in boxes, the end to be lighted of each one is dipped in quor. It is expected that the lady who got used to cigars prepared in this way will be satisfied with any other thereafter. Such a liquor is known in the trade as a "sauce." All tobaccos are treated with sauces before being made up into their commercial forms. By this means they are flavored in various ways, so as to adapt them to the tastes of consumers.

Mucilaginous substances in small quantities are added to cigarette tobacco so that the particles may hold together and not fall out of the paper wrapper. Some pipe tobaccos are heavily charged with perfume by treating them with the essential oils of verbena, citronelle, bergamot, cassia, musk and catechu. It is not true that cigarettes are commonly charged with opium and other injurious drugs. However, they are flavored with essences of various plants, such as vanilla, stramonium, coffee, valerian and tea. Occasionally a few tea leaves are mixed with the tobacco. Among the flavors most used are the lemon, the orange, geranium, sassafras, thyme, anise, mint and cinnamon. Honey and maple sugar are utilized for sweetening. A decoction of hay is sometimes applied to smoking tobacco.

The basis of a "sauce" is nearly always some spirituous liquor—usually rum. Sometimes wine is used. Glycerine is a common ingredient. More or less molasses enters into the composition of much plug tobacco. The rum preserves the tobacco and adds to the flavor of the plug. The plug trade for the United States navy is large, and it is required by the government that the tobacco furnished in this shape for the use of its sailors shall contain no foreign substance except a limited percentage of licorice. Saltpetre is sometimes added to smoking tobacco to make it burn better. The tobacco leaves are dipped into the sauce or else sprinkled with it.

Several patents have been obtained for methods of spoting tobacco leaves artificially. In a certain district of Sumatra, which produces an exceptionally fine tobacco for wrappers, the leaves of the plants are commonly speckled in a curious way. One amusing theory advanced to account for this phenomenon is that the dew drops on the leaves form small lenses, which concentrate the sun's rays and burn the vegetable tissue. The fact is, however, that the spots are due to the work of a species of fungus that attacks the growing tobacco. The spots in question have come to be regarded as a sort of trade mark of the tobacco yielded by the district referred to, and owing to the demand for speckled cigars the price of this tobacco has risen enormously. So manufacturers and growers in this country have been engaged recently in devising processes for counterfeiting the Sumatra speckles. This is accomplished by sprinkling the leaves, either on the growing plants or after they are dried, with various alkalies and other chemical compounds. By such imitative methods certain ingenious farmers in Connecticut expect to add 50 per cent to the selling value of their tobacco crop during the coming season.

PROCEEDINGS

--OF THE--

Board of County Commissioners.

Of St. Louis County, Minnesota.

A petition signed by B. F. Shanley, Louis Rouchleau, James T. Hale and thirty-eight others was presented and read, asking that a county road be laid out and constructed to connect the villages of Hibbing and Mountain Iron.

Upon motion of Commissioner Miller the petition was referred to the county superintendent of roads with directions to investigate and report upon a suitable route for said proposed road, with his estimate of cost of construction of same, and that he post notices of hearing to be had before this board at their session to begin July 7, 1896, along the line of said proposed road.

By Commissioner Miller:

Whereas, the board of county commissioners of St. Louis county, Minnesota, has heretofore duly caused a special election to be held within the limits of said county for the purpose of authorizing the issue of county road bonds of said St. Louis county; and

Whereas, at said election, which was held within said county on the 10th day of March, A. D. 1896, a majority of the voters present and voting at said election cast their votes in favor of authorizing the issue of county road bonds of said county to the extent of $150,000 for the purpose of constructing and improving certain county roads; and

Whereas, a majority of the voters present and voting at said election did also cast their votes in favor of authorizing said board of county commissioners to issue and sell said bonds to pay for the construction and improvement of county roads;

Now, therefore, be it resolved that, pursuant to such election and to the authority thereby given, the board of county commissioners of the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota does hereby authorize and direct the issue of county road bonds of the county of St. Louis to the amount of $150,000, in denominations to be agreed upon, with interest coupons attached to same at the rate of 4 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually on the first day of January and of July in each year, the principal thereof to be made payable in twenty years from the first day of July, 1896, both principal and interest to be made payable at the office of the county treasurer of said St. Louis county.

Be it further resolved, that the county auditor be and is hereby ordered and directed to cause notice to be published in The Duluth Evening Herald, the Duluth News Tribune, the Duluth Press, the Duluth Tribunal, the Sun, the Duluth Volksfreund, the Scandia, the Duluth Posten, the Vermilion Iron Journal, the Ely Times, the Virginia Enterprise, the Mesaba Range, the Iron Mountain, the Hibbing Sentinel, the Hibbing News, the Eveleth Star, once in each week for two successive weeks, of the time and place where the board of county commissioners will receive and examine sealed proposals for the purchase of said bonds, for sale to be awarded to the highest responsible bidders at a sum not less than the par value thereof, with interest accrued to the date of delivery. The right to reject any and all bids to be reserved by the board.

Be it further resolved, that the chairman of the board of county commissioners of said county be and is hereby instructed to cause said bonds to be properly executed, sealed, attested and countersigned in manner as by law required, and that said bonds be delivered to the purchaser or purchasers thereof at a date to be agreed upon by this board and the successful bidders for such bonds, which shall be within thirty days from the date of their issue.

Commissioner Miller moved the adoption of the resolution, and it was declared adopted by a unanimous vote.

To the Board of County Commissioners:

Your committee on taxes and assessments to whom was referred the applications of N. A. Gearhart for abatement of penalties and interest on certain property, having considered the same recommend the adoption of the following resolution.

Charles G. Miller,
E. Morcom, Committee.

Resolved, that the applications of N. A. Gearhart for abatement of penalties and interest on lots 3 and 4, block 21, Portland division of Duluth, for the years 1890, 1891, 1892, 1893, and 1894, be and the same is hereby alowed, and the county auditors is hereby directed to issue receipts in full for the taxes on said lots for the years named, provided the original amount of taxes levied be paid within thirty days from date hereof.

Commissioner Swenson moved the adoption of the resolution and it was declared adopted upon the following vote:

Yeas—Commissioners Swenson, Miller and Morcom.

Nays—Commissioners Dinham and Helm.

Upon motion of Commissioner Miller the board adjourned to meet at 2 o'clock p. m. Monday, June 22d, 1896.

2 o'clock p. m., June 22, 1896.

The board of county commissioners met at 2 o'clock p. m. this 22d day of June, 1896, pursuant to adjournment.

Present—Commissioners Swenson, Miller, Morcom, Dinham and Chairman Helm.

The first matter taken under consideration was bids on county bonds.

At the direction of the chairman, the notice calling for sealed bids to be opened at this meeting, was read.

No bids having been submitted the board proceeded with the regular order of business.

Communications and petitions were presented as follows:

From the attorney general under date of June 16th, 1896, addressed to the county attorney, advising this board that they may invest the accumulate funds in the county road and bridge bond sinking fund in the county road bonds.

Ordered received and filed.

From P. McDonnell, offering to take county road bonds at par in payment of contract work on county roads.

From the Meining Construction company offering to take county road bonds at par for county road work.

From A. & D. Sang offering to take county road bonds at par for county road work.

From William Cavanaugh offering to take county road bonds to the amount of $20,000 at par in payment of county road work.

From M. Norris offering to take county road bonds in payment for county road contracts for from five to ten miles of road work.

From W. E. Dorwin offering to take county road bonds at par in payment for contracts on county roads.

The foregoing propositions were ordered received and filed.

By request the clerk read an article published in the Duluth News Tribune, wherein it was stated that the Fond du Lac bridge bill has been passed by the senate and house of representatives.

Communication from W. C. McCrimmon, of Canosia, asking for work on county roads.

Ordered received and filed.

From Martin Sorenson asking that he be appointed inspector of county roads.

Ordered received and filed.

Petition from Floodwood asking that the present route of the Floodwood and Swan Lake roads be changed so that, beginning at or near the Floodwood river bridge, the road will follow the section line in a northerly direction, between sections 19 and 20, 17 and 18, to the northeast corner of section 18, thence running west one-half mile intersecting the road as now laid out. Petitioners represent that the road as now laid out along the Floodwood river is flooded during the months of May and June each year. Petition is signed by J. D. Morse and forty-two others.

Referred to superintendent of roads, with instructions to investigate and report.

Petition signed by B. Wintergerst, John A. Johnson and twenty-two others, asking for an extension of the Culver road, commencing at the corner of sections 6 and 7, 5 and 8, township 51, range 17, and running thence west on the section line to the corner of sections 4 and 5, 8 and 9, in township 51, range 18.

Upon motion of Commissioner Swenson, the petition was referred to the superintendent of roads, with directions to investigate and report.

Petition signed by L. P. Ireland, George B. Clark and thirty-four others, asking appropriations to improve the Tower and Ely road east of Robinson lake; also the road from Ely to Winton, and their several connections.

Referred to superintendent of roads, with instructions to investigate and report.

Petition of William McComber, James A. Hanks and twenty-two others, asking for the improvement of a branch of the Rice Lake road which connects with the LaVaque road, commencing at the northwest corner of section 17, township 51, range 14, running thence west one-half mile, thence north one-half mile, and thence west two and one-half miles.

Referred to superintendent of roads, with instructions to investigate and report.

The bond of the Zenith Bridge and Construction company in the sum of $3000, conditioned for faithful performance of work on Short Line Park bridge contract, was submitted and referred to committee on claims and accounts.

The superintendent of roads submitted reports and recommendations in substance as follows:

That in compliance with directions of this board, he had examined the East Duluth and Lester River road, for which an appropriation of $100 is asked by William Cavanaugh and others, and found said road in need of repairs.

He recommends an appropriation of $1000 to complete road, and suggests that when so completed, it should be turned over to the town of Duluth.

That in accordance with directions of this board, he examined the route of the proposed county road petitioned for by Christian Skogen and others, beginning at the northwest corner of section 26, township 53, range 17, and terminating at the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway line, and finds that there are not enough settlers to be benefited by such road to warrant the expense necessary to build same.

He recommends that petition be not granted.

That he had made an examination of the route of the proposed road petitioned for by B. F. Shanley and others to connect the villages of Mountain Iron and Hibbing, and finds same badly needed.

He recommends that petition be granted, that the road be named the Mountain Iron and Hibbing road, and that the sum of $5000 be appropriated to construct said road, work to commence at Hibbing.

That in accordance with directions of this board he had examined the route of proposed county road petitioned for by W. C. Sargent and others.

That in his opinion the only feasible route for such a road would be to follow the banks of Lester river which would require the building of about one-half mile of road so as to connect with the Tischer road and that this outlet can be provided for by the crew on that road.

He therefore recommends that petition be not granted.

That he had examined the route of the proposed road petitioned for by Louis Johnson and twenty-eight others to start from near the station of Grand lake on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway and leading from thence in a northerly and northeasterly direction across the town of Industrial, and finds that such a road is badly needed and that no better route could be selected.

He recommends that petition be granted, that said road be named the Grand Lake Station road, and that the sum of $2000 be appropriated therefor.

The foregoing reports and recommendations were received and filed.

Upon motion of Commissioner Swenson, the petition of Louis Johnson and others, to establish a county road to begin at or near Grand Lake Station and to run from thence in a north and northeasterly direction across the town of Industrial, and as more particularly described in the petition presented to this board June 4th, 1896, was granted, said road to be known and designated as the Grand Lake Station road.

Upon motion of Commissioner Miller, the board went into executive session.

Upon motion of Commissioner Miller, the board went into open session.

Upon motion of Commissioner Miller, the board adjourned.

IN THE LABOR FIELD

The semi-annual election of officers of the Trades assembly was held last evening, the result being as follows: Robert Haire, president; Nels Anderson, vice president; James Murray, secretary; J. A. Blixt, financial secretary; C. G. Feroved, treasurer; H. Richter, sergeant-at-arms; W. McEwen, statistician. E. J. Mahar, George Findley, G. H. Thompson, trustees; G. Olson, J. Hayes, delegates to Superior Trades assembly. No delegate to the chamber of commerce was elected. A motion to discontinue sending a delegate to the chamber prevailed, but it was subsequently reconsidered. The election of a delegate was deferred until the next meeting.

The assembly will stand by the Journeymen Barbers' union in its fight with the bosses, and the boycott against the 16-cent shops that have invaded the latest territorial limit was endorsed. This action was taken only after a rather prolonged and heated discussion, during which the vexed question of the propriety of an attempt to regulate the prices charged by the proprietors of shops was again gone over, the argument advanced against such a policy being that the journeymen are properly concerned only with the scale of wages they receive. The representative of the Journeymen Barbers' union made an urgent appeal to the assembly to take action. They said that it must add the journeymen or there would be one less union to report in the assembly. It was stated that owing to the fact that journeymen are paid on the percentage system, the price charged for work is of vital concern to them, as they at once feel a reduction in the receipts. The views won over the objectors, and a motion to endorse the boycott was unanimously carried.

The pending amendment to the constitution, changing the time for the election of officers from the last meeting in June and December to the first meeting in July and January, of each year, was disposed of after considerable debate. W. McEwen told of the doings at the convention of the State Federation of Labor. He called attention to the possible expediency of renting a building for the use of the Trades assembly and the affiliated unions, a scheme similar to the St. Paul Labor Temple plan. He urged that a great saving in expense would be effected thereby, and requested the delegates to bring the matter before their unions. On motion, a committee consisting of Messrs McEwen, Ferguson and Hessley were appointed to investigate and report on the plan.

A representative of the Butchers' union, who was given the floor under suspension of the rules, placed before the assembly a grievance of that union arising from the fact that a non-union man is employed in a certain Superior street shop. He invoked the aid of the assembly, and the matter was referred to the grievance committee.

The following delegates to unions were appointed: Draymen's union, W. McEwen; the Teamsters' union, T. Phillips; Sawmill Workers' union, Conklin. The Journeymen Horse Shoers' union reports that its membership had so diminished that it had become necessary to send in its charter, and that it would have to be counted out of the assembly.

Messrs. Strom, Anderson and Meagher were constituted a committee to make arrangements for Labor day. The following delegates were obligated: C. G. Feroved, of Journeymen Barbers' union, 87; Julius Dworschak, Cigarmakers' union, 204; H. A. Jarchow, A. A. of I. and S. W., 2; John D. Hayes, N. B. E. W., 25.

EXTENDING LABELS' USE.

One of the most important organizations of trades unionists is the Chicago Label league, and it is receiving deserved encouragement and support in its work from men in the labor movement in that city and elsewhere, its principal object is the pushing of the use of union labels in all trades, and it is doing the cause of the label service of the highest order.

Many of the best known labor men in Chicago are members of the Label league, and its meetings, apart from the beneficial business transacted, are of a high order of interest. Trades unionism of the unadulterated and properly branded kind is the hobby of the league's leaders, and the speeches made been with valuable suggestions for its promotion. The league maintains an agitation committee and it does the outside work. It regularly visits the various organizations in the city, and makes it a point to see that the members of all unions that have labels do not lose interest in them, and that organizations that have not yet adopted a label are awakened to the importance of the little symbol of unionism. The agitation committee in its rounds explains the different labels and stamps in use and urges members of unions not to omit looking for the union label on all articles that they buy. It is the intention of the league this summer to press its agitation committee into a wider field of work. Members of the committee will be expected to attend picnics and excursions, especially of labor organizations, and to acquaint the people who go to them with the purposes of the league.

At the last meeting of the Label league a communication was received from the Glass Workers union of Indiana, which stated that the latter organization was undertaking agitation in emulation of that of the league, and that unionists were waking up to the importance of the work. The letter stated that since the commencement of the union label crusade in Indiana a large increase in purchases of union made goods by the public could be noted. Correspondence will be carried on with all unions not affiliated with the league, and they will be urged to send delegates at once. A union not having a label is not eligible to representation in the league, but the adopting of a label is sufficient credential.

CARNEGIE ENVIES THE POOR MAN.

An interesting article, which will no doubt make every poor man who reads it contented with his lot, appears in Cassell's. It is written by Andrew Carnegie, the rolling mill man, and deals with the blessings of poverty. Mr. Carnegie knows all about poverty, and thinks it a fine thing—in other people.

"You know how people are all moaning about poverty as a great evil," he writes, "and it seems to be accepted that if people only had money and were rich they would be happy and more useful and get more out of life. There never was a graver mistake. As a rule, there is more happiness, more genuine satisfaction, and a truer life and more obtained from life in the humble cottages of the poor than in the palaces of the rich.

"It is because I know how sweet and pure the home of honest poverty is, how free from care, from quarrels, how loving and united its members, that I sympathize with the rich man's boy, and congratulate the poor man's boy, and it is for these reasons that from the ranks of the poor the great and the good have always sprung, and always must spring."

CHINESE LABOR UNIONS.

Chinese labor unions are peculiar organizations and have many eccentricities, of which perhaps the most notable is the minute division of labor, says the Chautauquan. Take, for instance, the silk weavers' unions. All those who weave silk of a certain design form a union by themselves, and those who weave silk of a different design form a different union. The mahogany cabinetmakers have a union separate from the union of the rosewood cabinetmakers. Men who draw landscapes on the Chinese fans have a union different from that of those who draw flowers and birds. In short, there is a union for each particular department of work. Thus a single article may have passed through the hands of many unions before it comes into the market.

In China there are several holidays in the year which people of all nations and classes observe. These are the new year, the fifth day of the fifth month and the fifteenth day of the eighth month. The last of the three is for the worship or praise of the moon. After this day the busy season of the year for all tradesmen begins. From this time on until the new year all craftsmen are expected to work later at night than during other seasons of the year, and as a rule their wages are increased during this period. Besides these holidays each union has its own holidays—that is, the days of birth and death of the supposed originator of its particular occupation. To celebrate the national holidays the employers always prepare a feast for their employes. But when a union observes its own holidays its members contribute some money and have a banquet in a restaurant or hotel.

An interesting peculiarity of these unions should be mentioned here, and that is the massing of the same industries in the same street. In China there is no very large manufactory most of them employing about thirty or fifty men each, and all the manufactories producing the same commodity face located on the same street. This gives rise to the custom of calling such streets by the name of the commodity manufactured there instead of by their proper names.

SOCIALISTS WAR ON UNIONS.

It is evident by the action of the New York Socialists and the utterances of their special organ, The People, that a determined effort is to be made by these reformers to bring disaster to the trade union movement, says M. J. Carroll in the Eight-Hour Herald. The Socialists argue that the trades union stands directly in the way of Socialism and that no satisfactory advance can be made in this country by the disciples of Carl Marx until the power and standing of the trades union has been destroyed. Hence the determination to make war on the union, and hence the efforts that are being made to sow the seeds of dissension, suspicion and distrust. The Socialists will fail in this undertaking just as satisfactorily as in everything else, but no until they have exhausted every unscrupulous method that can be devised for causing trouble, and it is in the manipulation of unscrupulous method that the Socialist is best fitted to excel.

It might be well for the Socialists to profit by the lesson taught the Knights of Labor through their failure to accomplish just what the Socialists have undertaken. An effort to gain control of the labor movement, to the exclusion of trades unionists, was the rock upon which the knights first split, causing them to first waver, and then to begin sliding down, down, until finally the bottom has been reached, and now the once proud Knights of Labor can scarcely be considered a factor in the labor movement. It is strange that the Socialists should have selected the same point of attack—the cigarmakers—over which the knights. The Cigarmakers' International union is confessedly one of the strongest organizations in the American Federation of Labor, and that it has been twice made the object of attack would indicate that the enemies of trades unionism believe that if so powerful an organization can be pulled down the others would fall without much effort. This is undoubtedly good reasoning, but will lack full force and meaning so long as the Cigarmakers union triumphantly withstands the attacks made upon it, and the cigarmakers' organization will not go down so long as a trade or labor union is left to back it up.

It is, perhaps, as well that the Socialists should have thrown aside all reserve and secrecy and made their object so plain that there is no longer any danger of a misunderstanding. Trades unionists will no longer be in doubt as to how they should treat Socialists and Socialistic organs. They have always been secret enemies of the labor movement as represented by the trades union, and now they are open enemies. Hereafter they will be treated as such.

WAR ON MARK HANNA.

The Cleveland Labor union has joined the forces in trades union circles which are making war on Mark Hanna and has issued the following:

To the Republican Trades Unionists of the United States:

Realizing that in a few short months the union workingmen of this country will be again asked to cast their ballots for president, we, the delegates of the organized laboring people of Cleveland, appeal to Republican wage workers who have been repeatedly told by their party news papers and politicians that they must imitate capital and organize if they would enjoy the benefits of a higher tariff, to demand that Marcus A. Hanna, the principal manager of William McKinley (and who, it is stated will be a member of the latter's cabinet in case he is nominated and elected) explain his attitude relative to labor organizations.

1. Ask M. A. Hanna if he did not aid in destroying the Seamen's unions of the lower lake regions and then contribute to a fund to send A. R. Ramsey, his non-union procurer, on a pleasure trip around the world as an acknowledgment of his services.

2. Ask Maj. McKinley's bosom friend M. A. Hanna, if he has not taken a prominent part in wrecking the Mineworkers' unions of Pennsylvania.

3. Ask this tremendous political general who fleeces his workingmen with one hand and spends money lavishly with the other hand to purchase a presidency, M. A. Hanna, if he did not destroy the union of his street railway employes and positively refuse to allow them to organize.

4. Ask the president maker, Hanna, if he did not say to the striking employes of the Globe shipyard that $1.30 per day is sufficient wages for them (when competitors were paying more), but if they would vote for McKinley he would favor paying $1.50 a day.

5. Ask the unselfish Hanna if he is not at this moment erecting a mansion for his son and employing non-union labor and disregarding the wage rate and the eight-hour day of the building trades.

Finally, ask Mr. Hanna, before his candidate is given the highest honor in the land, if destroying workingmen's unions and pauper wages for long hours of toil is his interpretation of protection to American labor and prosperity and patriotism?

DISCUSSING LABOR QUESTIONS.

In every newspaper, magazine or other publication that one takes up at the present day the eye falls easily upon articles written on some feature of the labor question or the union movement, says the Federationist. The subject is being discussed; it is being talked about, and by too many the workers are being "talked down to" rather than addressed as fairly intelligent mortals who know what they want and know how to obtain it. There is too much of an assumed superiority by many who address themselves to the working people upon the questions affecting their daily interests. And for these reasons, as well as countless others, the organized labor movement of the United States should inaugurate an era of revival meetings, trying to interest the non-unionists as well as to convert the so-called educated antagonists.

It seems to us that either the local trades unions of their own accord or the central labor bodies of each city should hold regular meetings for the purpose of these revivals. What the workers most need at present is more thorough organization. Let this be the theme of the address. Let the achievements of the trades union movement be set forth; have the objects and aims presented in the plain, blunt manner of the workingmen themselves, and soon a more intelligent public opinion will be manifested upon the past work, the present struggles and the aspirations for the future of the organized working people of our country.

LABORING MEN MUST CO-OPERATE.

In America it has become an established rule that work of considerable magnitude can only be consummated through the intermediary of middle men or contractors, says the Locomotive Firemen's Journal. If a man or firm or corporation wishes certain work performed which does not come under their special line of business, a contractor is sought, who, for a certain specified price, will employ others to perform the desired work.

It would seem plausible that men of like occupations would combine into co-operative bodies, and in securing contracts through such bodies would be able to earn the usual wages besides saving by the contractors' profits as a reserve capital to be used in taking larger contracts.

Why should not the bricklayers, carpenters, plasterers, etc., of a community thus become co-operative capitalists, with regularly elected superintendents and working rules agreeable to at least a majority? We ask, for instance, why cigar makers are discussing the question in America, and in England such co-operative associations have become prominent by their success.

A British authority says: "For some years past the work of stowing coal at Barrasford Quay has been carried on by a co-operative group of associated coal trimmers, consisting of sixty-one members—a foreman and five squads of twelve men each. The association elects its own members and appoints one member of each squad to be leading man. The foreman and the five leading men form the committee, which is the executive body of the organization. The rules of the association contain stringent provisions as to the suspension or expulsion of members guilty of misconduct. On the other hand, while the volunteer disciplins of the co-operative workmen is strict, their employers, the company which controls the dock, do not attempt to exercise any sort of control either over the members of the association, the selection of the foreman or the leading hands or the composition of the squads, nor are any labor superintendents employed by the company to supervise the work. The speculation is, in fact, in the position of an independent contractor, an agreement having been made with the committee to trim all coal requiring to be dealt with at certain fixed rates. The agreement under which men are now working was made early in 1890, as a contract for one year, determinable by three months' notice on either side, and as remained in force until the present time."

GERMAN PRINTER'S PLAN.

For the last three months the printers of Germany have been very active in agitating for the nine-hour work day, according to an article in the Typographical Journal. Mass meetings were held in all the principal cities, and almost unanimously it was resolved to demand at once the nine-hour work day and an increase in wages of 15 per cent. Thousands of heretofore non-union printers joined the union, and the executive council of the Typographical union of Germany opened correspondence with the officers of the employing printers' association relative to the introduction of the nine-hour system.

As a result of this correspondence a conference of delegates from the employers and the workingmen of the nine printing districts of Germany were held on April 15 and 16, at Leipsig, and at said conference, after a lengthy discussion, it was decided to introduce the nine-hour system in the printing offices of all cities of Germany having a population of 20,000 or more. In the smaller towns the ten-hour work day can be continued if both parties so desire. The printers withdrew their demand for an increase 15 per cent, but accepted the offer of the employes to increase the scale 2 pfennig per thousand letters. A committee of six, composed of three employers and three printers, was appointed to regulate all minor matters and to work out a contract whereby both parties pledge themselves to uphold the scale agreed upon.

The date of the introduction of the nine-hour system has not been named yet, but very likely will not be later than June 1, 1896. So the printers of Germany have gained by peaceful means the nine-hour day for which they struck in 1891, and spent an immense amount of money. This makes Austria, Hungary, Germany and Switzerland nine-hour countries so far as the printers are concerned.

WASTE STRENGTH IN QUARRELS.

The working people of this country have themselves largely to blame for their condition. They will not help themselves, says the Critic. They organize into unions ostensibly for that purpose, and proceed at once to chew each other up, like unto the famous cats of Kilkenny, much to the delight of the employers of labor. They get theories and quarrel over them while their lives and hopes are being crushed out by capital. There is but one aim and object of the trades union movement, yet the thousands of union members are scouring down every by-road on their hobbies, with the result that they will never reach their proper destination. In the 40's when the emigrants passed over the great plaines of the West, infested with savage foes, they banded together in large trains, that by strength of numbers their safety might be assured. Had each wagon taken a different gait, and a different trail, not one of their occupants would have ever lived to reach the end of his journey. This is an object lesson to unionists. In its journey through the world labor is beset on every side by enemies, capital, renegades and guerrillas, and yet the laboring men insist on taking as many different roads as there are individuals, with the net result that they are overpowered and beaten almost at every outset of their journey. Get together or give up the trades union movement and form a suicide club.

SUES UNION FOR DAMAGES.

In February, 1895, William Ambroise, of Ottawa, Canada, was fined $50 by the Stonecutters' union for violating his pledge as a union man, he having accepted work on a non-union job. Ambroise refused to pay the fine and left that city. This spring he turned up again and secured employment on a union job. He again refused to pay the fine and the other workmen threatened to strike unless he was discharged, which was done. Ambroise had the union men arrested on the charge that they prevented him from earning a livelihood for himself and family. The judge before whom the case was tried advised Ambroise to settle with the union, as there was no law to compel members of the union to work with him. He then dismissed the case. Ambroise has since sued the union in a higher court for $25,000 damages.

ST. LOUIS CONVENTION.

Its Cost Will Aggregate Quite $4,000,000.

If the mathematical convention prophets want employment of a congenial nature, they may find it in making figures on the cost of such a great political gathering, says the New York Herald. Assuredly they will find these figures surprising. This matter was brought up one day last week and Col. "Barry" Sworis, who for twelve years has been sergeant-at-arms of the national committee, and who surely ought to be able to make a reasonably accurate footing up of the expenses of a convention, was asked for an estimate.

"First of all," said the colonel, "should be counted the 'straight' expenses of the convention, which will be borne by the Citizens' league of St. Louis. These expenses have sometimes been as low as $50,000, but they amounted to about $115,000 at Minneapolis in 1892, and will be little, if any, below that figure at St. Louis. The cost of the hall alone will not be far from $75,000, and although the structure will remain and be useful for some years to come, its erection is rightly chargeable to the convention of 1896. Other bills to be footed by the Citizens' league will include the expenses of the sergeant-at-arms in charge of the convention, various printing counts, the cleaning of the hall each night, its lighting in the evening, fees for police and fire protection, big postage bills, and a thousand other things. The expenses of the sergeant-at-arms alone will be big, though I should not like to make an estimate. He has been in St. Louis for some time, and has had a good staff of typewriters busy every day and far into the night. They occupy an entire suite of rooms in one of the big hotels, and the click of their machines can be heard all over the house. But the $150,000 to be expended by the Citizens' league is a mere bagatelle compared to the money that will be expended during the convention week by the delegates and others.

"Including the personal following of delegates and alternates, there will be at least 2000 men who are directly interested in the convention. And the assistant sergeants-at-arms, the door keepers and the messengers, in all about 1000, and the newspaper correspondents and reporters, and the total will be at least 3000. Now, if each one of these men spends $100 in addition to his railroad fare—and this is a very small average—the total will be $300,000. If you add to this the expenses that will be borne by the telegraph companies and the big press associations in getting ready to spread the news, the total expenses of the Citizens' league and those directly interested will not be a cent less than a round $1,000,000.

"The delegates, alternates and attendants at a national convention form but a fraction of those who are always present in a convention city during the holding of its sessions.

"It is because of the money the crowds of visitors will leave in town that the Citizens' league can afford to put up so handsomely to get the convention. The amount that will go for railroad tickets alone will break the back of $750,000, and will probably exceed that big sum. If each delegate were to spend $8 in fare—and that is a low average—the total would be $800,000, and this added to the $500,000 already counted for foots up $1,300,000."

If the reader will continue the line of figures above laid down, he will find that only a beginning of the total expenses due to the convention will be met by the $1,300,000. It will be hard for those in St. Louis to average a less expenditure than $3 a day for keep and divers "extras." Some, indeed, will get along with less, but many will spend a good deal more. At $3 a day for each man the daily sum expended would amount to $300,000, and if the convention were to last a full week the total for maintenance would be brought up to $2,100,000 or more than $2,000,000, while the grand total so far accounted for would be $3,400,000. But even this, although it includes much, does not take in such expenses as will be incurred at the different state headquarters, the cost of music at the various candidates' headquarters, and so on. Perhaps another $100,000 would cover it all, and then the total would amount to $3,500,000—a very pretty total, indeed. This is not all, however, for neither the expense of sending the news from St. Louis to the thousands of daily papers in the various states, which must be a very great sum, nor the cost of the thousands of private telegrams that will be sent—a small, but still a considerable sum—has been counted in. It is not going too far, perhaps, to assume that all the expenditures due to the convention will use up $4,000,000.

HOW TO SLEEP WELL.

Want of sleep is engendered to a great extent by the over activity of the brain at night, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. Many people say that night is their best time for work, and thus spend the early part of the day, when the brain is the freshest, in idleness, and at night do their work. Working the brain until just before retiring to bed is with many utterly fatal to a thorough rest. The over-wrought and tired brain cannot throw off the thoughts caused by the work, and on laying down in bed they return with what appears to be greater intensity, and thus sleep is banished. It is a very good plan to stop brain work at a fixed hour before retiring, and then to indulge in some recreation in the way of games or light reading, such as newspapers, periodicals, novels, etc.

VACATION TIME IS NEAR.

And the hard-worked teachers and pupils are beginning to think of their summer trips. The South Shore has arranged many new and delightful low-fare excursions, by rail, lake or river, in such variety that one or the other of them will suit anyone. 426 Spalding house block for particulars.

QUEEN LUKERIA.

Curious Peasant Queen of Gorelovka, Armenia.

The inhabitants of Gorelovka are powerfully built; although they are bronzed in complexion almost beyond recognition, the fair hair bears witness to their origin in the North, says H. F. B. Lynch in Harper's Magazine for June. Their limbs are closely put together, and apart from the difference of their dress and demeanor they present a strong contrast to the neatly made natives of the country by reason of their lofty stature and the unbuckled slouch of their walk. The features are irregular, the eyes small, and the countenance is wanting in animation both in the case of women and men. The dress of the men consists of dark blue trousers and jacket and a peaked military cap; this costume gives them the appearance of old soldiers, and all seem to shave the beard. The women wear very pretty clean cotton dresses of showy patterns and bright hues. It is a sturdy race of simple people, and the elements of order are strong among them.

Next morning, according to arrangement, we were to visit, in company with our host Alexei Zupkoff, the venerable starshina, or head of the village, the residence and garden of the queen. The brother of the queen joined our party—Michael Vasilievitch Ghubanoff, the same of whom Count Tolstoy speaks. We passed down the long straight street of the village, the spacious intervals between the white houses opening to the breezy downs. Entering an enclosure, we found ourselves in a delightful flower-garden, among trees and thick rose-bushes allowed to twine and spread in freedom, and only saved from rankness and riot by the loving hand of man. How strange, after our long wanderings over mountain and arid plain, among peoples whose material standards hover on the extreme margin where life is just possible and no more, appeared to us the sight of these garden flowers and the scent of the double rose!

A low-storied building aligns the garden on two sides; the one wing contains the chapel and reception room; the other, the private apartments in which the queen lived. Passing within the doorway, we stood in a little hall from which rooms opened, one on either side. Both apartments are spacious, and their size was enhanced by the complete absence of furniture. Large stone stoves are built into the rooms, and from the most prominent feature of them; these stoves are unsual in all the houses, but in this house they are decorated with a scroll of stone carving, which is not the case elsewhere. The ceilings are low, and the walls are so thick that the windows have the appearance of fortress embrasures with their sloping recesses and sills. The two large rooms on either side of the hall were formerly used, the one for prayer meetings and the other for social gatherings; but it was evident that they were not in use at the time of my visit, and I was told that assemblies in this house had been interdicted by the government on account of the fresh outbreak of fanaticism which was apprehended should the people come together beneath the roof of their former queen.

The general arrangement and appearance of the chapel or apartment in which they used to meet for prayer is this: The low ceiling is composed of narrow pine planks, the surface being covered by delicate wood beadings along the seams where the pine planks join. The large pier of the stove projects boldly into it from the side of the door. The walls of the rooms are in general covered with a neat paper of common Russian pattern, and the floors are either painted a reddish color or the boards are left natural, and stopped, and scrubbed daily like the deck of a yacht. Round this particular apartment there runs a low bench; this is the only sitting place. Large pots of flowers, carefully pruned and tended, bloomed in the deep embrasures of the windows, and broke the light diffused about the sober apartment in a warm and regular glow. In that part of the house where the queen used to live, the rooms, although smaller, presented a similar appearance, and were maintained in the same state of scrupulous cleanliness and neatness, although uninhabited now. The furniture had all been removed from them, but in addition to the pots of beautiful flowers there was in each a dish of Easter eggs.

In the center of the garden, among the rose bushes, stands the summer pavilion of the queen. The kernel of the structure may be described as consisting of two square boxes placed one above the other, and serving as living rooms. Each side of the upper room is broken by a large window, so that the view from within embraces the whole settlement and all the picturesque around. The lower room contains a bed and a row of pegs, on which, behind a light covering, hang the dresses of the queen; that above it is bare of all furniture, and was used as a sitting room. A broad wooden balcony with staircase runs round this inner room, supported on pillars of wood; they have lavished on their skill upon the decoration of this balcony, enriching it with the delicate traceries of fretwork and with figures placed at the angles of the roof. At each corner sits a dove with wings outspread, while on the summit of the roof a dove is just alighting, the wings closing, the legs outstretched. In front of the pavilion and on the side of the house there is a large standard lantern, a work of curious design and fancy, surmounted by an image of St. George and the dragon carved with much life and vigor in wood.

"THE MOCKING BIRD."

Washington Star: "The Marine band concerts at the White House grounds," observed James Ryder, who has figured as a hotel waiter for nearly half a century, "were before the war a closed event as far as we colored people were concerned, for no colored persons were ever admitted to the grounds unless they went there in the capacity of nurses for children or attendants upon elderly persons. To the knowing ones, however, there was no difficulty. All we had to do was to go there with some white boys or girls and represent that we were servants, or some one's servants sent there for children or others. No one then objected, and we could listen to the music just the same as others. I was there when the 'Mocking Bird' was first played. It was dedicated to Miss Harriet Lane, the niece of President Buchanan, and its first appearance was a big event. Talk about whistling popular songs or marches these days, why, they are simply not in it. The 'Mocking Bird' was whistled by 'the press, the public and clergy,' and nearly everyone else who could cock a lip. There were 'Mocking Bird' waltzes, polkas, redowas and other things in that line until you could not rest. As the band finished the first public rendition of the 'Mocking Bird' all eyes turned to Miss Lane, who stood the central figure in a group on the south portico. She bowed her acknowledgments and thanks, and joined the others in clapping her hands applauding the band. Colored people always wore their Sunday clothes when they went to the 'music,' as it was called those days, and I wish more of them did so now."

A GREAT TELESCOPE.

It was Jules Verne in his wonderful story, "From the Earth to the Moon," who took us high up into the heavens, quite close, indeed, to the moon, and it is fitting that the huge telescope, 200 feet long, and possessed of a tube big enough to contain 100 boys and girls, should be constructed in his country, says the New York Journal.

In the year 1900, when, as all the world is aware, the great Paris exhibition will take place, this great telescope will be on show. Its object glass will be over four feet in diameter, and by its means the moon will be brought to within six miles of our vision. At such a distance there ought to be but little difficulty in finding out if the earth's great satellite is inhabited or not, and of deciding the momentous question which has long puzzled most of us as to whether or not it is constructed of green cheese.

DISCOVERIES IN INDIA.

Dr. Fuhrer, archaeological surveyor in the Northwestern provinces of India, has made a discovery which seems to carry the origin of Buddhism much further back than the accepted date, in the fifth century before Christ, says the Edinburgh Scotsman.

In the village of Nijlva, in swamps within the borders of the state of Nepal, he found an Asoka pillar, surrounded for half a mile by vast brick ruins of monasteries and of a still magnificent domed tomb of Konakamana. The portion of the pillar which is still erect has an inscription establishing the fact that the Buddha commemorated is the same as the Konakamana of the Buddhist of Ceylon, who was the twenty-third mythical predecessor of the historical Buddha. The Nepalese speak of the pillar as the smoking pipe of Bhima Sen, their giant hero.

The native durbar, or council, is to be asked to sanction a scientific investigation of the ruins of this once great settlement of the Aryan tribe of Sakyas, who settled 112 miles to the northwest of the city of Benares at a date hitherto only conjectural. Gen. Cunningham, who, under Lord Canning, began the archaeological survey of India, long ago identified Kapilavastu, in this region, as the birthplace of the historical Gautama, and the capital of the Sakya clan. It is in the sub-Himalayan district now called Basti, and must have extended northward into Nepal, which is still second in sacredness only to Benares.

Nepal has now a serious dispute with the Llama government of Lhasa on its hands, and is always jealous of British or foreign visitors. But should the government of India not discourage its proposed campaign in Thibet, the durbar may be willing to help Dr. Fuhrer to dig on a sufficiently great scale. Nepal is almost as little known as Thibet, although it is a protected state of the government of India, and it seems time that it was opened, as Kasmir has been, to the savant and the traveler.

Something About the "New Man."

HE BELIEVES IN PRAISING THOSE TO WHOM PRAISE IS DUE.

A Story from Tennessee which is the Equal of that of J. M. Foster Published in these Columns Some Weeks Ago.

From the Herald, Columbia, Tennessee.

Many and various are the discussions of the "new woman," but most of the women we've seen have no aspirations toward the emancipation of their sex from any yoke except the burdensome yoke of ill health. They all seem to think—and think rightly—that their proper field is their home, and to work faithfully in this field she must be strong and hearty. Care is peculiarly a woman's heritage. But it was not the "new woman" or any other kind of woman that we started out to talk about. It is a "man in the case" this time, and a man, too, that thinks he is the newest kind of a "new man."

From what he tells us, he has good cause to think so. There is no comparison between his present state of feeling and that of two years ago. But let the following speak for itself. We published a few weeks ago a statement of the miraculous cure of Mr. J. M. Foster, of Carter's Creek, now one of the Herald's men, from locomotor ataxia (a disease said to be incurable), by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

The account was read by numbers of people who were eye-witnesses of his bodily suffering and who know what Mr. Foster stated to be true beyond a peradventure of a doubt; it was read by others, also, who believe it just the same as if they, too, had seen all, because Mr. Foster is well known over the country to be a man of unimpeachable veracity.

So strong is his belief in the Dr. Williams' Pills, he has influenced a number of other people to use them, and all have became as new persons.

One of the number is a young man of Southport, Maury County, Tennessee, Mr. N. F. Murphy. He is only twenty-one years old, and being of rather a delicate constitution, has been afflicted the greater part of his life.

Young Murphy says, he verily believes that very few people of any age or clime have been called upon to endure the bodily suffering which he has undergone.

In an interview with the Herald, he told us the following, which we give in his own words:

"Five years ago I was attacked with a severe spell of la grippe, which affected me very much. However, with the summer before me, I gradually grew better until I considered myself nearly well, when in September following I was prostrated by an attack of biliousness.

"I took the medicine administered by our family physician and was soon on foot again, though with a large amount of malaria in my system. Being in a low state of health, I was troubled all winter with dreadful colds and coughs.

"The following spring I was again attacked with another severe case of biliousness, and only rallied in part from this spell when, at the suggestion of some of my friends, I resorted to various patent medicines for relief, but without satisfactory results. The malaria continued, and there was no end to my taking cold, which at last began to settle on my left lung, which was weak, inasmuch as it had undergone the terrible effects of an abscess when I was quite small. As a result expectoration began and grew worse until May, 1894.

"Now comes the period in my sickness which was to the last degree gloomy. Because of the inactivity of my liver, I could not eat anything that would agree with me, and, to add to my already intense suffering, inflammatory rheumatism got me in its grip. It was dreadful. No one can imagine what agonies I suffered. In this condition I became as helpless as a babe, for I could not raise a hand. I was considered to be on the verge of the grave, and I despaired of my life.

"Deliverance came in this way: Through the influence of Mr. J. M. Foster, a friend of mine, I was induced to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People a fair trial. The result was simply marvelous. Within two weeks after I began taking the pills, a marked improvement in my condition was to be noted. I steadily continued to improve until I reached my present state of good health. The hand of death was stayed for the time being, and the grave cheated of its victim.

"All praise is due to Dr. Williams' Pills. Surely I gave them a fair trial, for I used forty dollars ($40) worth of them and ought to know whereof I speak. I doubt not that the name of Dr. Williams will rank among the foremost of the greatest benefactors of the age.

"This is submitted to sick and suffering humanity."

These cases will not seem so remarkable if a body remembers that it is stated by men of science that the entire human body is renewed once in every seven years. It is interesting to inquire how this can be accomplished. Of course, it is readily understood that the work of disintegration and decay goes steadily on, but how are the wasted particles resupplied? It is by means of the circulation of the blood. All the nourishment which is taken into the stomach is, after digestion, received by the blood and carried to every organ, tissue and fibre in the body. This is a most important office, and it is important that the blood which is to do this work should be pure, rich and healthy. Otherwise it will not only be unable to fulfill its mission properly, but it will scatter disease throughout the system.

Indeed, it is from impure blood that a great majority of diseases originate, and it is only by making the blood pure that they can be cured. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People possess a building-up strengthgiving power which make them just the medicine for those who find themselves in a weak and run-down condition, either as a result of illness or because of impure or impoverished blood.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not looked upon as a patent medicine, but rather as a prescription. An analysis of their properties show that they contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, and the tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration, all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

MINING PRODUCTS.

Government Report as to Their Value.

Washington, June 29.—The mineral products of the United States for the calendar year 1895, are reviewed at length in the mineral resources report of the United States geological survey. The report, which was compiled by Dr. David T. Day, chief of division, shows the total value of products as $611,795,290. This stands against a product valuation of $527,368,594 for 1894. The quantity and value of the various products for the year were as follows, there being no output of tin or ozokerite: Pig iron, 9,446,308, $165,198,550; silver, 47,000,000, $60,766,300; gold, 2,273,629, $47,000,000; copper, 381,160,868, $38,682,354; lead, 161,440, $10,665,040; zinc, 89,686, $6,278,020; quicksilver, 36,104, $1337; aluminum, 920,000, $434,600; antimony, 450, $6800; nickel, 10,404, $3091; platnum, 150, $960; total, $270,453,979. Bituminous coal, 135,118,193, $115,749,771; Pennsylvania anthracite, 51,785,122, $82,019,372; building stone, $34,688,816; petroleum, 52,938,526, $57,691,279; natural gas, $15,006,650; brick clays, $9,000,000; clay, (all other than brick), 360,000, $800,000; cement, 8,371,401, $5,482,254; mineral waters, 21,463 543, $4,254,227; phosphate rock, 1,007,773, $3,497,918; salt, 13,669,649, $4,423,086; lime stone from iron flux, 5,247,949, $2,623,947; zinc white, 25,000, $2,000,000; gypsum, 265,500, $807,447; borax, 11,918,000, grindstones, 205,768; asphaltum, 68,163, $348,218; soap stone, 20,945, $271,695; precious stones, $113,261; pyrites, 99,549, $322,845; corundum, and emery, 2102, $106,256; oil stones, etc., $143,204; mica, $53,831; barytes, 21,520, $68,442; bromine, 547,421, $134,345; fluorspar, 4000, $24,000; feldspar, 12,000, $199,775; manganese ore, 9547, $71,769; monazite, 1,537,000, $137,400; graphite, $80,400; bauxite, 17,069, $44,000; sulpher, 1800, $42,000; fuller's earth, 6900, $41,400; marls, 60,000, $30,000; infusorial earth, 4954, $20,414; millstones, $22,542; chromic iron ore, 1740, $16,795; cobalt oxide, 14,458, $20,675; magnesite, 2200, $17,000; asbestos, 795, $13,525; rutile, 100, $350.

JEFFERSON-WOLF NUPTIALS.

Buzzards Bay, Mass., June 29.—Amidst a wealth of flowers and under the spreading canopy of a large marque erected on the most prominent and beautiful elevation of land on the shores of Buttermilk bay, Miss Josephine, daughter of Charles B. Jefferson and grand-daughter of Joseph Jefferson, the actor, and Charles J. Wolf, son of William Wolf, the Shakespearean scholar of Cambridge, were married today. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Page, of Fall River.

MANY MILLS CLOSE.

Annual Period of Depression at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, June 29.—The annual depression in manufacturing circles has arrived at Mckeesport, with the exception of two mills in the Buttweld department, the entire plant of the National Tube Works company, the National rolling mills and the Dewees wood and iron mills are shut down and 1200 men are temporarily out of employment. The tube works will resume operations next week, but the rolling mills and the wood plant will be closed for six or seven weeks.

The Braddock wire works, the largest of the plants of the Consolidated Steel and Wire company, followed the ruling of the wire nail trust yesterday and shut down. Tomorrow the yearly scale of the Amalgamated association expires, and a shut down will follow if a decision is not reached by that time. This will throw 25,000 men out of employment in the tinplate mills and twice as many more in other departments.

FIRE AT RUSH CITY.

Rush City, Minn., June 29.—Fire this morning destroyed two warehouses belonging to J. F. and K. G. Ramberg, situated on the railroad reservation just opposite the depot. Two freight cars standing on the track in front of the warehouse were burned and the depot was only saved by hard work. The loss has not yet been estimated.

THE TREASURY CONDITION.

Washington, June 29.—Today's statement of the treasury shows: Available cash balance, $266,714,238; gold reserve, $102,153,043.

William McKinley Officially Told of His Presidential Nomination.

Chairman Thurston Tells Him of the Honor in a Brief Speech.

Governor McKinley's Reply in Accepting the High Distinction.

Canton, Ohio, June 29.—The notification committee reached here on a Cleveland Terminal & Valley special at 11:40. The permanent reception committee lately organized for the campaign, headed by Judges G. E. Baldwin, William R. Day and Henry A. Wise were at the depot to meet the party. The decorated tallyhos and carriages were in waiting at the station. The parade was organized, the Grand Army band and the citizens troop of cavalry leading the vehicles occupied by the guests. Citizens fell in behind and an enormous crowd quickly gathered about the McKinley home where the duties of the committee were discharged and where the general public had been invited through the press.

On arriving at the McKinley home, the committee and guests found an enormous crowd assembled about the residence in an open space in the north side, which was reserved for them and the party was quickly seated upon the camp chairs provided. Mrs. McKinley and a company of friends occupied the front porch as the party arrived. Just as the crowd was quieting down Governor McKinley came out on the porch and was given a most enthusiastic ovation, cheer after cheer rising from the crowd.

Senator Thurston stepped upon the porch and delivered the official notification.

SPEECH OF NOTIFICATION.

Governor McKinley: We are here to perform the pleasant duty assigned us by the Republican national convention, recently assembled in St. Louis, that of formally notifying you of your nomination as the candidate of the Republican party for president of the United States. We respectfully request your acceptance of this nomination and your approval of the declaration of principles adopted by the convention.

We assure you that you are the unanimous choice of a united party, and your candidacy will be immediately accepted by the country as an absolute guaranty of Republican success. Your nomination has been made in obedience to a popular demand, whose universally and spontaneity attest the affection and confidence of the plain people of the United States. By common consent you are the champion. Their mighty uprising in your behalf emphasizes the sincerity of their conversion to the cardinal principles of protection and reciprocity as best exemplified in that splendid congressional act which justly bears your name. Under it this nation advanced to the very culmination of a prosperity shared in by all sections, all interests, and all classes; by capital and labor, by producer and consumer, a prosperity so happily in harmony with the genius of popular government that its choicest blessings were most widely distributed among the lowliest toilers and the humble homes.

In 1892 your countrymen, unmindful of your solemn warnings, returned that party to power which reiterated its everlasting opposition to a protective tariff, and demanded the repeal of the McKinley act. They sowed the wind. They reaped the whirlwind. The sufferings and losses and disasters to the American people, from four years of Democratic tariff, are vastly greater than those which came to them from four years of civil war.

Out of it all one great good remains. Those who scorned your counsels speedily witnessed the fulfillment of your prophecies, and even as the scourged and repentant Israelites abjured their stupid idols and resumed unquestioning allegiance to Moses and Moses' God, so now your countrymen, shamed of their errors, turn to you and to those glorious principles for which you stand, in the full belief that your candidacy and the Republican platform mean that the end of the wilderness has come and the promised land of American prosperity is again to them an insured inheritance.

But your nomination means more than the endorsement of a protective tariff, of reciprocity, of sound money and of honest finance, for all of which you have so steadfastly stood. It means an endorsement of your heroic youth, your fruitful years of arduous public services, your sterling patriotism, your stalwart Americanism, your Christian character, and the purity, fidelity and simplicity of your private life. In all these things you are the typical American; for all these things are the chosen leader of the people. God give you strength to assume the honors and meet the duties of that great office for which you are nominated and to which you will be elected, that your administration will enhance the dignity and power and glory of this republic, and secure the safety, welfare and happiness of its liberty-loving people.

Mr. Thurston was greeted with applause and was frequently interrupted by the cheering of the sentiments he expressed. At 12:20 Governor McKinley arose to respond and the cheering was renewed. When quiet was restored he spoke as follows:

GOV. M'KINLEY'S RESPONSE.

"Senator Thurston and Gentlemen of the Notification Committee of the Republican National Convention: To be selected as their presidential candidate by a great party convention, representing so vast a number of the people of the United States is a most distinguished honor for which I would not conceal my high appreciation, although deeply sensible of the responsibilities of the trust and my inability to bear them without the generous and constant support of my fellow countrymen. Great as is the honor conferred, equally arduous and important is the duty imposed and in accepting the one I assume the other, relying upon the patriotic devotion of the people to the best interests of our beloved country, and the sustaining care and aid of Him, without whose support all we do is empty and vain. Should the people ratify the choice of the great convention for which you speak, my only aim will be to promote the public good, which in America is always of the greatest number, the honor of our country and the welfare of the people."

"The questions to be settled in the national contest this year are as serious and important as any of the great governmental problems that have confronted us in the past quarter of the century. They command our sober judgment and a settlement free from partisan prejudice and passion, beneficial to ourselves and befitting the honor and grandeur of the republic. They touch our productive capacity, our business and commercial prosperity, our labor and its rewards, our national credit and currency, our proud financial honor, and our splendid free citizenship—the birthright of every American—are all enveloped in the pending campaign, and thus every home in the land is directly and intimately connected with their proper settlement.

"Great are the issues involved in the coming election, and eager and earnest the people for their rights and determination. Our domestic trade must be won back and our idle workingmen employed in gainful occupations at American wages. Our home market must be restored to its proud rank of the first in the world, and our foreign trade, so precipitately cut off by adverse national legislation, reopened on fair and equitable terms for our surplus agricultural and manufacturing products. Protection and reciprocity, twin measures of a true American policy, should again command the earnest encouragement of the government at Washington. Public confidence must be reached and the skill energy and capital of the country find ample employment at home, sustained, encouraged and defended against the unequal competition and serious disadvantage with which they are now contending.

"The government of the United States must raise enough money to meet both current expenses and increasing needs. Its revenues should be so raised as to protect the mineral interests of our people with the lightest possible drain upon their resources and maintain that high standard of civilization which has distinguished our country for more than a century of existence. The income of the government I repeat, should equal its necessary and proper expenditures. A failure to pursue this policy has compelled the government to borrow money in time of peace, to sustain its credit and pay its daily expenses. This policy should be reversed, and that, too, as speedily as possible. It must be apparent to all, regardless of past party ties or affiliations, that it is our paramount duty to provide adequate revenue for the expenditures of the government economically and prudently administered. The Republican party has heretofore done this, and I confidently believe it will do it in the future, when the party will again be entrusted with power in the executive and legislative branches of our government.

"The national credit, which has thus far fortunately resisted every assault upon it, must and will be upheld and strengthened. If sufficient revenues are provided for the support of the government there will be no necessity to borrow money and increase the public debt. The complaint of the people is not against the administration for borrowing money and issuing bonds to preserve the credit of the country, but against the ruinous policy which has made this necessary. It is but an incident of the policy which has been inaugurated. The inevitable effect of such a policy is seen in the deficiency of the United States treasury, except as it is replenished by loans, and in the distress of the people who are suffering because of the scant demand for either labor or the products of their labor. Here is the fundamental trouble, the remedy for which is Republican opportunity and duty.

"During all the years of Republican control following resumption there was a steady reduction of the public debt, while the gold reserve was sacredly maintained and our currency and credit preserved without depreciation, taint or suspicion. If we would restore this policy that brought us unexampled prosperity for more than thirty years, under the most trying conditions ever known in this country; the policy by which we made and bought more goods at home and sold more abroad, the trade balance would be quickly turned in our favor and gold would come to us and not go from us, in the settlement of all such balances, in the future.

"The party that supplied by legislation the vast revenues for the conduct of our greatest war, and promptly restored the credit of the country at its close, and that from its abundant revenues paid off a large share of the debt incurred in this year, and that resumed specie payments and placed our paper currency upon a sound and enduring basis, can be safely trusted to preserve both credit and currency with honor, stability and inviolability. The American people hold the financial honor of our government as sacred as our flag and can be relied upon to guard it with the same sleepless vigilance. They hold its preservation above party fealty and have often demonstrated that party ties avail nothing when the spotless credit of our country is threatened.

"The money of the United States and every kind or form of it, whether of paper, silver or gold, must be as good as the best in the world. It must not only be current at its full face value at home, but it must be counted at par in any and every commercial center of the globe. The sagacity and far-seeing policy of the great men who founded our government, the teachings and acts of the wisest financiers at every stage in our history, the steadfast faith and splendid achievements of the great party to which we belong, and the general integrity of our people have always demanded this, and will ever maintain it. The dollar paid to the farmer, the wage earner and the pensioner must continue forever equal in purchasing and debt paying power to the dollar paid to any government creditors.

"The contest this year will not be waged upon lines of theory and speculation, but in the light of severe practical experience and new and dearly-acquired knowledge. The great body of our citizens know what they want and what they intend to have. They know for what the Republican party stands and what its future return to power means to them. They realize that the Republican party believes that our work should be done at home and not abroad, and everywhere proclaim their devotion to the principles of a protective tariff, which, while supplying adequate revenues for the government, will restore American production and serve the best interests of American labor and development. Our appeal, therefore, is not to a false philosophy or vain theorists, but to the masses of the American people, the plain, practical people whom Lincoln loved and trusted, and whom the Republican party has always faithfully striven to serve.

"The platform adopted by the Republican national convention has received my careful consideration and has my approval. It is a matter of gratification to me, as I am sure it must be to you and Republicans everywhere and to all our people, that the expressions of its declarations of principles are so direct, clear and emphatic. They are too plain and positive to leave any chance for doubt or question as to their purport and meaning. But you will not expect me to discuss its provisions at length or in any detail at this time. It will, however be my duty and pleasure at some future time to make to you and through you to the great party you represent a more formal acceptance of the nomination.

"No one could be more profoundly grateful than I for manifestations of public confidence of which you have so eloquently spoken. It shall be my aim to attest this appreciation by an unsparing devotion to what I esteem the best interests of the people, and in this work I ask the counsel and support of you gentlemen and of every other friend of the country. The generous expressions with which you, sir, convey the official notice of my nomination are highly appreciated and as fully reciprocated, and I thank you and your associates of the notification committee and the great party and convention at whose instance you come, for the high and exceptional distinction bestowed upon me."

When the notification committee reached Canton, the skies were overhung with heavy clouds and a rain storm was imminent. As the arrangements were to have nearly the whole of the exercises in the open air, the committees set to work promptly, but instead of the expected rain, just as Maj. McKinley stepped to the porch to deliver his response, the sun burst through the clouds and the weather became most suspicious. Following the formal speeches, H. H. Smith, secretary of the notification committee presented a gavel made from a log taken from the log cabin in which Lincoln lived. Mrs. Smith, Jr., and Mother McKinley, together with a few lady friends, Mrs. Thurston and other ladies coming with the party, occupied the porch during the exercises.

OFF FOR CANTON.

Convention Committee to Notify McKinley Moving.

Cleveland, June 29.—The members of the committee appointed by the St. Louis convention to notify ex-Governor McKinley of his nomination for the presidency, assembled at the Hollenden hotel this morning at 9:30. After being photographed in a group in front of the Hollenden, the committee, headed by Senator Thurston and Mark Hanna, marched to the Valley railway station, where a special train was boarded for Canton. The train pulled out of the station a few minutes after 10 o'clock. A number of prominent Republicans accompanied the committee on the trip, making the total number of people on the train about 100. The train is due at Canton about 12 o'clock. Senator Thurston, chairman of the committee, stated that the committee would go direct from the train at Canton to Governor McKinley's residence.

Following the address by Senator Thurston and a response by Governor McKinley, H. L. Smith, of Michigan, will present to the governor a gavel made from a log taken from the house in which Abraham Lincoln lived during his childhood. The party will spend about four hours in Canton, the special train being scheduled to leave there at 4 p. m.

The party is as follows: W. F. Airey Maryland; C. D. Alexander, Alabama; C. H. Deers, Illinois; Hiram Brownlee, Indiana; John Bresler, Nevada; L. M. Bernard, North Carolina; James W. Brock, Vermont; J. S. Browning, Virginia; W. D. Frazee, Mississippi; M. E. B. Jefferson, Massachusetts; U. T. Lynch, West Virginia; H. G. Morse, Delaware; Calvin Manning, Iowa; J. P. McCarthy, New York; Walter Smede, South Dakota; Senator Hiscock, New York; Gen. McAlpin and A. B. Humphreys, New York; Hon. M. A. Hanna and S. T. Everett, Cleveland; T. J. O'Brien, Michigan; G. A. Sykes, Connecticut; H. H. Smith, Washington; W. D. Sawyer, New Hampshire; G. E. Townsend, Maine; H. L. Wilson, Washington; H. A. Huse, Vermont; J. A. Buckler, Oklahoma; J. W. Butler, Texas; Ernest Caldwell, Tennessee; J. W. Carrington, Arizona; J. D. Early, Indiana; Monroe Nichols, Minnesota; T. L. Flood, Pennsylvania; Joseph Foltz, Indian Territory; Charles Hilton, Oregon; C. S. Johnson, Alaska, Robert Maxwell, New York; N. G. Nickerson, Wyoming; Sim C. Ring, Wisconsin; J. C. Sanborn, Rhode Island.

BOUNDARY TROUBLE.

British Embassy at Washington Receives Advices.

Washington, June 29.—The British embassy had received from the foreign office a report regarding the arrest of Surveyor Harrison on the banks of the Cuyni river in Venezuela. The claim of the Venezuelans that the arrest was made on the east bank of the river is acknowledged, but it is denied at the embassy that the land at this point is within Venezuelan territory, according to the provisional line, which both governments have heretofore acknowledged. It is stated at the embassy that the Cuyni river is the provisional line only west of the mouth of the Acarabisi creek.

The arrest took place on the left bank of the creek and upon the territory which is claimed to be within the provisional line. It was also far within the Schomburgk line. The Aberdeen line follows the creek for some distance and its general route is now the provisional line.

RAMSEY FOR CLOUGH.

Senator Sheehan Chosen Chairman of the Convention.

St. Paul, June 29.—The Ramsey county Republican convention organized today by electing Senator T. D. Sheehan chairman by a vote of 161 to 108 for O. H. Arosin, the anti-Clough candidate. That vote showed the relative strength of the Clough and anti-Clough forces, everything going through by about the same vote.

After perfecting organization a recess was taken till 2 o'clock but at 3 o'clock the convention had not yet been called to order. Clough delegates will undoubtedly be chosen and they will also probably be instructed to support the governor for renomination.

BRITISH TROOPS MOVING.

London, June 29.—As a result of Saturday's cabinet meeting the Second battalion of the King's Royal Rifles now at Malta has been ordered to the Cape of Good Hope.

GHASTLY

Trunk of a Human Body Found Near Brule Station.

Believed to Be That of French the Missing Hunter.

Search Being Made For His Skull and Other Portions.

West Superior, Wis., June 29.—Somewhat of a sensation was started here today by the report that the body of Peyan alias French had been found in the woods near Brule, Wis., about where he was last seen in January, when he went on the hunting trip from which he never returned.

The head, legs and arms of the body were missing and the trunk was scarcely recognizable as that of a human being, and the medical fraternity are now examining the vertebrae and some of the bones to definitely settle whether they belong to the human species.

Search is now being made near where the body was found for the head and other members of the body, and the ground is being carefully gone over in the attempt to find French's gun which he took away with him.

With the exception of the small fragments of the remains which were brought here for medical examination the remainder of the body was interred at Brule this morning. French's sister is coming up from St. Paul to assist in prosecuting the search for the rest of the body. French was originally from Marshalltown, Iowa.

HENLEY RACES.

Positions of American Crew Changed Today.

Henley-on-Thames, June 29.—During this morning's practice of Yale's crew Whitney replaced Longacre and Longacre replaced Wheelwright. Wheelwright steered this morning until first Trinity's coxswain volunteered to steer for the Yale men. The offer and its acceptance are further indications of the friendly terms existing between Bob Cook and the Americans. Whitney did very well at number 6. The new oars were tried today. The newness prevented any estimate being performed upon their value, but the Yale men think that they will not prove better than the old ones. Capt. Treadway had to use his old oar, as the maker omitted to forward a number 7 oar with the boat.

The aluminum fin of the Yale shell, which was twisted, and retarded the headway of the boat on Saturday, has been removed and the old wooden fin has been put on. A new wooden fin has been ordered for the new boat. The crews were all out late this morning and did light work. There was no timing. The day was fine and a light wind was blowing off the Bucks shore. With Trinity's second crew acting as pacemakers and having a lead of two men, the Yale crew beat the pacemakers over the course by a quarter of a length. The stroke of the Americans was forty to the minute and the time 3:28.

The Dublin crew and London eight have arrived here. The Eton college eight has been scratched for the grand challenge cup, and therefore it is not likely that Yale will row on Monday, July 6, but there is little doubt that the first race of the Americans will occur on Tuesday.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Baseball Magnates Meeting at Pittsburg Today.

Pittsburg, June 29.—There was a gathering of the baseball magnates at the Monongahela house in this city this morning. They came to attend the meeting of the board of directors of the National league to consider the case of Rusie, the New York pitcher, who refused to sign with the club for the season, unless a fine of $200 was remitted. At 11 a. m., the appointed hour for the meeting Messrs. Hart, of Chicago, and Stucky, of Louisville, had not arrived and the meeting was postponed until later in the day.

A telegram stated that they would be here at 1 p. m. Those present this morning were Earle Wagner, of Washington, and Edward Sutherland, his attorney; W. W. Kerr, of Pittsburg; Arthur Soden, of Boston; Col. J. I. Rogers, of Philadelphia; Andrew Freedman, of New York, and President Young. John M. Ward and Carney Flinn, the suspended New York pitcher were also on hand and will appear before the board during the session.

BAYARD'S SPEECH.

Happy Response to a Toast in England.

Gainsboro, England, June 29.—Upon arriving here today the United States ambassador, Thomas F. Bayard, was presented with an address by the Gainsboro municipal council. Mr. Bayard's visit to this town was upon the occasion of the laying of the cornerstone of the John Robinson church. At luncheon, Lord Brownlow proposed the toast of "The President of the United States."

Mr. Bayard in reply said that the occasion was both memorable and delightful. It meant a good deal, he continued, when from both sides of the Atlantic, they met together with sincerity of feeling to drink the health of both rulers. He hoped that the time would never come when such toast would not be drunk with the same good feeling as at present exists. Continuing the ambassador remarked that he "was in this country, not to discover difficulties, but occasions for agreement."

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINERS.

The Board For the Duluth Custom House.

Washington, June 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thomas H. Pressnell, George L. Roberts and A. L. Hudson were today appointed a board of civil service examiners for the Duluth custom house.

PARTY MANAGERS UNEASY.

Goldbugs Are Afraid of an Educational Campaign.

Washington, June 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—While the old line Republicans at the national capital profess to be somewhat surprised at the conduct of Representative Towne in repudiating the St. Louis platform, they frankly acknowledge that there was no other honorable course open to him. As a bimetallist he could not stand upon a platform whose broadest plank was a gold one without even the glimmer of a silver chink in the whole structure.

There is no question that the defection of Mr. Towne is giving uneasiness to the party managers. For years the gold monometallists have been claiming that the silver element of the country was made up of a lot of rabid anarchists, Populists, disgruntled farmers and mine owners. They are now forced to face an entirely different condition. Mr. Towne's speech in the house of representatives last winter was a revelation. It opened the eyes of the gold standard men to the fact that there were some educated, cultivated and intelligent men who believed in the use of both gold and silver as money. They could no longer characterize the silver men as a lot of tobacco chewing ignoramuses.

Representative Shafroth, of Colorado, was another intelligent gentleman who did much to dissipate the Eastern illusion as to the silver advocates. He, like Mr. Towne, is a graduate of the University of Michigan, and has the courage of his convictions upon the money question. It is generally acknowledged that the speeches of these congressmen were a revelation to the Eastern men. They were educational and entirely free from the exaggerated statements of such men as Stewart, of Nevada, and other ultra white metal enthusiasts. More copies of Mr. Towne's silver speech have been distributed throughout the country than that of any other member's printed in the record during the past session of congress. Mr. Towne, as is well known, is not in particularly affluent circumstances and has therefore been unable to supply the demand upon him for copies of his famous "object lesson" upon the financial question. It is safe to say that 100 of them are read to one of "Professor" McCleary's reply to the brilliant young Duluth congressman.

It is an intelligent discussion of the subject that the gold monometallists fear. As long as the rank and file of the silver party was made up of mine owners, who could be pointed to as "interested," and of others who had not the ability to clearly present their cause, there was plain sailing for the goldbugs. With such men as Towne in the field, however, the case is different. There is nothing a single standard man fears so much as an educational campaign, and this is just what he is likely to get.

PITTSTON'S HORROR.

Water Flooding the Mine---Newspaper Men Balked.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 29.—The rescuers in the mine this afternoon encountered a new difficulty. Water is pouring into the slope and threatens to drive out the men at work. Superintendent Law thinks it is the water from the surface and that it will soon cease to flow into the mine. Others think the water comes from the Susquehanna river, which is close by us. If it is river water, the whole mine will be flooded in a short time and it will be months before the bodies can be gotten.

A party of newspaper artists received permission from the superintendent to go down into the mine this morning to make sketches, but Mine Inspector McDonald protested, and said he would allow no man to enter the mine who was not a miner. "There are enough lives lost now," he continued, " and there is no use increasing the number." One of the artists offered to donate $100 to the relief fund if allowed to go down the shaft but the offer was refused.

FIGHT IN MEXICO.

Where Sharkey and Corbett Will Combat.

San Francisco, June 29.—Many people in the management of pugilistic contests are sending telegrams over the country in search of an available spot for the Corbett-Sharkey match. Dan Stuart's Mexican concession is still held in reserve. Several local and Eastern sports have been canvassing the possibilities of securing a location in Nevada. Unless something unforseen happens there will be a concerted effort to have the big mill take place in Nevada.

The state and federal authorities, however, may not relish the idea and may defeat the aims of the fistic enthusiasts. H. M. Humphrey, marshal of the district of Nevada, has already expressed himself as being opposed to the holding of any contests contrary to the federal laws. As yet the leading state officials have not expressed themselves. Governor Budd has placed a quietus on the Santa Catalina scheme, and the only battle ground that now practically remains open is the one on the Mexican border.

APPOINTED BY CLEVELAND.

Washington, June 29.—The president today made the following appointments: C. Max Manning, of Georgia, secretary of legation of the United States at Monrovia, Liberia; G. E. Kedzie, of Mexico, consul of the United States at Durango, Mexico; G. B. Anderson, of the District of Columbia, consul at Antigua, West Indies. Charles Wills, of Maryland, was named for this place, but probably a severe illness has prevented him from qualifying. Anton M. Keller, of South Dakota, has been reappointed Indian agent for the Crow Creek agency in South Dakota. The name of the agency being changed by the last appropriation Indian bill.

BARON HARDING DEAD.

London, June 29.—Baron Fitz Harding is dead. He was born in 1826 and was a member of parliament for Cheltenham from 1836 to 1865.

ENDEAVOR

Washington Is Swamped By the International Endeavor Convention.

All the Records of Other Years Will Probably Be Eclipsed.

Great Rally to Washington Monument and Parade to the Capitol.

Washington, June 29.—Final touches are being given to the elaborate preparations for entertaining the fifteenth International Christian Endeavor convention. Although the regular sessions do not begin until Wednesday, July 8, the advance guard of the great Christian host is beginning to arrive, and by the middle if this week the inrush of visitors will be like a mighty human tide. Within a few years this summer meeting of young Christians has dwarfed all other gatherings in point of numbers. The only other meetings that can "touch" them are the big national political conventions, and everybody knows they occur only once every four years. The onward march of this Christian convention to an attendance that will be beyond the ordinary mind to grasp will keep up this year. The capital of the nation, which has seen the biggest gatherings of any city in the country in proportion to its size—the inauguration crowds—is already beginning to tremble at the thought of the army that is to spread its happy, ever-smiling, ever-orderly squadron throughout the length of this umbrageous and smoothly-paved city. The local committee is expecting fully 60,000 visitors, and the Rev. E. B. Bagby, chairman of the reception committee, says he wouldn't be surprised if 10,000 more came. It's a hard thing to keep tabs on the growth of this society. The mushroom growth is a slow development compared with it.

The Christian Endeavor movement is growing at the rate of about 100 new societies a week. On April 25, 1896, there were 44,596 societies in the world, with a membership of 2,630,000. The first society of Christian Endeavor was established as recently as Feb. 2, 1881, by the Rev. Francis E. Clark, of Portland, Me. His object was to train young people for service in church work, and this continues to be the aim of the societies. There is nothing tending to schism in the Christian Endeavor movement. The Christian Endeavorer is the more loyal and effective Presbyterian, Methodist, Congregational, etc., by virtue of his being a Christian Endeavorer. Surely this is the abiding reason of the astonishing success of the movement.

There is, indeed, a United Society of Christian Endeavor, with headquarters in Boston, Mass., but it is simply a bureau of information, having but this one object—to spread the Christian Endeavor idea. The publication of literature and other business enterprises are the sources of its income. Its chief officers are the Rev. Francis E. Clark, D.D., president; John Willis Baer, general secretary, and William Shaw, treasurer.

The United society arranges for the annual international convention, which is held purely for fellowship. As in the meetings of local societies, youthful enthusiasm and vigor characterize these mighty gatherings. Their singing is a revelation of sweetness and volume. Four thousand persons constitute the chorus organized to lead the singing at the convention. The attendance at the New York convention in 1892 was 35,000. At Boston last year it was 50,000.

The convention will open on the evening of July 8 with twenty-two meetings in as many of the largest churches of the city. "Deepening the Spiritual Life" is announced as the subject for all these meetings. On Thursday morning will be held the official opening of the convention in the three great tents which will be pitched on the White lot. The presiding officers will be the Rev. F. E. Clark, D.D., and the Rev. Teunis S. Hamlin, D.D., of Washington, and the Rev. H. B. Grose, of Boston. At these meetings will be read Secretary Baer's annual report and President Clark's annual address.

Denominational rallies will be a feature of Thursday's proceedings, the principal meetings being in the three tents, which will be used each respectively by Presbyterians, Congregationalists and Baptists; but from twenty-five to thirty churches will be occupied for similar gatherings of other sects. In the evening of the same day the general topic of "Christian Citizenship" will be discussed in mass meetings held in the three tents and in five of the largest churches in Washington. The list of speakers includes, in addition to the names of leaders in the organization, those of William L. Wilson, postmaster general of the United States; Booker T. Washington, of Tuskegee, Ala., colored instructor and philanthropic statesman; John Wanamaker and other distinguished men.

The topic for the next day (Friday) is "Saved to Serve." The morning meetings will be held in the three tents. The practical committee conferences will be held in the churches in the afternoon. In the evening one of the tents will be given over to an evangelistic meeting for the citizens of Washington; and in the other two tents, Central hall and six churches will be especially attractive programs for Endeavorers.

Saturday morning at 9:30 will be held the first great outdoor praise service at the Washington monument. Then there will be a march up Pennsylvania avenue to the capitol, when it is hoped a brief address will be given from the steps of the seat of government. The afternoon is to be given up to sightseeing. At 5:30 another outdoor song service will be held, and the evening will be given up to reconsecrations in the churches and to state rallies.

The juniors' day is Saturday. There will be held in one of the churches an early morning prayer meeting. This is the first time an early morning prayer meeting has been planned for the juniors. Their annual rally will be held Saturday afternoon in Tent Washington.

Saturday evening, while the Endeavorers are in attendance upon their state rallies and receptions, in the three tents will be held meetings for citizens only. The speakers will be the trustees of the United society and leading evangelists.

THE INTERIOR OF MONUMENT TENT.

PRESIDENT CLARK.

The tents will be closed Sunday morning, and all will attend the Sunday schools and regular church services. In the afternoon, in one tent, will be held an evangelistic meeting, and in the other two and in many churches will be denominational missionary rallies, in charge of the chairman of the denominational rallies. This is a new feature, and one that promises to prove a great success. In Central hall, on Sunday afternoon, a meeting devoted wholly to the question of the American Sunday will be arranged. The tents will be closed in the evening, and the regular church services will be attended.

Monday morning will be given over to the World's Union of Christian Endeavor for its first annual convention, the afternoon to excursions, and in the evening the convention will close with the sermons and usual consecration services in each of the three tents, Central hall and five or six large churches.

More than ever bicycle excursions will be the feature of the sight-seeing side of the convention. The smooth streets of the city lend themselves to the use of the wheel, and though the outlying roads are not comparable with Boston's for out-of-town rides, the limits of the city and most suburbs like Arlington promise to be thoroughly explored by thousands of wheelmen and wheelwomen. One thing about cycling will specially interest riders at this convention, and that is the effort that is said will be made to secure the adoption of a resolution denouncing Sunday cycling as un-Christian. It has been frequently charged that the wheel has done more to break down the sacred character of the Sabbath than any other single agency, and this convention will probably be asked to set its face against it. That this effort will meet with opposition is almost certain, since many claim that cycling is not distinctively a sport, but a "means of locomotion."

Early morning bicycle runs have been arranged by the excursion committee to Brightwood and the Soldiers' Home, and 'afternoon runs are contemplated over the Woodley, Loughborough and Conduit roads. A bicycle trip to Arlington and Fort Myer has been planned for Saturday afternoon, and a special cavalry drill will be given at Fort Myer on this occasion. The bicycle dealers have promised to keep on hand during the convention season a special supply of bicycles for visitors from a distance, and they have also promised not to overcharge for the rental of these to delegates.

Nearly One Hundred Lives Lost in a Coal Mine.

Frightful Mining Horror at Pittston Caused By a Cavein.

No Hope Exists That Any of Them Will Escape With Life.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 29.—While ninety miners were at work in the Red Ash vein of the Twin shaft, at Pittston about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, the roof caved in and it is believed all of the men perished. About forty of the imprisoned men were English speaking miners; the others were foreigners. The names of the former are:

M. J. Langan, inside superintendent, married, 49 years old; M. J. Lynott, inside foreman, married, aged 43 years; Alexander McCormick, aged 42; Thomas Murphy, driver, aged 36 years; James Costello, married, aged 24; Michael Gaughan, single, 24; John Hart, single, 30 James Dalley, single, 20; Michael Connell, single, 34; Daniel Ward, single, 39; Frank Kehoe, single, 16; John Kehoe, married, 40; James McDonald, married, 38; Ed Delaney, married, 38; John McGuire, married, 34; James Golden, married, 34; Michael O'Brien, married, 45; Michael Hughes, married, 35; Ed Kilday, married, 36; James Burke, single, 35; Patrick Ruane, married, 40; Thomas Tenpenny, fire boss, married, 34; Thomas Daffey, ——; John Gaffney, married, 26; Thomas Doing, single, 30; Anthony Kane, single, 34; J. W. Murphy, single, 28; James Wall, married, 45; Owen Lee, single, 22; Anthony Gordon, married, 28; Thomas Wall, single, 18; Dominick O'Malley, single, 30; Peter Martin, married, 35; Michael Ford, married, 30; Timothy Burbeck, single, 25; Thomas Cardin, married, 28; Patrick Gibbons, ——; John Oberle, married, 23; Peter Joyce, married, 32; Daniel Gavin, single, ——; John Gill, single, 22; P. S. Kelly, single, 35; Patrick Boland, ——; Anthony Gorman, married, ——; John Holstein, married, Hungarian laborer; Joseph Durenda, married, Hungarian; Toney Tollark, married, Hungarian; Pete Savosk, married, Hungarian; Andrew Slovinski, married, Hungarian; Iunanian Maskoviz, married, Hungarian; John Cadamiski, single, Hungarian; about twenty other Hungarians and Polanders whose names could not be learned.

The men were at work propping the roof when the fall occurred. The alarm was immediately given by the ringing of the fire bells and rescuers were put to work without delay where the men had been working. More than two-thirds of the victims were married men and leave families.

About two weeks ago the surveyors reported that the mine was "squeezing" and that unless steps were immediately taken to timber it, a fall might be looked for. Superintendent Law lost no time, but at once put a number of men at work to brace the falling roof. The "squeeze" continued, however, and a consultation of mine officials was then held and it was decided that heroic measures would have to be resorted to to prevent heavy damage to the mine. Inside Superintendent Langan gave instructions that none but experienced miners should be secured. Expert timbermen put in an appearance at that hour and were soon lowered into the workings. They made their way to Red Ash vein, 1500 feet down the slope and the work of propping proceeded in spite of several falls. Then the "squeeze" ceased again and the men thought it was safe to resume work. They labored on until 3:20 o'clock, when, so it is presumed, the roof fell in without warning, making a tremendous crash.

The alarm was first given by Water Carrier John Sheridan who, with William Rechard and Thomas Gill, were the only ones to escape of the whole party who entered the mine last night. He was on his way up the slope to get some fresh water for the men and when about 100 feet from the foot of the shaft, was knocked down by the concussion. He was badly cut and burned by flying coal and rock. He lay unconscious for ten minutes and then came up the shaft. The concussion was so great that it was heard for miles around. The foundations of nearly every building in Pittston were shaken and windows and doors rattled as in a tornado. In the houses nearer to the mine, persons were thrown from their beds. The first thought was that a great earthquake had occurred and the inhabitants rushed from their houses. The ringing of the fire bells and the shrieking of the big mine whistle told the story.

The work of rescue was prompt and efficient. The best miners who remained on the surface joined voluntarily in the hazardous task—for hazardous it certainly was. There was the constant menace of another fall or an explosion of fire-damp. Special efforts were made to keep the air fans in good order so that if, by any chance, the men were alive, they should have fresh air to breathe. The blocked slope and gangways, however, held out little hope of the air reaching them. The rescuers were divided into three relays of forty men each under the direction of Mine Foreman Alex McMullin. The men worked as they had never before worked, clearing away the debris in the slope with the energy that only springs of the knowledge of dear lives behind it. They made good headway considering their difficulty they had to contend with, and at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, had cleared the slope a distance of 600 feet.

At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon it became necessary to swear extra policemen to control the crowd around the mouth of the shaft. It had increased to fully 7000 people. Ropes were stretched around the shaft and only mine officials were allowed to enter the enclosure.

Young Sheridan, the water boy, who had such a narrow escape, tells a thrilling tale of the disaster. He thinks there was an explosion of gas which blew down the newly erected timbers and caused the cave in. When he left the mine to go out of the slope and get water, those inside had no apprehension of a fall or a "squeeze." Everything was working nicely and the men expected to be out of the mine within another hour. "The report of the fall," says the boy, "was like a hundred cannon and the force of it blew me fully twenty-five feet. I was hurled against the side of the slope. A piece of rock hit me back of the head, the wound commenced to bleed, and then I fainted."

The breaker of the Twin Shaft burned down three years ago. There were over 100 men in the mine at the time, but all escaped through a second opening. The first great disaster in the anthracite region was in September, 1869, when 120 men perished in the Avondale mine, this county. The breaker over the mine caught fire and all the men in the mine were suffocated. This great catastrophe caused the legislature to pass a law compelling mines to have two openings.

The report that two bodies had been found in the mine was proved last night to have been premature. Up to 9 o'clock no bodies had been found. At that hour all hope of finding any person alive had been abandoned. Superintendent Lathrop, of the Lehigh Valley Coal company, who is an authority, says it will be ten days before the bodies are reached.

ALL HOPE GONE.

No One Believes Any Victims Are Alive.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 29.—The excitement at the Twin shaft in Pittston, where nearly 100 miners are entombed, either dead or alive, continues today. At the mouth of the shaft, besides the wives and children of the entombed men, there are hundreds of people not residents of Pittston alone, but visitors from Kingston, Scranton and Wilkesbarre. The grief of the stricken families is intense. Wives and children, many of whom have not left the mouth of the shaft since the terrible accident, stand near the opening to the death chamber and urge the rescuers to great efforts. The situation is almost the same as that of last night. Practically nothing has been accomplished toward the recovery of the men. There is scarcely an old miner about the opening of the mine who does not believe all the men are dead.

The rescuing party went into the mine at 1 o'clock and came out of the shaft at 7 o'clock. The men report that the timbering in the mine is going rapidly as possible. He says the work was necessarily slow owing to the danger of falling rocks, which have been loosened by the terrible explosion. It is hardly possible that actual digging will begin before late this afternoon. The suggestions advanced as to the probable time the men would be reached are mere guess work as all depends on whether the slope is completely choked up or not. If not, the rescuers may possibly be able to reach the men within the next twenty-four hours, otherwise it may be two or three days. The rescuing party is 2000 feet from where the cave-in occurred.

The gas continues to accumulate and the rock which was weakened by the explosion is in danger of falling. The men came out of the shaft this morning bearing the marks of anxiety and labor. One of them said: "I am glad I am out of that hole. I would like very much to see the men rescued alive, but I tell you we, who are engaged in the work of rescue, are taking our lives in our hands. Why, we had hardly begun work this morning when a big squeeze came on. I and two laborers were pulling up a prop about six inches too short. I sent a laborer for a 'cap,' but before he returned the roof came down and met the prop. So great was the pressure that the heavy prop was snapped off as though it were a match. Fortunately we succeeded in getting away before the roof came down any further."

Before any attempt can be made to clear this part of the slope again it will be necessary to do extra propping and timbering. A few of the more hopeful who believed that there might be a possibility of the entombed men being alive, now surrender, and no one can be found who is willing to admit that there is any life underground. Others recall the Sugar Notch disaster of 1879, in which five men were rescued from peril after they were imprisoned for five days, but the fact was overlooked that the breast in which they were, was free from any blockade and in a direct line with the main current of air. Speaking on this point this morning Fire Boss Johns, who is considered one of the best experts in the Wyoming valley on mine ventilation, said: "It is my belief that the air current in the Twin shaft was shut off the moment the cave-in occurred. Then if the men were not killed by the falling rock and coal, they may have lived some minutes before being suffocated."

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Mary Sargent, (a widow), mortgagor, to Agnes Callender, mortgagee, dated June first (1st), 1893, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on June twentieth (20th), 1893, at 4:10 o'clock p. m., in Book one hundred two (102) of morigages; on pages three hundred twenty-eight (328), three hundred twenty-nine (329) and three hundred thirty (330); such default consisting in the non-payment of the semi-annual installment of interest upon the debt secured by said mortgage, which became due on January first (1st), 1896, amounting to the sum of four hundred seventy-two and 50-100 dollars, no part of which has ever been paid; and also in the non-payment of the sum of forty-five and 18-100 dollars, heretofore paid by said mortgagee for insurance premiums upon the premises covered by said mortgage, in accordance with the provisions thereof; by reason of which defaults said mortgagee has, after said defaults had continued for more than ten days, elected to exercise the option to her given by the terms of said mortgage and of the note secured thereby, by declaring, and she does hereby declare, the whole principal sum secured by said note and mortgage, with all accrued interest thereon, and exchange, and said insurance premiums paid, to be now due and payable.

And whereas there is therefore claimed to be due, and there is actually due upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of fourteen thousand four hundred twenty-six ($14,426) dollars, principal, interest, exchange and insurance premiums paid.

And whereas said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the default above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein, situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: All of lots numbered one (1), two (2), three (3) and four (4), in block "B," of London Addition to Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof in the office of the register of deeds for St. Louis County, Minnesota; which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the eighth (8th) day of July, A. D. 1896, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt, interest, and insurance premiums, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and two hundred dollars attorney's fee, stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated May 25th, 1896.

WEST END

Strong Sentiment in West Duluth in Favor of Congressman Towne.

Towne Club Expected to Be Organized in the Near Future.

Dr. Forbes Will Leave This Week For His Eastern Visit.

There is a strong under current of Towne sentiment in West Duluth among all parties, and amon gthe rank and file of the Republican party. There is already talk of organizing a Towne club and steps toward that end will be undoubtedlytaken in a few days. There are several West Duluth Republicans on the congressional delegation and some of them have said that an endorsement of Towne in the place of a nomination at the convention will be to their liking.

ARE GOING EAST.

A number of West Duluth people will leave this week for Eastern visits. Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Parsons leave for Buffalo and thence to Pennsylvania to visit at their old home.

Dr. Forbes and son, Mason, leave tomorrow for Ocean Grove, where the doctor will preach on Sunday. After that he will supply the pulpit at Yonkers until Sept. 1, when he will return to his pastorate at West Duluth. Mrs. Forbes and son, Sabin, will also leave on the Monarch for Canada, where she will make an extended visit among friends during the summer. Dr. Forbes' pulpit will be regularly supplied during his absence.

Miss Ensign, principal of the Longfellow school, and her mother, will go to Buffalo to attend the Educational association and there are several other West Duluth teachers who are thinking of going and making a party.

The Price of Wheat Still on the Down Grade Today.

Little in the Situation That Gave Comfort to the Bulls.

World's Shipments Smaller But Are Still Greater Than Required.

There was another decline in wheat today. The atmosphere was laden with the signs of despondent bulls. There was only one little whiff of comfort which, however, was too slight to disperse the heavy clouds of distrust. The world's shipments of wheat and flour last week were stated in private cablegrams received at Chicago before the opening to be about 500,000 bus smaller than on the week proceeding. But they were still said to exceed the weekly requirements, and the Northwestern receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis were 611 cars as compared with 556 a week ago, and only 294 cars on the corresponding day of the year before the market of the previous week.

With several features of the later news tending to allay rather than further aggravate the depression, there was no material relief to it and the price kept gradually sinking. There was a decrease on ocean passage of 1,520,000 bus. The visible supply decreased 959,000 bus. The Atlantic port clearances of wheat and flour together equalled 400,000 bus, of which 200,000 bus was in the shape of raw grain, and New York exported twenty-five boat loads of spring wheat.

There was active trading in July wheat on the Duluth board. It opened ¼c lower at 55¾c, declined to 54¾c, reacted to 55¾c and then steadily advanced to 56¾c, with a rally to 55¾c before the close. The mills bought 20,000 bus of cash stuff at ¼c above July and shippers took 80,000 bus at the July price. The close for wheat was ¾c lower all round than Saturday. Oats declined ½c, flax 1½c and rye, 1½c. Flax is now 1½c and oats ¾c below the lowest prices on record. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 55¾c; July, 56c. No. 1 northern, cash, 54½c; June, 54½c; July, 54¾c asked; September, 54½c asked. No. 2 northern, cash, 51¼@53¼c. No. 3, 50¾@51¾c. Rejected, 45½@51½c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 55¾c; No. 1 northern, 54¾c. Rye, 28½c. No. 2 oats, 15¾@16¾c; No. 3 oats, 15¼@15¾c. Flax, 76¾c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 216; corn, 1; oats, 19; rye, 10; barley, 16; flax, 29. Receipts—Wheat, 129,125 bus; oats, 17,491 bus; rye, 4112 bus; barley, 18,235 bus; flax, 4320 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 112,040 bus; barley, 56,-266 bus.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade, Chicago, June 29.—With large receipts again at Minneapolis and Duluth and a very weak stock market, it was only natural that wheat should open weak and make another new record for low prices. Heavy engagements of gold for shipment offset the moderate export demand which the decline brought about. Loverpool cables remain steady, but Paris quotations do not reflect much alarm regarding continental crops. The decline was only checked by the covering of a large short line around 55c for a local trader and buying against puts. Liquidation of long wheat continued all day, and the end is not yet in sight. A private crop report issued today notes a small decrease in the condition for last month, and while this will mean only a moderate wheat crop, yet the financial situation inspires so little confidence that it appears much easier to most operators to sell than to buy.

Corn and oats again freely sold by the country on the excellent crop outlook.

Provisions firm and higher on good demand, which met with only light offerings.

Puts, September wheat, 54¾c.

Calls, September wheat, 55¾c.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Today's Opening Was Weak and Lower.

New York, June 29.—The stock market opened weak and lower under a renewal of the extensive liquidation that had been apparent at the close of the preceding week. Dealings were large and material losses were scored in a number of properties. Sugar broke 2¾ to 111; Missouri Pacific lost 2, Chicago Gas 1¾, General Electric ½, St. Paul 1¾; Leather preferred 1¼ and other shares important fractions.

The pressure against the market was exhaustefl around 10:30, but in the meantime sharp declines had been offered in a number of properties. Blocks of from 1000 to 2500 shares changed hands at frequent intervals and these liberal offerings were reflected in a concession to 110¼ in Sugar and a further loss of 1 per cent in General Electric. The recognized professional bear leaders were active in putting out lines of various shares and together with the assistance of the traders who were ranged on the short side numerous stop orders were uncovered, the execution of which accelerated the downward movement.

Sugar at 11 o'clock was quoted at 112 and fractional recoveries had been recorded in other leading shares. The market, however, was very nervous and responded readily to the slightest pressure either way. Marked weakness developed in parts of the list during the second hour and although some support was accorded the internal shares, owing to heavy foreign purchase, the general trend was downward. The coalers scored material losses on realizations, and although some of the industrials were well held at the early improvements, the list generally displayed a sagging tendency at midday. Sales to noon were 28,500 shares.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF ST. LOUIS, DISTRICT COURT.—In the matter of the receivership of the Great Western Manufacturing Company, Insolvent:

Upon reading and filing the affidavit of George C. Power, on behalf of the Merchants' National Bank, of St. Paul.

It is ordered that the receiver in the above entitled cause, and all creditors of said insolvent show cause before this court at a special term thereof to be held at the court house in the city of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, at ten o'clock in the forenoon on Saturday, July 11th, 1896, why an order should not be made permitting and allowing said Merchants' National Bank of St. Paul, to file proof of the balance of its claim against the above named insolvent with the same force and effect as though the said proof had been filed within the time heretofore limited by order of this court, and for such other and further order as may appear to be proper on said hearing.

It is further ordered that this order be served on the receiver herein personally and on the creditors of said insolvent estate who have filed their claims with said receiver by mailing a copy thereof to each of said creditors, or to their attorney on or before the 27th day of June, 1896, and by publishing a copy thereof in The Duluth Evening Herald, once in each week for two successive weeks before said hearing.

Dated Duluth, June 17th, 1896.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—Default having been made in the payment of the sum of fourteen hundred seventy-eight and 65-100 ($1478.65) dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by John G. Carlson and Mary Carlson, mortgagors, to Nathaniel J. Upham, mortgagee, bearing date the ninth day of May, 1891, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 14th day of May, 1891, at eight o'clock a. m., in Book 62 of mortgages, on page 295.

Which said mortgage together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Nathaniel J. Upham, mortgagee, to Henrietta D. Hill, by written assignment dated the 25th day of May, 1891, and recorded in the office of said register of deeds on the 26th day of May, 1891, at eight o'clock a. m., in Book 74 of mortgages on page 397, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, which are situated in St. Louis County, Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: Lot numbered twenty-five (25), East Sixth street, Duluth Proper, First Division, according to the recorded plat thereof in the office of the register of deeds for said county; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state on the seventh day of July, 1896, at ten o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of fourteen hundred seventy-eight and 65-100 dollars, and interest, and seventy-five dollars attorneys' fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (Central time), June 29.—Fair weather is reported in all districts this morning, and no rain has fallen during the past twenty-four hours, except light showers at Lake Superior stations.

The temperature reports, as compared with those of yesterday morning, show a slight, but general, rise in the districts west of the Mississippi river. Maximum temperatures of 84 to 90 degrees were reported yesterday afternoon in the region north of Montana.

Depth of water in the Sault canal at 7 a. m. today was 14 feet 4 inches. Forecast for the next twenty-four hours: Stationary.

Duluth temperature at 7 a. m. today, 56; maximum yesterday, 76; minimum yesterday, 60; rainfall, .02 inch.

Local forecast for Duluth and vicinity: Fair and warmer tonight and Tuesday; light, variable winds, becoming fresh easterly.

JAMES KENEALY,
Local Forecast Official.

Chicago, June 29.—Forecast until 8 p. m. tomorrow: For Wisconsin and Minnesota: Fair tonight and Tuesday; variable winds shifting to southerly Tuesday.

ALL INTERESTS DAMAGED.

In a recent letter to the Chicago Post on the money issue, John V. Farwell, one of the leading business men of Chicago, and a life-long Republican, said: "The damage done to property interests of all kinds by the demonetization of silver is beyond computation. Its restoration to money functions in the light of past history cannot be anything but a blessing to the vast majority of human interests."

This is the deliberately expressed opinion of one of the shrewdest business men in the West. No doubt the News Tribune and other goldbug papers will combat his statement by sneeringly referring to him as a Populist, but the people of Chicago, the business men all over the Northwest, who know John V. Farwell, will require a better argument than sneers or ridicule to convince them that his views are not entitled to respect and belief. Mr. Farwell says truly that the damage done to property interests of all kinds by the demonetization of silver is beyond computation. Years ago, James G. Blaine, whose Republicanism cannot be questioned by even the most bitter goldbug, said that "the destruction of silver as money and establishing gold as the sole unit of value must have a ruinous effect on all forms of property." Again, he said that "it is impossible to strike silver out of existence as money, without results which will prove distressing to millions and utterly disastrous to tens of thousands." How true was the prophecy uttered by Mr. Blaine, the records show.

As a result of the striking down of silver as standard money and the establishment of the single gold standard, ruin stalks abroad in the land today, as Mr. Blaine so clearly foresaw would be the consequence of such a policy. The contraction of the currency by the wiping out of one-half the standard money of the country has resulted in widespread distress.

Prices of products are so low that the farmers are impoverished. The result is that their diminished purchasing ability lessens the demand for our manufactures and forces down the prices of all manufactured articles.

This in turn causes a decline in the earnings of the mechanics and laborers of all kinds. The lessened demand necessitates the closing down of factories and mills or the reduction of their forces, thus throwing thousands of men out of employment and filling the land with the idle and unemployed.

The decline in the selling price of manufactured articles results in a reduction of the wages of the employes of the manufactories and in decreased dividends for those who have their money invested in industrial establishments.

The workingmen, receiving less wages, have less money to spend with the grocer, the butcher, the baker, the clothing merchant and the dry goods merchant, and thus the blighting effects of the gold standard and the evil results of the demonetization of silver and consequent contraction of the currency have been felt in all the channels and avenues of trade and industry.

It is time to effect a change in these conditions. The people have it within their power to make the change, and they can do it in November by electing a president and a congress pledged to restore silver to its money functions and thus revive enterprise and prosperity throughout the land.

RAILROAD BUILDING.

In its last issue the Railway Age presents some interesting statistics regarding the amount of railroad construction during the past six months. The continuance of business depression has naturally prevented a marked revival in railway construction. Still the number of uncommenced and uncompleted railway enterprises in this country is so great and so steadily increasing, and the need for some of them is so strongly felt, that in spite of the hard times the work of grading and tracklaying has been going on upon a very considerable number of roads in the United States. The first six months of the year is always devoted much more to preliminary work than to tracklaying, but the records show that between Jan. 1 and June 30 track was laid on sixty-three lines to the extent of 788 miles, of which two lines, aggregating 20.23 miles, are credited to Minnesota.

Compared with the two previous years, says the Age, this statement indicates some increase. For the first six months of 1895 the records showed 641 miles of new track, and for the corresponding period of 1894 only 525 miles. But in 1893 the six months' statement showed 1015 miles, and in 1892 it gave 1367 miles; so that the record of 1896 thus far is small compared with that of good times. It shows, however, about 23 per cent more miles than the same time last year, and 47 per cent more than in the same half of 1894, which is encouraging. There are now on the Age's books about 120 roads upon which tracklaying is in progress or is expected to be commenced this year, and its estimate at present is that the new track to be credited to 1896 will be a little over 2000 miles. If financial conditions materially improve within a few months this figure will be increased, but it is pretty certain that it will not be reduced, for the enterprises referred to have evidently, with possibly one or two exceptions, made provision for carrying on their work under any conditions at all likely to occur.

In twenty-six of the twenty-nine states and territories track has already been laid, while in twenty no rails have yet gone down. In several of the latter some construction will yet be done, but at present no enterprises which seem likely to result in tracklaying this year are on record in either New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Kansas, Wyoming, Nevada, New Mexico or Arizona—making at least twelve states and territories which probably will contribute nothing to the new railway mileage of 1896.

There are many enterprises on the books waiting for more favorable times, but so long as the depression created by the gold standard continues they will not be pushed. With the restoration of bimetallism there would be an immediate revival of enterprise and prosperity, and railroad construction would be renewed on an extensive scale in conjunction with the great development of the West which would take place in all directions.

SHERIFF BUTCHART'S RESOLVE.

Sheriff Butchart threw a bombshell into the camp of the gold Republicans on Saturday afternoon, when he announced that he would not accept a renomination at their hands and that he intends to run as an independent candidate, being, as a staunch bimetallist, unable to subscribe to the gold plank adopted at St. Louis and having determined to lend his support to the re-election of Mr. Towne. The chairman of the county committee, to whom Mr. Butchart first announced his decision to quit the Republican party until it again gets in line with the people, was dumbfounded and when he repeated the statement to the other members of the goldbug clique there was a small-sized panic.

The defection of the popular sheriff was something which they had hardly anticipated. They had an idea that he wanted another term and consequently would strive to get the Republican nomination. Knowing that he was practically certain of this nomination, they never dreamed he would cast it aside. But these machine politicians, who would never permit their convictions to interfere with their office-holding propensities, did not know Sheriff Butchart's true character. They have a better idea concerning it now. Mr. Butchart would not stultify himself for the sake of office. He would not abandon the cause of bimetallism for the sake of a party nomination. Nor was he disposed to sit on the fence and wait for further developments, as some other candidates for county offices are doing. He is not a band-wagon politician. He always lets the people know where he is on any question, and for this reason and because he believes that Mr. Towne is entitled to a re-election he promptly announced his resolve to decline a renomination by the Republicans and to remain in the field as an independent candidate. There is no doubt that Mr. Butchart's good example will be followed by similar action by other Republicans who are disgusted by the course of the St. Louis convention on the money question.

And now The Herald is a Populist, according to the Republican gold organ. Only a few days ago it said The Herald was Democratic, while the Democratic organ at St. Cloud says it is Republican. These party organs, that color the news to suit their views and distort every political happening to make party capital do not like independent journals like The Herald that tell the truth and support the people's cause, regardless of the wishes of the political bosses and the political machines.

Week after week, Henry Clews, the Wall street broker, assured the readers of his weekly financial circular that if the St. Louis convention would declare for gold, business would at once show a marked revival. The convention did adopt a gold plank, but so far there has been no revival, and in his latest circular Mr. Clews says there is now no prospect that there will be any immediate speculative boom.

The St. Paul Dispatch quotes Sam Fullerton as saying that Judge Morris has reconsidered his first decision and has consented to run for congress. There is no truth whatever in Sam's statement. Judge Morris has stated that he prefers to remain on the bench and that under no circumstances will he take a nomination for congress. He has not reconsidered this decision, and should not be further annoyed by the irresponsible talk of politicians of the Fullerton stripe.

The News Tribune, whose stock-in-trade is abuse and not argument, is now engaged in the congenial occupation of applying offensive epithets to Mr. Towne, and others who entertain similar views. If this is the style of campaign which the gold monometallists intend to carry on here, they will discover that their results will be disastrous to their side.

Sam Fullerton, who has been traveling up and down the state in the interests of Governor Clough instead of attending to the enforcement of the game and fish laws, returned to St. Paul on Saturday and made a report to the machine, after which he hunted up a reporter and had himself interviewed in denunciation of Mr. Towne. Sam is a great financier himself.

By the most brazen methods of corruption and by all the disreputable tricks with which it is familiar, the Merriam-Clough machine carried Ramsay county against Gen. Clapp. This result undoubtedly ensures the nomination of Clough for governor. He may be nominated, but he will be defeated at the polls.

So Monroe Nichols is now an enthusiastic admirer of Mr. McKinley, according to a Cleveland dispatch? This is a really notable conversion, because it is not long since he could not find language sufficiently picturesque in which to express reasons why McKinley is not fit for the presidency.

Already the efforts of The Herald to place Mr. Hartley's candidacy in a favorable light before the gold Republicans are bearing fruit. The Minneapolis Tribune says that: "Hartley would make a very strong candidate, and we should think he would just about fill the bill."

The Minneapolis Tribune says: "Free silver is virtually protection." And yet the Tribune, which strongly advocates the doctrine of protection, denounces the silver movement. This is hardly consistent, to say the least.

Sheriff Butchart is not afraid to express his honest convictions, and his decision not to take the Republican nomination, because he agrees with Mr. Towne and will support him, will be generally approved.

A correspondent wrote to the News Tribune asking a question in finance, and it replies: "Ask Bill Butchart." Is the morning paper unable to answer the question itself? It certainly looks that way.

Speaking of Mr. Towne's independent candidacy, the McIntosh Times says: "He will win, and thousands of patriotic Republicans will follow his lead to victory."

There are ninety-three newspapers in Minnesota that are advocating the restoration of silver as standard money. And there will be more on the same side before the ides of November.

The real estate valuation of Ramsey county has been reduced $30,000,000. This represents a depreciation of land values under the single gold standard system.

The exodus from the Republican party into the ranks of the bimetallists continues.

The silver tide sweeps onward with irresistible force.

PLENTY OF FUN AHEAD.

Anoka Herald (Rep.): There will be more fun in the Sixth district this fall than in all the rest of the state. It will take a mighty lot of work to overcome the free silver sentiment and Towne's great popularity.

TWO TO ONE AGAINST.

McIntosh Times: Minnesota's delegation to the national Republican convention was a unit for a straight gold plank but the Republican voters of the state are two to one against it.

NO MIDDLE GROUND.

Madison, Minn., Independent-Press: There is no mistaking the meaning of the money plank of the Republican party as laid down by the convention at St. Louis last week. The Republican party proposes to continue the present gold standard until England says we may do differently. This calls for prompt action on the part of the people of the United States. There is but one course left and that is to repudiate the Republican party at once. There is no middle ground as no true and patriotic citizen can for a moment tolerate England's interference with our affairs. It is the proper place to apply the old, old declaration of President Monroe, i. e., that we propose to conduct our affairs to suit ourselves.

"Wake up, Jacob, day is breaking!" so said DeWitt's Little Early Risers to the man who had taken them to arouse his sluggish liver. S. F. Boyce.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

MINNESOTA IS DOUBTFUL.

So Admits a Republican Paper, Which is Alarmed.

Minneapolis Journal (Rep.): The convention which meets in St. Paul next Wednesday will be one of the most important held in the history of the Republican party in this state. Some of our more enthusiastic Republicans in the national convention at St. Louis have been talking about forty, or fifty, or sixty thousand Republican majority in Minnesota this year. That is foolish. While under favorable conditions there is no reason to be discouraged at the outcome, we might as well recognize the fact in Minnesota this year that we are going to have a fight here, and probably the most desperate we have ever waged—one compared with which the campaign of 1894 will be considered as mere child's play.

Indications now point to the consolidation of all the opposition against us—Democrats, Populists, free silver Republicans, and everything favorable to silver bunched together against the Republican party fighting for sound money principles.

The plan appears to be to select as the candidate for governor and the leader of the opposition in this state one of the best vote-getters in Minnesota—Hon. John Lind, of New Ulm. He does not need any introduction to the people of Minnesota. There will be nothing upon which to contest his election except upon the question of the economic principles which he represents. His personal fitness for the office of governor and his qualifications by reason of his experience in public affairs will not be questioned. The Republicans of Minnesota need not be told that he would make a most formidable antagonist.

To force upon the Republicans of this state such a candidate for governor as D. M. Clough will be to handicap every other candidate in this state. He is not the choice of the Republicans of Minnesota, but such success as he has achieved in the county conventions so far is the result of machine methods, the liberal use of money and the prostitution of the state patronage to a degree never before witnessed in this commonwealth.

• • •

To force his nomination upon the people of this state will be extremely dangerous. The Journal is not advocating the nomination of any individual, but is pleading with the Republicans of the state to avoid the terrible mistake of selecting for their leader a man who is vulnerable in every point, who has no qualifications that command respect, and whose success, if it shall be achieved, must depend upon the same methods by which he hopes to secure his nomination. Such methods may avail in primaries, but they will not operate at general elections. Machines may make nominations, but they cannot secure elections.

The history of our own state during the past ten years should be a warning at this time. Since 1885 only two governors have been chosen by a majority vote, the executives being elected by a plurality. Governor McGill had a plurality of 2000 in 1886, the majority of the two candidates against him combined was 6433; that, too, when the opposition consisted of simply the Democratic and Prohibition parties.

In 1888 the opposition was still confined to the Prohibitionists and Democrats, and Merriam had a majority over both, but two years later his vote fell from 134,355 in 1888 to 88,311. The candidates against him were Judge Wilson, the Democratic candidate, and S. M. Owen, the Populist candidate, and together they received 56,246 more votes than Merriam. He won by the narrow plurality of 2267.

In 1892, the vote of Lawler (Dem.) and Donnelly (Pop.) combined was 25,242 greater than that of Nelson (Rep.), although Nelson's plurality was 14,521. In the presidential election that year the vote for Cleveland (Dem.) and Weaver (Pop.) was 120,232, while Harrison (Rep.) had 122,823, giving a majority for the combined opposition of Democrats and Populists over Harrison of 7410. In 1894 peculiar conditions prevailed. * * * The combined Democratic and Populist vote was 11,000 greater than in 1892, and the majority of Nelson over both Becker and Owen was only 9483. No doubt thousands of Democrats can be depended upon again, in the coming contest, to vote the Republican rather than the silver ticket, but the indications all point to a combination of Populist and Democratic forces, and it is an open question whether the Republicans can gain more Democrats than they will lose of silver Republicans. The combination against the Republicans promises to be stronger this year than ever.

Now, these are not cheerful or pleasant facts to contemplate, but they are honest. They must be faced, and they should give pause to the reckless indifference to the popular protest against the machine in this state. We are treading on dangerous ground, and no one should feel it more keenly than those who expect to ask the suffrages of the people of this state in this campaign for state, national or county offices. The nomination of a man so notoriously unfitted, whose nomination will have been secured by methods so conspicuously dishonest, unfair and indefensible, will be a handicap upon every candidate on his own ticket and every other ticket in the state of Minnesota, local and general.

LAKE COUNTY ANTI-CLOUGH.

Two Harbors Iron News: Lake county's delegation to the state convention is five to two for Clapp. The majority of the Republicans in Lake county are anti-Clough and recognize in Gen. Clapp the choice of the field. It may be disappointing to St. Louis county to fail in their agreement to deliver this county intact to either Clough or Lee, but it was a contract in which Lake was not consulted.

WOULD WIN EASILY.

McIntosh Times: With John Lind, or any other clean free silver candidate for governor, Minnesota will give a rousing majority for silver.

TOWNE WILL BE ELECTED.

Madison, Minn., Independent-Press: Mr. Towne has passed from a local issue to a state issue. The Sixth district cannot afford to drop a man like Towne. How would it look for Duluth to set aside a man whose only fault, measured by the standard of measurement laid down by his opponents, is that he has convictions of his own and that those convictions are right. Mr. Towne knows what is needed and has the manhood and the honor to fight for it. Towne will succeed Towne, and "don't you forget it!"

A LIVELY FIGHT TO START.

Martin County Sentinel: Charles A. Towne, Senator Morgan, John Lind, Frank Nye, John Day Smith and Judge Vanderburg are a few of the great Republican leaders in this state who will oppose the new creed of the Republican party. With that class of men on the stump, the Republican party may as well make up its mind that it has a fight upon its hands.

WAS WORRIED TO DEATH.

San Francisco, June 29.—Miss Lansing Rowan, the actress, does not credit the statement that her father, the wealthy banker at Batavia, N. Y., who committed suicide yesterday, ended his life on account of a published report that she had challenged Champion Corbett to a boxing match. "If my father committed suicide," she said, "it was probably due to sickness and financial worry. He has been ill and failing for some time and has been losing heavily in Wall street. I knew of this and the news of his death did not greatly surprise me."

BURSTED ALASKA BOOM.

Port Townsend, Wash., June 29.—The schooner Norma from Kodiakata arrived last night with thirty-five stranded miners aboard, who pronounced Cook's Inlet mining boom a fizzle. Over 3500 miners are at the inlet stranded, unable to obtain employment, and supplies are going rapidly.

BASEBALL TROUBLES.

St. Joseph, Mo., June 29.—President Hickey, of the Western Baseball association, has gone to Dubuque, where a meeting of the directors is to be held today. Quincy is having trouble again, and will be dropped from the association in all probability. In case this is done, it is said St. Joseph will also be abandoned and a six-club league formed, consisting of Dubuque, Rockford, Burlington, Peoria, Cedar Rapids and Des Moines.

BUTCHART

Sheriff of St. Louis County Will Support Mr. Towne For Re-Election.

Butchart Declines to Be a Candidate on the Republican Ticket.

Will Run Independent---Republican County Convention For July 25.

A political sensation has been caused by the announcement by W. W. Butchart, sheriff of St. Louis county, that he does not intend to go before the county convention for a renomination on the Republican ticket. The first intimation that the sheriff gave of his intention of sticking to Congressman Towne was Saturday afternoon, when Chairman Getty, of the county Republican committee, came into the sheriff's office to discuss the time for calling the county convention.

"I think we will call the convention to meet about July 25," said Mr. Getty.

"I don't care if you don't; call it until next summer," replied the sheriff. "It does not concern me." And when he explained why he did not care, Mr. Getty went away with his eyes bulging out.

The announcement spread like wildfire, and it was all over town before the sheriff returned from a trip to his farm. When he went down town in the evening, he was immediately pounced upon to deny the stories which were afloat concerning his defection from the crumbling structure of the St. Louis county branch of the G. O. P. He only reiterated his intentions in unmistakable terms. He announced his sympathies were with Charles A. Towne in his gallant fight; that to accept the Republican nomination would mean that he had to fight for a gold nominee for congress against Mr. Towne, and this he could not do. While he felt that he could get the Republican nomination without any difficulty, the question which presented itself was, did he want it, and he decided that he did not, under the circumstances. Mr. Butchart is for Towne first, last and all the time, and he felt that he could not consistently accept a Republican nomination.

In a published but anonymous interview, a Republican candidate said that he thought the move lacked horse sense, because the silver sentiment might change before election and leave the sheriff without a place to stand. Bearing upon this the sheriff said to The Herald:

"If there is anything I do not like, it is to see a man hold back in trying times like these, afraid to commit himself until he sees which way the band wagon rides in the band wagon. This is no time for weakness of that kind. I want people to know where I stand, and therefore I make the announcement at this time. As far as that statement is concerned, however, there is little danger of the silver sentiment subsiding."

Saturday afternoon Sheriff Butchart informed a Herald reporter of his intentions, and in doing so he said: "No, sir, I am not going to go into the Republican convention. I am fully in sympathy with Charles A. Towne. I believe that he is a better Republican than the men who have prostituted the party to serve the ends of a grasping minority. I do not relinquish hopes of the future of the party. I hope yet to see it regain that respect and confidence it has forfeited. But under the present platform it is utterly impossible for me to run for office upon a Republican ticket. To do so would mean to support a gold nominee for congress against Mr. Towne, and this I cannot do.

"Charles A. Towne will be the next congressman from this district, and he will go in by nearly 15,000 plurality. He will carry St. Louis county by the biggest majority ever given any candidate. Not only that, but John Lind, if he runs for governor upon a silver ticket, will sweep not only this county but the state."

Mr. Butchart has made an exemplary officer during his first term. All the business that came into his hands has been performed to the entire satisfaction of his constituents, and not one word of disapproval has been heard of any official act of his. His personal popularity among the voters of the district is great, and when he gave up the Republican nomination he did not give up something he did not have, for his chances for that empty honor were as good as any candidate could wish. He will make a good figure at the head of the county silver ticket, and not only that, but he will, by virtue of his personal popularity and his fighting qualities, greatly aid Congressman Towne in his campaign.

THE COUNTY CONVENTION.

Will Be Called to Meet the Last of July.

The call for the county convention to nominate county officers and elect delegates to the legislative and judicial conventions will be issued the latter part of this week or the first of next. Chairman Getty of the county committee will call a meeting immediately after his return from the state convention at St. Paul, and the members will probably get together about Saturday. It is probable that the county convention will be called for July 29 or thereabouts, the primaries to be held two days previous. There was talk of having the convention on the 25th, but this can hardly be done, there being scarcely time for the publication of the call.

The "mix up" which now exists in St. Louis county politics quite surpasses anything that has been known for many campaigns. The withdrawal of Sheriff Butchart from the race for the Republican nomination has left the balance of the court house crowd at sea. For a time they were speechless, but they finally found strength enough to say that they will stand by the party. Sheriff Butchart was the strongest man in the so-called "ring," except possibly Auditor Halden, who controls about as much strength as the sheriff. Beyond Mr. Halden, however, there is a decided weakness. The machine crowd—that is, the element which seems to be controlling St. Louis county politics now—admits this. Both County Attorney Arbury and Register of Deeds Borgstrom are admitted to be weak candidates.

In the convention there will be a lively scramble. With Sheriff Butchart out of the way the field is open to E. L. Fisher and W. C. Sargent. The chances are said to be in favor of the former, but Mr. Sargent is a hustler and is an enemy not to be despised. For the place of auditor J. E. Cooley is trying hard to wrest the plum from Mr. Halden. For register of deeds and treasurer there will be several in the field. Judge Ayer is also to have some pretty strong opposition for judge of probate.

The legislative contest, too, will be a red-hot one. That is the part of the fight which will receive the particular attention of the mining corporations.

The Six Day Race.

The female bicycle race at the ball park is now down to the last day, and tonight the final two hours will be run. As there will be a very strong rivalry for first place between the three leaders, this is supposed to be the most interesting day of the six. There were large crowds at the park Saturday and Sunday evenings and yesterday afternoon, in spite of the rain, there was a good crowd. Miss Peterson won the three-mile race in 8½ minutes. The total score in the six-days' race up to last night was as follows:

	Miles.	Laps.
Allen	192	13
Baldwin	192	13
Christopher	192	13
Peterson	192	10
Hokinson	188	1
Mack	187	11

An Unfaithful Wife.

Humane Officer Haskins has been looking unsuccessfully for a Mrs. Hermann, who, according to a letter from her husband, Joseph Hermann, of Billings, Mont., had come to this city with the 7-year-old son of the couple. Mr. Hermann wrote that he though his recreant wife had joined the Gonzalez Opera company, now playing an engagement here. The opera people, however, knew nothing of her. Mr. Hermann did not care, he said, about having his wife return, but he wanted the boy.

The Road Races.

The postponed bicycle races of the Marshall-Wells Hardware company were to take place at 3:30 this afternoon, and there are several more entries since Saturday, including W. B. Grubb, S. S. Clark and Frank Huse. Baldwin, Allen and Christopher, the leaders in the female bicycle race, were to run an exhibition race, for which a special prize has been offered.

A Collector Arrested.

John Knaff, who has been employed as a collector by Frank Gottwald, a butcher doing business at West Duluth, was arrested this morning by Officer Jensen, on the charge of embezzling $19 that he had collected for Gottwald. The accused pleaded not guilty before Judge Edson. His trial was set for July 1, bail being fixed at $25.

Two Small Fires.

There were two small blazes yesterday which called out the fire department, but amounted to very little. During the morning the call was to an old building near the canal containing hay belonging to Scott & Holston. In the evening at 10:45 o'clock an overturned lamp caused a small fire and a good deal of excitement in a store at Michigan street and Seventeenth avenue west.

Some Coal Experiments.

At the meeting of the stationary engineers on Saturday evening T. W. Hugo gave descriptions of tests he is making to determine the comparative heating properties of certain kinds of coal. He will give the result of these later. Mr. Hugo will lecture before the St. Paul association of stationary engineers tomorrow evening.

BICYCLE MEET AND LAWN FETE.

The bicycle meet given by the Unitarian ladies two weeks ago was such a delightful success that they have decided to give another one tomorrow evening, June 30, at the residence of Mr. Hawksworth, the place formerly known as the Huntress house on London road at Sargent avenue. Mr. Hawksworth's beautiful home, the spacious grounds, trees, the elegant house with its immense verandahs, the exquisite bit of beach, and the lake, all make it an ideal place for a summer entertainment. A dainty luncheon will be served and the Italian orchestra will furnish music. Everybody, young and old, cordially invited. Those going by car get off at Sargent avenue.

DROWNED IN THE RIVER.

Capsizing of a Sail Boat Caused a Fatality.

Roy Phelps, employed by the Duluth Telephone company, and residing at 421 West Superior street, was drowned in the St. Louis river near Zenith Park last evening by the sinking of a sailboat. The four companions of Phelps escaped.

It was 8:30 o'clock when the affair occurred. The party had put off from the island on their return to West Duluth, when a gust of wind for which they were unprepared heeled the boat over so that it filled with water.

As the water rushed in over the side the ballast shifted and the boat plunged to the bottom, all going down with it. The steam yacht Rambler and a sailboat, which were in the vicinity, picked up all the party but Phelps. The names of the rescued are A. Ferguson, Ed Poutier, J. Couley and William Galligan. The search for the body was begun at 6 o'clock this morning, two parties, a detail of West Duluth police and H. McLaughlin and B. J. Sheehy, being engaged in the work. The searchers were unsuccessful up to noon, at which hour a crew from the life-saving station started for the scene.

Phelps was 25 years old and unmarried. He had held the position of inspector of transmitters for the telephone company for about a year.

SILVER CONVENTION.

To Elect Delegates to National Bimetallic Convention.

There will be a mass convention of the qualified voters of the state of Minnesota, who believe in the principles of American silver organization as set forth in the appeal to the people of the United States made by the leaders of the free coinage movement at their meeting held in Washington, D. C., Jan. 22, 1896.

Said convention will be held at Harmonia hall, in the city of Minneapolis, county of Hennepin, on Thursday, the 16th day of July, A. D. 1896, at the hour of 11 o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of selecting thirty delegates to represent this state at the national organization of said American Silver organization, to meet at St. Louis, Mo., on the 22nd day of July, 1896, to nominate candidates for president and vice president of the United States.

Distinguished speakers and advocates of bimetallism will be present and address the convention, and it is desired that a large attendance and a full expression of the free coinage sentiment of this state shall be secured at that time.

Address for particulars.

JAMES W. GRIFFIN,
Member of National Committee for State of Minnesota.

Minneapolis, June 24.

Machinery is Repaired.

The repairs to the Brown hoisting apparatus on the Pennsylvania and Ohio Fuel company's dock have been finished and the company will be able to hadle coal again tomorrow. The accident to the machinery occurred on May 13 and the time spent in repairing has been much longer than was anticipated.

Struck By Lightning.

James B. Collins, of Superior, was struck by lightning on Saturday afternoon. He will live, but he will be laid up for some time. The bolt burned off a portion of his hair and badly wounded his head. He was taken to his home in an unconscious condition, but was quickly restored to his senses by a physician. A portion of his body seems to be paralyzed.

Taken to St. Paul.

Detective Donovan, rounded up Fred Russell, the man for whom the police have been looking for several days at the instance of the St. Paul authorities. Russell was taken to St. Paul yesterday afternoon by Detective Gruber of that city, who had been here since Saturday morning assisting in the search. The prisoner is wanted in St. Paul on the charge of stealing an overcoat from Pomeroy clothing house. Detective Gruber says that Russell is an old offender.

Thought Him a Thief.

Detective Donovan yesterday morning picked up a man on Lake avenue who was trying to dispose of a fine Melton, silk-lined overcoat to the bailey on that thoroughfare. The prisoner gave his name as James Cunningham and at first said he was boarding at the Windsor, subsequently saying he was from West Superior and then from Ashland. From the fact that in a pocket of the garment was found a copy of the Superior Sunday Leader the police concluded that it was stolen across the bay. Cunningham was locked up and the West Superior police were notified.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Saturday was "cruel and inhuman treatment" day in Judge McConnell's divorce court at Fargo. He returned from Hillsboro and three ladies were in his court and all had the above plea. The first was Mrs. Jacobs, who secured a divorce from Moses Jacobs. She alleges that Moses had not treated her in a loving manner. The defendant is a jeweler in New York city. In the case of Truesdell vs. Truesdell, of Syracuse, N. Y., the plaintiff was the wife and told her tale of woe in so eloquent a manner that the judge soon signed the papers. Mrs. Vaudly, of Minneapolis, wanted a decree on the same grounds, but her evidence was incomplete and the decree is held up pending further evidence. George Renton, son of the business manager of the illustrated publication Truth, did not have sufficient evidence and his case is tied up pending more affidavits. George is one of the kid members of the divorce colony, being only 21. He was married at 16.

Saturday night Sheriff O'Connor took possession of the petrified man and the latter is an inmate of the jail at Grand Forks. He was seized on a writ of replevin issued in favor of Richard Ohmer, who had the farm on which it was found leased. He gave bonds in the sum of $50,000. The case will come up for a hearing next week. A stock company had just been formed to exhibit the find.

Thomas Mitchell, a popular resident of Towner has disappeared. A warrant has been issued for his arrest on the charge of illicit parentage, the complaining witness being a widow named Mrs. Strand, the mother of five children. The prominence of all concerned has resulted in the affair causing a decided sensation. The officers expect to locate Mitchell within a few days. He is a music and school teacher.

Joseph Hubbard, who committed suicide in Minneapolis, was a pioneer resident of Grand Forks county. He lost a valuable farm near Reynolds by operating on the wheat market and conducted a machinery business at that place for several years. He was quite popular throughout the county and moved to Minneapolis two years ago.

Judge Templeton has sentenced Henry Sanders to three years in the penitentiary for attempted criminal assault. He was working for a farmer near Lakota and during his absence attempted to assault his wife, choking her in a frightful manner. He pleaded guilty.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

At Aberdeen it is definitely announced that Miss Kate Taubman will be given the nomination of state superintendent of public instruction on the Populist ticket. Miss Taubman is one of the leading educators in the state, having been county superintendent of Aurora county schools and secretary of the State Educational association, and has had special advantages along leading educational lines. She has been for two years principal of the Aberdeen high school. It is reported that Henry Powers, of this county, has escaped from the Yankton insane asylum. Conductor J. C. Shirk, one of the old-time conductors on the Northwestern line, was married at Hawarden Thursday to Mrs. Morgan, of that city. The attendance of teachers at the Summer normal school is steadily progressing. The lectures by Dr. McMurry, of Bloomington, Ill., are a special feature. An exception will be given the teachers by the citizens of this city at the grain palace, Thursday evening, July 1.

James Seagar and Samuel Levy, who are riding horseback from Milwaukee to San Francisco on a wager, reached Pierre Saturday and rested until today. They have been delayed by rains and are slightly behind the schedule.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

The grand lodge of Elks will meet in Cincinnati July 7. Extensive arrangements for the comfort and reception of visiting Elks have been made.

Six persons were drowned at Shawano Lake, Wis., by the capsizing of a sail boat in a sudden squall. Two men were saved, also a little child. Bodies of none of the victims have been recovered as yet.

The whist congress at Manhattan Beach, N. Y., is closed and the "short suit" adherents have been routed by the "long suit" people.

George Brovitsch, prince of Samos, has been appointed governor of Crete in succession of the Musulman governor Pasha. The island of Samos is autonomous, although it pays a tribute to the Turkish government and Prince George Brovitsch is a Christian.

Preparations for the ovation to be given Senator Teller upon his return to Denver next Wednesday night are about completed and it is claimed it will be the greatest demonstration ever seen in the city. The enthusiasm for the silver leader is felt in all parts of the state and excursion trains will bring thousands from towns within 200 miles in all directions.

The preliminary federal election occurred yesterday all over the republic of Mexico and 16,000 electors were chosen in various electoral districts. The electors will meet in various districts next Sunday and vote for the president, magistrates and members of the congress. There is no doubt of the triumphant election of Gen. Diaz, whose candidacy has been welcomed in all parts of the republic.

At Paris Emile Arton, implicated with Dr. Herz and the late Baron von Reinach in the frauds on the Panama Canal company, has been sentenced to six years at hard labor. His sentence closes another chapter in the long story of the Panama scandals.

Patrick McKeon, who was nominated at the Democratic state convention last Wednesday for state feed and dairy commissioner, died at his home in Cincinnati Saturday night of cholera morbus.

FRANCES WILLARD.

Says the Next Meeting is in Montreal.

London, June 29.—Miss Frances E. Willard states that the World's Women's Christian Temperance union, of which she is president, will meet in Montreal, Canada, either next spring or next autumn. The following have been appointed fraternal delegates to the convention from Great Britain: Lady Henry Somerset, Mrs. Hannah Withall Smith, Miss Agnes Weston, Mrs. W. Poole, Mrs. Mary Phillips and Mrs. Hughes.

"Gwennis Vaughns" is the nomdeplume of Mrs. Hughes, and she is the leading journalist in Wales. Miss Agnes Weston is known the world over as the sailors' friend. Last year she lodged 150,000 sailors in homes that she has built at Portsmouth. No woman is better known and loved throughout the British empire than Miss Weston. Miss Agnes Stack is the secretary of the World's W. C. T. U., and is soon to lecture and preach in the United States. Mrs. Hannah Smith's books have been translated into fifteen languages. She is the author of "The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life," and is secretary of the British Woman's Temperance association. Miss Mary Phillips is a wealthy Quaker lady of London and a leader in the counsels of the Society of Friends.

A WORD OR TWO

To those suffering from catarrh or the thousands subject to severe attacks of cold in the head will not be amiss if a sure remedy can be offered. Ely's Cream Balm has become a favorite in all sections of the United States because of its effectiveness. Your cold in the head will be quickly relieved by it, and the severest attack of catarrh will yield to and be perfectly cured by a thorough treatment. Catarrh is not a blood disease, but an inflammation of the passages of the nose and throat, due to climatic changes.

CARLTON COUNTY MATTERS.

The Latest Happenings in Our Neighboring County.

Carlton, Minn., June 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Crops present a very encouraging appearance and are daily growing better. There never has been better growing weather.

Malcolm Anderson, of Hibbing, was married at Barnum on June 17 to Miss Marie Anderson, of that place.

G. F. Bergstadi, of the New York Finland Immigration company, was at Carlton this week, making arrangements with L. R. Martin, local land agent of the St. Paul & Duluth railroad, for the location of a colony of Finland settlers in Carlton and St. Louis counties.

Professor Parish, of Moose Lake, gave a musical and literary concert at the Odd Fellows' hall in Carlton on Saturday night. The entertainment was a great treat to the public. Mr. Parish's clear baritone voice cannot be excelled.

The Northern Pacific has several crews hauling gravel from their Sawyer pit to points on the road.

The ball given at the court house in Carlton on Thursday evening was a brilliant social affair. Music was furnished by the Duluth Harpers' orchestra and refreshments by the ladies of Carlton. About twenty couples from Cloquet and Thomson attended.

T. H. Martin, county auditor, was in St. Paul this week.

Mrs. William Scott and Mrs. Critchett, of Chicago, are visiting with their father, C. Bradley, judge of probate.

Emil Mangulson, of Carlton, returned from the Valparaiso, Ind., business college this week.

The money problem seems to have entirely diverted the attention of the politicians from the tariff question so far in this county. The great issue this year will be the money question.

Ed A. Page returned from the Republican convention at St. Louis in almost as good condition as when he left, and with him he brought "a big rooster on top of his hat." Mr. Page does not care for the St. Louis climate, and is better satisfied than ever with Minnesota.

The people of Carlton county are now enjoying the beauties of the many lakes with which the county is dotted, particularly Chub lake, which is situated about two and a half miles south of Carlton. No prettier little body of water adorns the state of Minnesota.

THE JURY DISAGREED.

Trial of Charles Trengrove at Tower on Saturday.

Tower, Minn., June 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—On Saturday the trial of Charles Trengrove, the mail carrier to Rainy Lake, took place. He was charged with working horses while in an unfit condition, the humane officer having entered the complaint. After being out two hours, the jury reported a disagreement and were discharged. County Attorney Arbury conducted the prosecution, and W. G. Bonham appeared for the defence. The case will probably be dismissed from this court and brought up again in Duluth, owing to the difficulty in securing unprejudiced jurors.

A shooting turnament will be given on July 4 at 11 o'clock a. m. by the Vermilion Gun club, open to St. Louis county. Four events have been arranged as follows: First event, ten singles, known angles; second event, ten singles, unknown angles; third event, fifteen singles, known angles; fourth event, fifteen singles, unknown angles. Four moneys in each event will be equitably distributed. Besides these moneys fifteen merchandise prizes will be given according to averages, to those entering all four events. Entrance fee, 50 cents.

Professor W. N. Shephard, principal of the Soudan schools the past year, left on Saturday for New York city to join his parents, and from there will sail for England, where they will spend the summer.

The Tower schools closed Friday with a picnic at the Swedish picnic grounds. In the evening a dance was given for the older pupils and their friends by Professor Tormey at the Vermilion hotel. A very pleasant time at both events is reported.

A few changes in teachers in the Tower and Soudan schools have been made by the board of District No. 9. For the principalship of the Soudan schools Professor L. H. Lee, of Elkton, S. D., a married man, has been engaged. His assistant will be M. Elizabeth Murphy, of Winona. The assistant principal of the Tower schools will be Evelyn E. Pribble, of Anoka, Minn., taking Miss Frazier's place, who, it is said, will soon enter the state of matrimony with one of Tower's foremost business men.

The game of baseball between Tower and Virginia, played on the latter's grounds yesterday, was won by Tower on a score of 9 to 1. The Tower boys were in splendid condition, Dooley pitching an exemplary game, letting only one man take his base on balls and striking out seven men in the first five minutes. The club has been strengthened by three members of a Duluth club which recently disbanded.

Seven Months With Fever.

Wonderful Recovery of Health.

Mr. Baird's rapid and marvelous recovery from a mere skeleton to his normal weight, 270 pounds, was surely the fullest test of the grandest strength-giving and building-up medicine ever produced, namely

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine.

J. H. BAIRD.

"Gentlemen—I wish to express to you my gratitude for the great good that Dr. Miles' Nervine has done for me. I was taken sick with typhoid fever and I laid in bed for seven months. After getting over the fever I was thin, nervous and tired, and did not regain my lost strength. I tried several proprietary medicines, and finally, after having been reduced in weight to 130 pounds, I began trying your Nervine, and at once began to improve. Was finally entirely cured, and today I can say I never felt better in all my life, and weigh 270 pounds. This is my normal weight, as I measure 5 feet 5½ inches in height."

South Bend, Ind. J. H. BAIRD.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1, 6 bottles for $5, or it will be sent, prepaid, on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

NOTICE OF EXPIRATION OF REDEMPTION PERIOD.

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis —ss.

To R. A. Taussig:

Take notice that the following described piece or parcel of land, situated in the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, to-wit: Lot seven (7), of block one (1), Central Avenue Division of West Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof, was on the first day of May, A. D. 1882, sold in for the state for the sum of thirty-four dollars and fifty-one cents, pursuant to a real estate tax judgment entered in the district court in the said county of St. Louis on the twenty-first day of aMrch, A. D. 1883, in proceedings to enforce payment of taxes delinquent upon real estate, for the year 1881, for the said county of St. Louis, and was on the seventeenth day of February, A. D. 1894 assigned by the state of Minnesota for one hundred eight dollars and ten cents. That the amount required to redeem such lands from such assignment exclusive of the costs to accrue upon this notice is the said sum of one hundred eight dollars and ten cents with interest thereon at the rate of one per cent per month from said seventeenth day of February, 1894, to the time of such redemption, and delinquent taxes, penalties and costs accruing subsequent to said assignment with interest thereon to the time of such redemption and the time within which said land can be redeemed from said assignment will expire sixty days after service of this notice and proof thereof has been filed in manner prescribed by Section 37 chapter 6, General Laws of Minnesota for the year 1877 and amendments thereto.

Dated Duluth, this 18th day of June, A. D. 1896.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE ON FILING PETITION TO MORTGAGE LAND.—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis —ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, April 25th, 1896.

In the matter of the estate of John F. McLaren, deceased:

On reading and filing the petition of John J. Hibbard, administrator, with the will annexed of said estate, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of, and the taxes, assessments and other charges which are an existing lien upon his estate, and a description of the tracts of land of said deceased which it is proposed to mortgage, and praying that license be to him granted to mortgage the tracts of land so described.

And it appearing by said petition that the personal estate of said John F. McLaren, deceased, is insufficient to pay any taxes, assessments or other charges which are an existing lien upon his estate.

It is therefore ordered that all persons interested in said estate appear before this court on Monday, the sixth day of July, A. D. 1896, at ten o'clock a. m. at the probate office, in Duluth, in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said administrator to mortgage the said real estate of said deceased for the purpose of obtaining funds for the payment of such charges, taxes, assessments and liens.

And it is further ordered that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said county.

Dated at Duluth, the 28th day of April, A. D. 1896.

By the Court,

—OF—

Duluth & Southwestern Railway Company.

The persons whose names are hereunto subscribed hereby associate themselves together to become a body corporate under the laws of the state of Minnesota for the purpose hereinafter stated, and to that end hereby sign, adopt and publish the following articles of incorporation:

Article first. The corporate name of this corporation shall be "Duluth & Southwestern Railway Company."

Article second. The general nature of its business shall be the location, construction, purchase, lease, equipment, maintenance and operation of a line of railway of standard guage, with one or more tracks or lines of road, from a point on the southern boundary line of the state of Minnesota, to be hereafter selected by the board of directors, thence in a general northerly direction through the state of Minnesota, to the city of Red Wing, in said state, and thence in a general northerly direction through the states of Minnesota and Wisconsin, to and into the city of Duluth, in said state of Minnesota, together with such branch line or lines as may hereafter be deemed desirable by the directors of the corporation, and such spurs, switches, sidetracks, turnouts and lateral lines, as they may deem necessary, and the leasing, construction, maintenance and operation, acquirement, purchase and ownership of such equipment, right-of-way, machine shops, foundries, furnaces, car shops, warehouses, storehouses, elevators, depots, structures, piers, docks, slips, wharves, bridges and other property, as may be necessary for the proper management, operation or equipment of the corporation; also to lease, purchase, acquire and hold all such lands as may be necessary for the proper construction and operation of its lines of railway, to construct, maintain, operate and own one or more lines of telegraph in connection with its said lines, to lease, purchase, or otherwise acquire and adopt as its own the line or lines of any other railway or telegraph company constructed or partially constructed, and to enter into running connections with any such company in such manner as may be deemed necessary and expedient by said directors.

Article third. The principal place of business of said corporation shall be at the city of Duluth, Minnesota, but it may maintain such offices for the transaction of its business, both within and without the said state, as the conveniences or necessities of its business may require.

Article fourth. The time of commencement of this corporation shall be July 2, 1896, and it shall continue for the period of fifty years.

Article fifth. The amount of capital stock of this corporation shall be three hundred thousand dollars, divided into three thousand ($300) shares of one hundred dollars ($100) each, to be paid in from time to time in such manner and in such installments as the board of directors may determine.

Article sixth. The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which this corporation shall at any time be subject shall be the sum of ten million dollars ($10,000,000.)

Article seventh. The names and places of residence of the persons forming this association for incorporation are as follows: Charles H. Graves, George W. Buck, James T. Hale, Percy S. Anneke and W. Buchanan, of the city of Duluth, Minnesota, and Lucius F. Hubbard, of the city of Red Wing, Minnesota.

Article eighth. The names of the first board of directors of this corporation are as follows: Charles H. Graves, George W. Buck, James T. Hale, Percy S. Anneke and W. Buchanan, of Duluth, Minnesota, and Lucius F. Hubbard, of Red Wing, Minnesota.

The government of the corporation and the management of its affairs shall be vested in a board of directors consisting of six persons, and in such officers and agents as such board may select. All of such directors and officers shall be elected annually on the second Tuesday in June in each year. The first meeting of this corporation shall be held at Duluth, Minnesota, on July 2, 1896, at which time directors and officers shall be chosen to serve until the said second Tuesday in June, 1897. If the organization of the corporation be not completed by said July 2, 1896, said meeting may be adjourned by any of the persons herein named as the first board of directors to such other time as may be most convenient for a majority of such board.

Article ninth. The number of shares of the capital stock of the corporation shall be three thousand (3000), and the par value of each share shall be one hundred dollars ($100.)

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and affixed our seals, this 19th day of June, 1896.

CHARLES H. GRAVES, (Seal.)
GEORGE W. BUCK, (Seal.)

Big Catch of Trout.

Fred Ritchart, formerly of Duluth, but now of Mihong, Wis., has as good a trout stream running through his farm as any in this part of the country. Saturday John Meining, George Lucore and A. E. Chandler went over to the farm of the former Duluthian and this morning came home with 257 of the speckled beauties. Meining and Chandler caught the fish while Lucore busied himself supplying the expert anglers with worms and flies for bait.

Foreign Will Filed.

The foreign will of George E. Benson, of Hudson, N. Y., was filed in probate court this morning, and Charles B. Benson, the principal heir and the executor, asked for letters of administration. John Barton received letters of administration on the estate of Albert Barton, who was recently killed by accident at Virginia.

THE BONDS

Bids for the Issue of $1,106,000 to be Opened Tonight.

Six Large Bond Firms Will Present Bids on the Bonds.

An Important Resolution Which May Be Introduced in the Council.

Bids for the $1,106,000 issue of bonds, authorized by the common council, to raise funds for the completion of the new water plant will be opened this evening. There are in the field six bidders, of whom representatives are now in the city. They are, W. J. Hayes & Son, of Cleveland; Farson, Leach & Co., of Chicago; Lamprecht Bros. & Co., of Cleveland; E. C. Jones & Co., of New York; Spitzer & Co., of Toledo, and Cushman, Fisher & Phelps, of Boston.

The gentlemen representing these houses are not very forward with their opinions on the present state of affairs, but that the filing of the two new suits has introduced some uncertainty as to exactly where all parties "are at" is evidenced by the the earnest consultations that are going on. A number of the agents had no sooner brushed off the dust of travel than they sought the society of those learned in the law, with whom they took counsel. The opinion that they were all present to "bid on wind" was heard expressed, and a general disposition was manifested to find somebody who could and would convey information about "the mess," as they call it.

Among the aldermen the prospect of new delays, and delays to come following each other on leaden feet in endless procession, is inducing a spirit of restiveness as they see the time slip by and the circle revolve bringing around again the season of especial danger.

One member of the council has announced his intention of introducing a resolution looking toward a scheme of connecting the pipe from the Lakewood pumping station with the mains of the Duluth Gas and Water company. It would take money to complete the pumping station and the connection, but he intimated his belief that funds would be forthcoming. Lakewood water, he said, Duluth must have, and that soon.

It might be noted as an interesting fact that for some weeks before the pending suits were filed William Craig regularly hung up his coat every morning in the office of the health department at the city hall and worked all day poring over the books as industriously as if he was on the salary list. The notes of his researches he carefully jotted down in a little red memorandum book. However, Mr. Craig's fad for health statistics, and just at this time, too, may be one of those curious coincidences the apparent significance of which disappears on close examination.

JUDGE ENSIGN'S RULING.

Lakeside London Road Assessment Set Aside.

The Columbia Investment company made an assignment Saturday for the benefit of its creditors.. The assignee named is Frank Crassweller, who is also the assignee's attorney.

Judge Ensign filed findings in proceedings to enforce payment of taxes for 1894 in Morris Park division of Lakeside. Theodore Hollister, the owner, objected to paying assessments laid by the village of Lakeside for the improvement of London road. Judge Ensign decides in favor of the objector, and says that the sum returned by the city comptroller was never passed upon by any board of review and that it is an arbitrary sum fixed by the officers. The action of the comptroller is unauthorized and illegal, and it set aside.

Elizabeth M. Clarke has begun suit against W. G. Peck, R. S. Munger and E. W. Matter to clear title to lots 106, 108 and 110, block 129, Rice's Point division. John M. McClintock is the attorney.

Foresters Order.

Last Saturday evening about fifty members of the American Order United Order of Foresters assembled and organized a high court to be known as High Court Superior, embracing the territory of Northern Michigan, Northern Wisconsin and the northeastern part of Minnesota. The meeting was called to order by W. A. Stolls, of Chicago, the supreme chief ranger of the order. The following officers were elected: James Kelley, high chief ranger; J. P. Burnett, high vice chief ranger; W. A. Willis, high past chief ranger; B. Barnham, high secretary; I. Gilliland, high treasurer; Dr. A. E. Walker, high physician; Rev. D. McKenzie, high chaplain; E. Mooers, high counselor; L. A. Lills, high auditor; J. A. Shields, high auditor; J. A. Wright, high chief ranger; C. E. Birch, high senior archer; E. A. Wakeman, high messenger; J. O. Hancock, high junior archer.

The annual meeting is to be held on the second Tuesday in January of each year. The selection of the place of the next meeting was laid over until the first meeting of the high standing committee. The supreme chief ranger reported the order to be in a very flourishing condition, and at the close of his remarks he presented J. Kelley and B. Barnham with a handsome gold button emblematic of the order for the able services they had rendered. The recipients were agreeably surprised and thanked the supreme chief ranger and their brethren for the high honor conferred on them. The members were afterwards banqueted by ladies of the members of the order.

40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

A YOUTHFUL FORGER.

Herbert Coates Issues Several Bogus Checks.

Herbert Coates, a young man about 20 years of age, is in trouble. He has been employed by the Imperial Mill company for about a year. Saturday he did not show up at the office and this morning he was missing. The absence was explained this morning when two forged checks turned up. Both were made out on Duluth Imperial Mill company checks and were for $50 each. They were made payable to H. Coates, were endorsed "Herbert Coates" and have the signature of B. C. Church, placed there by the use of a rubber stamp. One was cashed by Williamson & Mendenhall and the other by M. S. Burrows & Co.

It is the same old story. The young man has tastes beyond his means and has been gratifying them regardless of the inevitable consequences which follow living beyond ones salary. He will be brought back if he can be found.

The Municipal Court.

In the municipal court this morning, M. O'Brien was sent up on the hill for thirty days for drunkenness. Richard Swims, charged with interferring with an officer, was found not guilty.

Andrew Hill, a gentleman from the country, who arrived in town on Saturday, and who succumbed to the rapid pace and landed in the cooler with a jag on Sunday, was let off at the intercession of a friend, who vouched for his good character. Mr. Hill said he would shake the city dust from his feet and take to the woods without delay.

Barney Brown was let off with a suspended sentence.

All For Silver.

J. W. Bull and Capt. W. H. Smallwood returned this morning from Grand Rapids, where they addressed a rousing silver meeting at the city hall on Saturday evening. Mr. Bull says that, as a conservative estimate, the ballot this fall will be 16 votes for silver to one for gold. When asked what the gold forces in Grand Rapids mustered, Mr. Bull said there is no opposition to silver that will stand up and be counted. He says that the Democratic, Populist and labor vote as well as the Republican will be solid for silver.

The Bicycle Meet.

Owing to the great success of the bicycle meet which was given by the ladies of the Unitarian church at Lester Park two weeks ago, they have been asked to entertain in a similar manner again and have decided to do so. The meet will be held tomorrow evening at the residence of Mr. Hawksworth on London road, in Lakeside, which is known as the Huntress house.

The immense verandah and the beautiful grounds which extend from London road to the beach will be beautifully decorated with Chinese lanterns. An enthusiastic committee have made arrangements for the very best music, and the daintiest of refreshments, and altogether the affair promises to be a much greater success than the last.

SILVER DEMOCRATS.

The Advance Guard is Already in Chicago.

Chicago, June 29.—The advance guard of the bimetallic Democratic national committee arrived in Chicago and opened headquarters at the Sherman house. Ex-Congressman Towles, of Jefferson City, Mo., secretary of the committee, announced that the storm of the silver movement was formally transferred to Chicago. Senator Harris, of Tennessee, chairman of the organization, who may preside at the convention, will reach the city tonight to attend the meeting of the committee tomorrow.

J. W. Tomlinson, the Alabama representative on the committee, is at the Palmer house, with C. S. Thomas, the member from Colorado, and the other members will arrive in the evening. Some of the most prominent silver Democrats in the country are at the head of the bimetallic committee, including Governor Stone, of Missouri; ex-Speaker Crisp, of Georgia; Senator Turple, of Indiana; Allen W. Thurman, of Ohio, and B. F. Shively, Democratic nominee for governor of Indiana.

A LANDING ACCIDENT.

Boston, June 29.—The small pier at Marine Park, used as a landing place for the ferry boats that ply between city points and Governor's Island, was overcrowded by persons waiting for the ferry and wishing to hire row boats, and it collapsed and many people were precipitated into the water, several of them being reported drowned.

CHILIAN ELECTIONS.

Valparaiso, Chili, June 29.—The result of the presidential elections is 148 votes for Frederick Errasuriz and 134 for Vicente Reyes.

NAVAL CONSTRUCTOR DEAD.

Boston, June 29.—Theodore D. Wilson, naval constructor at the Charlestown navy yard, was stricken with apoplexy while on duty today and died a few moments later.

LAND RATING BILL.

British Parliament Sit All Night to Discuss it.

London, June 30.—The house of commons sat throughout the night debating the agricultural land rating bill, intended to lessen the taxation on agricultural land. The debate proceeded quietly until 2 o'clock in the morning. The government kept its forces well in hand and insuring a majority of over 150. After midnight the excitement increased as the different clauses were carried under the closure rule. The Liberal leader, Sir William Vernon Harcourt, denounced the methods which the Conservative, Mr. Balfour, was adopting in order to extricate the government from the mess into which it has fallen through making too many promises, and overweighting itself with important bills, which like the education bill, recently shelved for repairs, it has been unable to carry in spite of its overwhelming majority, a fact for which the leadership of Mr. Balfour has been greatly blamed.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, chancellor of the exchequer, angrily retorted that the opposition was the most factious ever seen, and asserted that its tactics were rapidly reducing parliamentary proceedings to a little more than a farce.

James H. Dalziel, accused Lord Hugh Cecil, Conservative, (fifth son of the Marquis of Salisbury), of deliberate and organized interference with the debate. The speaker was appealed to, but he declined to interfere beyond exhorting the members to be more orderly during debate. A little later Mr. Dalziel characterized Sir Michael Hicks-Beach in his speech as being "impertinent," whereupon there was cries of "withdraw." the speaker suggested that Mr. Dalziel had not intended to be offensive in his remarks, and after some more skirmishing, another clause of the bill was closured.

This brought forth another storm of derisive shouts from the opposition, and C. K. D. Tanner, Irish Nationalist, was heard to shout "gag." For this the doctor was warned from the chair. Mr. Chamberlain, colonial secretary, did not remain through the night, but took his departure after the first division, leaving Mr. Balfour to conduct the struggle on behalf of the ministry with such help as he could get from Mr. Chaplin, president of the local government board, and of other members of the government. Sir William Vernon Harcourt was one of the last to leave the chamber.

The bill was finally reported to the house at about 8 o'clock and the third reading was fixed for Wednesday.

SUNK IN COLLISION.

Para, Brazil, June 30.—The British steamer Santarnse, bound to this port from Lisbon, has been sunk in collision with the four-masted British ship Dundonald, Capt. Gervan, from San Francisco, on March 10, for Hull, England. The Dundonald was damaged and is leaking, but no lives were lost.

HENLEY GOSSIP.

Getting Ready For the Big Races Next Week.

Henley on Thames, June 30.—This was a bad morning for rowing, as a strong wind was blowing off the Bucks shore, but all the crews were out practicing starts. Mr. Cook devoted the morning to coaching the Yale crew in pair oar work. Later the Americans beat Trinity Hall's second crew by three-quarters of a length in a one and one-half mile stretch behind Regatta island and with a 38 stroke.

The doctor who has been in attendance upon Clarke, the Yale coxswain, says the latter will be able to resume his seat in the boat tomorrow. All the other members of the Yale crew are in good health. Longacre has completely recovered. The new English oars which are being used by the Americans still stick and feel heavy, but the men like their grip on the water, and Mr. Cook thinks they will be used for the race. The English coaches already notice the improvement made in Yale's catch. The good feeling among the American and English crews here continues.

The plan for the garden party which the Americans will give at the Marsh Hill house will be completed today. The party will take place on the grounds of the Yale headquarters on Thursday. The wife of Mayor Simmons of Henley and the wife of J. F. Cooper, the secretary of the Henley regatta committee, will receive the guests. The members of all the crews entered for the grand challenge cup have been invited, and invitations have been sent to the people of this vicinity who have entertained the Yale crew. In addition to these, a number of prominent Americans, the duchess of Marlborough included, will be present. There will be music, recitations, tennis, etc., and a most enjoyable time is looked forward to.

RENEGADE APACHES.

Tucson, Ariz., June 30.—A special to the Star from Tombstone says United States troops under Lieuts. Averell and Yates surprised an Apache camp in Sonora about forty miles below the line. The Indians had evidently been informed by a scout of the presence of the troops, as all made their escape except a boy who was captured together with the camp outfit. The troops co-operating with a force of Mexican cavalry, are still in pursuit of the disbanded renegades.

AGAINST TWO-THIRDS RULE.

Chicago, June 30.—The Illinois delegation to the national Democratic convention voted unanimously today to support in convention a resolution for the abrogation of the rule requiring presidential candidates to receive the votes of two-thirds of the convention to insure nomination. The proposition was reported in an earnest speech by Governor Altgeld.

DETAILS

Committee of the Big Democratic Convention Are In Chicago.

Departure Regarding Settlement of the Pending Contest Cases.

Silver Men Say Gold Men Will Get Nothing From Convention.

Chicago, June 30.—The sub-committee of the Democratic national committee will meet at the Palmer house in this city tomorrow for the purpose of arranging minor details of the committee. This sub-committee consists of Chairman W. F. Harrity, of Pennsylvania, Secretary S. P. Sherin, of Indiana, and Messrs. B. T. Cable, of Illinois; I. G. Pratcher, of Missouri; E. C. Wall, of Wisconsin; Hugh C. Wallace, of Washington, and T. H. Sherly, of Kentucky.

The committee will hear reports from the sub-committees on music, press and decoration of the convention hall. Col. Sherin said today that the minor committees having these matters in charge would be able to report that everything was in practical readiness for the convention, and he had no doubt that the sub-committee in charge would find the work in all respects satisfactory. The national committee has departed from the usual rule of having a committee composed of residents to look after these matters. They placed the work in the hands of members of their own organization and they feel that the innovation has proved a success.

The full national committee will not meet until noon next Monday, the day before the convention. No one appears to have a definite idea as to what business they will have before it. There will be reports of contests from various states, notably Michigan, Texas, Nebraska, Nevada and Colorado, but Col. Sherin says that so far he has received official notice of none except that from Nebraska. The Democratic party has in the past been so free from contests there are few precedents to guide them. The National Democratic committee has never heretofore granted hearings as the Republican committee does, nor attempted to arrange them so far as to decide what set of delegates, where there are contests, shall have their names placed upon the temporary roll.

The practice has been rather to deprive both parties to a contest from participating in the temporary organization, thus referring the entire matter to the convention. It is believed that this plan will be pursued this year, though the silver men have been somewhat apprehensive that the national committee may attempt to override the precedents and seat gold contestants, believing a majority of the committee to be opposed to silver. Hence the sub-committee which will meet tomorrow will be asked by the silverites to give them some assurance on this head.

The national committee will on its meeting next Monday designate temporary officers of the convention, including the temporary chairman.

SILVER AT CHICAGO.

Gold Men Must Not Expect Anything.

Chicago, June 30.—If the prognostications of W. H. Hinrichsen, delegate at large, and chairman of the Illinois state central committee, are correct, the gold standard delegates to the national Democratic convention will be given no quarter. "The silver men are going to run the convention," said Mr. Heinrichsen. "They will control both the temporary and permanent organizations and will nominate a free silver ticket from top to bottom and adopt a free silver 16 to 1 platform. The wishes of the gold men will not be considered. The states they represent will not vote the ticket and so they will be ignored. Last year when the Democrats of Illinois held a convention and declared for free silver, I wrote to Mr. Whitney and a number of other gold men, asking for a conference between the gold and silver men of the party.

"The replies were short and curt. They could not think of consulting with so insignificant a crowd as the free silver wing represented. Things have changed now. We have two-thirds of the delegates. We will not confer with the gold men because we have nothing to confer about. The great Democratic party wants a free silver ticket and platform and we will give it to them."

WHAT THE GOLD MEN SAY.

New York, June 30.—The New Yorkers who are going to Chicago to fight for the "gold standard" have completed their arrangements. William C. Whitney will leave with a party of friends in a private car attached to the Lake Shore limited, of the New York Central, at 4:30 on Thursday afternoon, reaching Chicago Friday afternoon. He will be joined by Senator Hill at Albany. The Tammany delegation will start on Sunday morning at 9:30 a. m., having special trains over the New York Central. Between 250 and 300 will go. They will arrive in Chicago at 10 o'clock on Monday morning and will make their headquarters at the Auditorium.

Mr. Whitney said last night: "The fight is being keyed up in the sound money states, and there is a great increase in the spirit and determination of Democrats who are going to Chicago to fight free silver."

CHAIRMAN HARRITY EN ROUTE.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 30.—National Democratic Chairman William F. Harrity left for Chicago on the Pennsylvania limited at noon today. He will arrive in Chicago tomorrow morning and will preside at 12 o'clock at a meeting of the subcommittee having charge of the arrangements for the convention. The national committee will meet in the Palmer house at 12 o'clock on Monday next to consider the preparation of the temporary roll, the distribution of tickets and the choice of temporary chairman. Charles E. Ingersoll and C. P. Donnelly, local Democratic leaders, go on the same train with the chairman as the advance guard of the Pennsylvania delegation.

BIMETALLISTS MEET.

Distinguished Silver Democrats Convene in Chicago.

Chicago, June 30.—The conference of the members of the national Democratic bimetallic committee was called to order at the Sherman house a few minutes before 12 o'clock today, by Senator Harris, of Tennessee, who is chairman of the organization. There was present a quorum of members of the committee and a large number of distinguished silver Democrats including Senators Harris and Bate, of Tennessee; Jones, of Arkansas; Turpie, of Indiana; Daniel, of Virginia, and Cockrell, of Missouri; ex-Senator Martin, of Kansas; Governor Stone, of Missouri; Congressmen McMillen and Richardson, of Tennessee, and ex-Congressman Bryan, of Nebraska, Snodgrass, of Tennessee, besides many others.

The report of the meeting was devoted largely to introductions and the exchanges of views as to the outlook for the approaching convention. The opinion was generally expressed that there would be no question as to the absolute control of the convention by the silver forces to what was generally added a determination to see that nothing happened to in any way weaken the control. There was more or less discussion of Mr. Whitney's attitude among the delegates. It was noted that there was no expression on the part of any one favorable to yielding anything to the gold standard element.

The opinion of the gathering on this score was well summed up in a dramatic remark of Senator Harris. "I am," the senator said, "one of many thousands of Democrats, and of many hundreds of delegates. I can't of course speak for all, but I can speak for myself. I want no compromise. We should either have a declaration for the free coinage of silver on terms of equality with gold, at the ratio of 16 to 1, so plain that no human being can misunderstand it, or we should have an equally plain pronounciament for the gold standard. I think I know which it will be."

TURPIE'S TALK.

Urging the Nomination of Mathews, of Indiana.

Chicago, June 30.—Senator Turpie, of Indiana, is among the recent distinguished arrivals. He comes to attend the national Democratic convention to which he is a delegate. "I am here," he said, "in the interest of Governor Matthews for the presidential nomination, and so are all of our Indiana delegates. We think him the most available man, and when all things are considered, the most acceptable one whose name will be presented to the convention. He is a man of excellent attainments, and if elected president would fill the office acceptably to all parts of the country.

"We have nothing to say against other candidates, but we claim for our man that he has always been a Democrat and that he is absolutely safe on the financial question. We believe he will command greater strength at the polls than will any other aspirant." The senator expressed the opinion that the convention would declare unequivocally for the coinage of free silver and would submit to no compromise. On the tariff he said, "Have you read our Indiana platform? We declare in that that with the free mintage of silver our present tariff law will produce all the duty necessary to support the government. We stand by those declarations."

PITTSTON'S HORROR.

More Falls of Rock Encountered---Relief Coming.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 30.—The work at the Pittston shaft has undergone no change since midnight. The rescuers continue to work under great difficulties. The squeeze is now general, and at the foot of the shaft the loud rumbling noise of falling rock in distant parts of the mine can be heard. At 5 o'clock there was another slight fall, which drove the men back. Double timbering is now being resorted to. It is very slow and tedious work, and even under the most favorable conditions the workers could not hope to clear a gangway to where the entombed men are in less than a month.

The cave-in at Jeansville, some two years ago, offers a precedent for the officials of the Twin shaft. As long as there is a possibility of any of the men being alive they feel it their duty to continue the work of attempted rescue. In the Jeansville cave-in six men were imprisoned in a breast of the mine for nineteen days. On the nineteenth day they were reached. Five men were dead and one was alive. The living man was "Big Joe," a Polander. He is now employed as carpenter at Hazelton. He has been interviewed on the probable fate of the men in the Pittston mine, and says if they are alive and the air is pure where they are, they will be able to live for ten days at least. It is taken for granted there is water where they are, and all of the men carried a good supply of food, which could be used sparingly during their imprisonment.

Another large crowd gathered about the mouth of the shaft this morning. In the crowd were twelve women, wives of entombed men. They still have hopes that their loved ones will be brought out alive. Superintendent Law says that all that it is possible to do is being done. The appeal sent out by the board of trade is already meeting with liberal responses. A gentleman from New York, who does not want his name made public, sent $1000. Smaller subscriptions, ranging from $5 to $25, have been received. It is expected the whole country will respond to the appeal. With the exception of Superintendent Langan's family, all the other families of the imprisoned miners are in destitute circumstances. Some of them have already received temporary aid from the town authorities.

TAR AND FEATHERS.

Minneapolis, June 30.—A special to the Journal from Hutchinson, Minn., says: Two tramps are soaking in oil here, in an effort to rid themselves of coats of tar and feathers administered by citizens last night. The tramps had attempted to make a farmer named Austin cook them a meal, and one who was drunk hit Austin and was promptly knocked down. Because of the late murder of Sheriff Rogers by tramps, the citizens decided to make an example of these two, one of whom committed no offense at all, and tarred them thoroughly.

JOHNNIES

Confederate Reunion In Progress at Richmond, Virginia This Afternoon.

Weather Is Fine and There Is an Enormous Crowd.

Senator Gordon's Eloquent Speech to His Old War Comrades.

Richmond, Va., June 30.—The Confederate re-union opened today with charming weather, clear and cool. An immense throng of people is present at the exposition grounds, where the convention is held and the large auditorium erected for the purpose is crowded. The auditorium is decorated handsomely. As Gen. Gordon showed his face on the rostrum a mighty Confederate yell went up and the battle-scared veterans gave him an ovation. Gen. O'Farrell and other distinguished men went up and grasped his hand. The bands played "Dixie" and the people shouted.

Before the committee was called to order, Gen. Gordon was presented with a gavel made from a tree from the battlefield of Chickamauga. Rev. J. M. Jones offered fervent prayer to the God of Lee and Jackson and Davis. Gen. Gordon was introduced by Governor O'Farrell, who on behalf of Virginia, welcomed the veterans.

Governor O'Farrell was followed by Gen. Gordon, who said:

"Governor, Mr. Mayor and Gen. Wise, Ladies and my Confederate Comrades. You will not wonder that I am literally overwhelmed by the flood of emotions which this scene evokes. As we look upon the grizzled locks and furrowed brows of these stalwart men, who thirty years ago were soldiers of the army which they immortalized by their deeds, how utterly inadequate are the words of our lips to express the emotions of our hearts. Let me say, these gentlemen, who in the name of this great people bid us welcome, that full and cordial as is our appreciation of this splendid reception, we are in no sense surprised at its princely munificence. We are not surprised, because we know Virginia and Virginians.

"Were we the recipients of these honors, ex-soldiers of victorious armies, bringing to a grateful people the trophies of their triumphs the world would comprehend the meaning of such a welcome as is here extended; but they were not victors in that Titanic struggle in human annals tered remnants of long since disbanded armies, which leave to posterity no accretions of territory, no receptions of public wealth or political power. The legacy which these men leave to their children and people is a record of untarnished honor, and of the most heroic defensive struggle in human annals, and the sole compensation for their services and sufferings is that reward which noble natures feel; in such recognition by their grateful countrymen.

"On the other hand no popular assemblies of intelligent and high-spirited citizens in the world's posterity were freer from partisan zeal or self-seeking spirit, or ignoble jealousies, or sinister intent, and the muse of history will yet emblaim, in one of her sweetest stories, the absolutely unselfish character and exalted aims of these Confederate gatherings. The pathos of that recital will be deepened by its simplicity and its beauty, heightened by the lesson that it will teach to humanity. This story will record the simple, but sublime truth with these re-unions that occur year after year, comes behind every stage of their proceedings, the indisputable proofs, that these broad-minded men were neither embittered by disappointments, nor dwarfed by ignoble passions, nor warped by political ambitions, nor narrowed by sectional prejudice, nor blinded to the common interests of the country by selfish aims, but that made unselfish through suffering, broadened and ennobled by sacrifice, refined and purified in the fires of affliction, they embrace as a brother every true lover of their country, and acknowledge no superiors in devotion to the common weal and in unfaltering support to the laws, the flag, the honor and freedom of this American republic. And now by the memory of that white robed army of comrades who have gone before us to the better land, but whose spirits are with us today; and voicing the sentiments of the thousands who long to be with us, in their name and as their representative, I lay at Virginia's feet the sincerest tribute of our grateful hearts."

MANOA COMPANY.

Venezuelan Syndicate Nothing But a Name.

New York, June 30.—A dispatch to the Herald from Caracas says: A special cabinet meeting was held on Friday, at which it was decided that the title of George Trumbull, representing British capitalists, to valuable iron mines situated near the St. Delta territory was perfect. This is regarded in official circles as a death blow to the Manoa company.

Commenting on the above dispatch, the Herald says: The Manoa company, of Brooklyn, was organized about ten years ago. It received a large grant of land in Venezuela, near the territory which is now claimed by the governments of that republic and Great Britain from Gen. Guzman Blanco. The land which was thus conceded included an asphalt lake. The concession was afterward withdrawn, but through the efforts of Donald Grant, of Faribault, Minn., was soon restored.

The company was unsuccessful in its enterprise, however, and in August, 1895, a meeting of creditors and bondholders was held in this city. They found that the company possessed no money, and had a floating debt of $50,000 and a mortgage debt of $2,000,000. A motion was made before Judge Clement of the supreme court of Brooklyn, in February last, by one of the stockholders to appoint a receiver, and was granted by the court. James A. Radcliffe was appointed receiver.

CHICAGO

Will Be the Great Mecca For Thousands of Democratic Clubs.

Expected That There Will Be Fully 6000 Clubs Organized.

A Club Convention to Be Held in St. Louis, Sept. 30.

Washington, June 30.—Lawrence Gardner, secretary of the congressional campaign committee and also of the National Association of Democratic Clubs, left for Chicago today, where he will establish headquarters of the latter organization in the Auditorium. Ex-Governor Chauncey F. Black, president of the club, is ill and will not be present. Postmaster General Wilson, chairman of the executive committee, will be detained here by his official duties, and his place will be taken as chairman pro tem by Representative McMillen, of Tennessee.

The headquarters will be fully supplied with literature pertaining to the national association, and a circular letter has been sent to all the delegates-elect to the convention calling them to headquarters for conference. The national association now has a membership of 1500 clubs, embracing every state and territory, numbering about 500,000 members. Many others are being formed. It is expected that in this campaign, which officers of the association say will be purely a campaign of the people, there will be at least 6000 clubs in the field as there were nearly 5000 in the last contest.

On Monday, July 6, a conference will be held in Chicago between the executive committee and the chairmen of the state associations, which are twenty in number. At this conference plans will be arranged for a convention of the clubs to be held in St. Louis Sept. 30, the citizens of St. Louis having assumed all the expenses attendant upon the convention, and it is confidently expected by the association that it will be one of the largest popular gatherings ever held in this country.

MILLS SHUT DOWN.

Many Mill Workers Out of Employment.

Youngstown, Ohio, June 30.—Every mill in the Mahoning valley, including Youngstown, Warren, Niles, Girard and Struthers, will close down today pending a settlement of the rate per ton for boiling. The manufacturers offer to sign the scale at $4 per ton, while the Amalgamated association is holding out for $4.50. Eight thousand five hundred mill workers will be out of employment until a settlement is reached. The conference committee meets again in this city on July 9.

PARIS DECISION IS LAW.

San Francisco, June 30.—The United States court of appeals decided today that the Paris award on matters pertaining to sealing in Bering sea must be upheld as the supreme law of the land, and that the United States government has no right to make special laws governing its citizens in hunting seal that do not permit them equal privileges with the citizens of foreign countries on the sealing grounds. The decision is important, as it defines clearly for the first time the restrictions to be placed upon American seal hunters in Bering sea.

NEW CALIFORNIA RAILROAD.

San Diego, June 30.—Articles of incorporation of the San Diego & Yuma Railroad company have been filed in this city. The capital stock of the company is $4,000,000. The company will ask the citizens to subscribe to a guarantee fund of $480,000 to secure 4 per cent interest on $4,000,000, the estimated cost of road from here to Yuma.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

STATE SUPREME COURT.

Justice Collins Hands Down Seven Decisions.

St. Paul, June 30.—Justice Collins, of the supreme court, yesterday afternoon reversed the decision of the Ramsey county district court in the damage case of Agnes M. Defoe, respondent, vs. the street railway company, appellant, and ordered a new trial. It is held that the district court erred in not charging the jury that, if the defendant was injured by attempting to get off the car while it was slowing down for the purpose of stopping, she could not recover.

R. James Morrison et al., respondents, Charles T. Arons et al., defendants; Oscar P. Williams and Alden T. Hall, appellants. Order reversed; Collins, J.

George N. Holland, respondent, vs. the Duluth Iron Mining and Development company et al., appellants. Order affirmed; Collins, J.

Herbert W. Topping, respondent, vs. Odin G. Clay, appellant. Order affirmed. Collins, J.

In the matter of the guardianship of Frank W. Matson, William H. Watson, appellant, vs. Frank M. Watson, respondent. Order affirmed; Collins, J.

Katherine Sneda as administratrix of the estate of Joseph Sneda, appellant, vs. Albert Libera and John Minazek, appellants. Affirmed; Collins, J.

State of Minnesota, respondent, vs. Faribault waterworks, appellant. Appeal dismissed; Collins, J.

FORESTRY WORK.

Commission About Ready to Start Out.

Washington, June 30.—Professor Wolcott Gibbs, president of the national academy of science, has written the following letter to Secretary Hoke Smith about the early departure of the government forestry commission to the field:

"Newport, R. I., June 27.—I have the honor to inform you that the members of the forestry commission appointed at your request by the president of the national academy of science will leave for the West on or before July 2, and will enter upon their duties. I have every reason to believe that the work of the committee will be of inestimable benefit to the country and that it will justify the opinion which the public has from the inception of the plan entertained of the wise foresight and patriotic spirit which you have shown in its conception and advancement.

Wolcott Gibbs."

BUZZARDS BAY.

Executive Head of the Nation Summering There.

Washington, June 30.—President Cleveland left Washington this morning at 7 o'clock over the Pennsylvania railroad. A private car was attached. The president was accompanied by Private Secretary Thurber, who will be with him during the summer. At Jersey City the president will go aboard the private yacht Oneida and will sail to Buzzards Bay. All executive business will be transacted at Gray Gables during the summer, but official announcements, as heretofore, will be made from the executive mansion in Washington.

THE ITASCA CONVENTION.

Uninstructed Delegates to St. Paul and St. Cloud.

Grand Rapids, Minn., June 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Itasca county Republican convention yesterday chose delegations as follows:

State—Hon. D. M. Gunn, chairman; Oscar Toombs, James Joleand, J. B. Roy, George T. Robinson, Charles A. Nutter, H. S. Huson and Moses Manston.

Congressional—Frank Peopke, Eli Signal, C. C. McCarthy, Hon. D. M. Gunn, George Arscott, Chet W. Robinson and J. R. Wallace.

On motion it was unanimously resolved that the delegates go uninstructed. The unit rule was adopted on motion of H. S. Huson, seconded by Moses Manston. It is believed that the gubernatorial delegates are friendly to Clough, but the majority of Labor league members on both delegations may cause some changes from the old line routine. There is also great friendship for Congressman Towne among Itasca's congressional delegates.

CLOUGH CARRIED HENNEPIN.

After a Hot Fight the Governor Won Out.

Minneapolis, June 30.—The Tribune says: It was a hot fight, but Governor Clough won out. He carried the Republican primaries in Minneapolis last night by a vote of about 225 to 172, according to the Tribune's figures, and this includes all but nine delegates which the city is entitled to. It was a closer contest than the Clough men expected, but they have a good working majority in the convention and under the unit rule will send 116 Clough delegates to the convention in St. Paul.

CIVIL ENGINEERS MEET.

San Francisco, June 30.—The American society of civil engineers is holding its twenty-eighth annual session in this city. Delegates are present from nearly every state in the Union. The first day's session was devoted to the discussion of various methods of improving bar harbors.

June 30, July 1, $4.30 round trip rates St. Paul and Minneapolis, via St. Paul & Duluth railroad.

SCALPS

Pitt River Indians in California Will Go on the War Path.

Outbreak Said to Be Arranged About the Fourth of July.

Friendly Squaw Spreads the Alarm---Relief Will Be Sent.

San Francisco, June 30.—A special from Redding, Cal., to the Examiner says: Great excitement has been caused by the receipt of a letter containing news of a threatened rising of the Pitt River Indians. Judge Edward Sweeney, of Redding, received the message and the author is W. Bailey, the farmer living with his family in the big bend of Pitt river, about sixty miles northeast of this city.

Bailey stated in the letter that a friendly squaw came to his house and informed him that the warriors of the Pitt River tribe intended to have a great pow-wow near his farm on July 4, mustering as many braves as possible and designed to follow their savage orgies by a massacre of all the white settlers who live along the north bank of the Pitt.

Mr. Bailey's letter was brought by messenger as rapidly as could be, and Judge Sweeney was urged to act promptly. The judge referred the letter to Sheriff Houston, who is organizing an expedition to hurry on to the threatened region. This tribe is the most powerful and thoroughly organized in Northern California.

RAMSEY COUNTY.

Delegates Are Instructed to Support Clough.

St. Paul, June 30.—The Ramsey county Republicans have elected seventy-one delegates to the state convention to be held in this city tomorrow, and instructed them to vote as a unit for the nomination of Governor Clough to succeed himself. They were also instructed to vote for Henry W. Childs for attorney general, and they were directed to use all honorable means to bring about both nominations. This action was what had been expected for some time, as the head of the state ticket without any question, as Ramsey's seventy-one votes brings the Clough strength away above the figure needed to nominate.

The delegations from the counties which have selected their delegations to the state convention have begun to arrive and the members all wear their fighting clothes. The Washington county delegation has secured quarters at the Windsor and others are following suit. The Merchants will also be filled with delegations and candidates' headquarters. Many of the candidates will have headquarters at both hotels. In fact, all of them will. Messrs. Douglass, Haupt and Kingsley all opened up rooms at the Windsor yesterday, and with their friends began an active, aggressive campaign. It is conceded by all parties that the fight for governorship is ended, and that the contest will now be for the attorney generalship, and around that the combinations for the lieutenant governorship will be made.

ALASKAN MINERS.

Many of Them Are Nearly Starving.

Tacoma, Wash., June 30.—William Hutchinson returned today from Cook inlet, Alaska, where he has spent two months. He came down on the schooner Norma, which left Kodiak June 16 with thirty-two passengers, all she could carry, though ninety wanted to come. Hutchinson says there are 1750 people on Six Mile creek and about as many on Resurrection creek. About 750 of them are making from $2 to $15 per day at placer mining, but the remainder, he says, are absolutely helpless and unable to find enough to keep them alive. As a rule, the gold consists of such light flakes that a breeze blows it away.

Many of the prospectors would like to go to the Yukon country. That, however, is 200 miles away, and it is currently reported that the Copper River Indians, who live between, are on the war path. Hutchinson thinks there will not be enough steamers to accommodate the people who want to go to Cook inlet this summer. Prospectors are still pouring there, the steamer Dora landing 125 from Sitka June 8.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Fifty delegates to the first annual convention of the Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance of the United States and Canada met at New York yesterday. Daniel DeLeon, who was elected temporary chairman, made a speech in which he condemned the trades unions and classed Gompers, Powderly and Sovereign as fakirs.

Two races were run at Chicago yesterday. The winners were Newberger and Marguerite.

Pope Leo has addressed an encyclical letter to Cardinal Gibbons which will soon be published in full, setting forth his views on the ultimate reunion of all the churches into one great body. It is a general belief that the recent letter of Mr. Gladstone on the same subject prompted the venerable pontiff to make his views public.

Winners at the Cincinnati horse races yesterday were Motilla, Black Silk Hunter, Granman, Flotow and Carry Lysle.

Winners at the Milwaukee horse races yesterday were: Kirk, Storm King, Helen Wren, Lord Nelson and Orinda.

At Fall River, Mass., 1,400,000 spindles will shut down during July and August.

The bicycle and the theater, heretofore antagonistic, have come together in Chicago. Last night the first bicycle theater party attended the Schiller, which has perfected arrangements to check the wheels of visitors. Hereafter a special feature will be made of "bicycle nights."

At Sharon, Mass., yesterday afternoon four choir boys and the choir master of St. John's Episcopal church of Charlestown, were drowned in Lake Massapoag. The dead are: Choir Master Fred. E. Brackett, 22 years; Thomas Parker, 11 years; Henry Laker, 12 years; William Watkins, 12 years; Benjamin Gibbs.

The members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company, of Boston, left yesterday for England to visit the parent organization, the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company, of England.

At Tekamah, Neb., Misses Jessie Kelso and Sadie Reese and John Samson, part of a picnic party, were drowned in the Missouri river yesterday. The boat they occupied was swamped. But one member of the party was saved, he clinging to the boat. Their bodies were swept away by the strong current.

At Pittsburg, Pa., G. Augustus Page, cashier of the Equitable Life Insurance company, was jailed last night by the coroner on the charge of having brought about his wife's death by a criminal operation.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Walsh county has just seen the conclusion of a breach of promise suit between two of the most respected people of the vicinity of Edinburg, about fifty miles southeast of Langdon. Miss Carrie E. Lockrem sued Helge O. Rustan for $10,000 for breach of promise. She alleged that Rustan had been keeping company with her for four years, and they became engaged in the summer of 1894. But in April, 1895, he suddenly ceased his attentions and she was compelled to sue him. There was no scandalous feature to the trial, as both parties are of the best character. Rustan swore that while he had kept company with the girl he had never asked her to marry him, and had never been engaged to her. When he made this declaration on the witness stand Miss Lockrem was so overcome that she had to taken from the court room. The jury, after hearing the arguments, retired for two hours and then rendered a verdict in favor of the girl for $750 damages. This verdict will probably be appealed from.

John A. Brown, a prosperous bachelor farmer, residing near Oakes, was found dead in bed last evening with a hole in his forehead, and a shot gun lying on top of his folded arms. He had probably been dead two days. The wound ranged downward from the top of the forehead to the base of the brain. He was undoubtedly murdered. Nothing in the house was disturbed, and there were $2 in his pants pocket. Suspicion points strongly to two tramps, 25 or 30 years old, who went east on the Soo Friday morning and were put off at Forman. One was well dressed in black and the other more shabbily in gray. Both had smooth faces.

Tom Moran, a farmer living east of Grafton, ate a wild parsnip last Saturday, from the effects of which he died Sunday. Pat Gleason was found dead in a lane on the Herriot farm between here and Minto this morning. The man had been working the place and report says had quarreled with his wife, who was at the time of his death stopping with a neighbor. The body was still warm when picked up. The coroner will hold an inquest.

The managers of the gubernatorial campaign of William Budge have purchased the Grand Forks Daily News and will assume control in a few days. A competent political editor will be hired and 4000 copies issued daily. It is pretty generally conceded now that Budge is master of the situation and that if he cannot secure the nomination for himself he can name the successful man. Budge and Allin will probably be the only candidates before the convention, and the lead of the former is becoming more apparent every day.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

While the late state Democratic convention at Pierre declared for gold, the delegates to Chicago were in no way instructed, and as one of them stated, they would be chumps to go to Chicago and run against a stone wall," especially in view of a possible competing free silver delegation. This indicates that while the convention declared its belief in the gold standard, the delegates may take advantage of their freedom from instructions to get on the band wagon. In doing so they will be far nearer expressing the sentiment of the party than by voting for gold.

Near Vermillion the Missouri river threatens to raise havoc with bottom lands. At present the main channel runs near the Nebraska bluffs, about four miles from the city. During the flood of 1881 the river cut across the bottoms on the southwest and formed a "dug-out" several miles long, the nearest point being about three miles from this place. Near this point is a large ravine running into the Vermillion river about half a mile west of this city. The head of the ravine is now separated from the "dug out" by only a few yards. The high water of the Missouri has diverted the main channel into the "dug out" and the water is cutting continually toward the ravine. Unless the water recedes soon the river will cut its way through to the Vermillion and damages footing up into the millions will ensue.

A representative of the interior department will arrive at Chamberlain to select the ground for the government Indian school there. The sum of $50,000 is appropriated for school at Rapid City and there, half to each.

SENATOR WHITE'S PURSUIT.

San Bernardino, June 30.—Senator White was seen last evening in regard to the possibility of his nomination for the presidency at the Chicago convention. He was found at 9 p. m. trying a libel suit and when asked about being placed in nomination said: "I am engaged in trying a law suit and not in running for president."

PENNOYER'S LITTLE BOOMLET.

Portland, Ore., June 30.—"Pennoyer for president" will be the slogan of the Oregon Democratic delegation to the Chicago convention. It cannot be established that Pennoyer has expressed any desire to have it so; but there is little doubt that his name and fame will be exploited long and loudly among the delegates. The state Democracy is in favor of the free coinage of silver.

FREE SILVER ENDORSED.

Columbus, Ohio, June 30.—Judge D. Meekison, of Napoleon, Ohio, was nominated by the Democrats today for congress. "Free coinage of gold and silver" was endorsed. Delegates to the national convention are John Janeke, Putnam county, and Levi Jacobs, Van Wert county.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Joseph W. Reynolds, (unmarried), mortgagor, to William E. Lucas, mortgagee, bearing date February first, (1st), 1893, and duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on February fourth (4th), 1893, at two (2) o'clock p. m., in Book one hundred two (102) of mortgages, on pages two hundred twenty (220), two hundred twenty-one (221) and two hundred twenty-two (222) thereof, which mortgage, with the debt thereby secured, was thereafter duly assigned by said William E. Lucas to Catherine B. Lambert, by an instrument of assignment dated February thirteenth (13th), 1893, and duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on February thirteenth (13th), 1893, at 3:10 o'clock p. m., in Book eighty-three (83) of assignment of mortgages, on page three hundred sixty-four (364); such default consisting in the non-payment of the principal sum of three thousand five hundred ($3500) dollars thereby secured, with interest thereon at the rate of eight per cent from July first (1st), 1895, and exchange.

And whereas there is therefore claimed to be due, and there is actually due, upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of three thousand seven hundred seventy-seven and 25-100 ($3777.25) dollars, principal, interest and exchange.

And whereas said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the default above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein, situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: All of lot numbered three hundred seventy-seven (377), in block numbered fifty (50), in Duluth Proper, Second Division, according to the recorded plat thereof in the office of the register of deeds for said St. Louis County, Minnesota; which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the sixth (6th) day of August, A. D. 1896, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and seventy-five dollars attorney's fee, stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated June 15th, 1896.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—

Default has been made in the payment of the sum of two hundred twenty-nine and 66-100 dollars, which amount is claimed to be due and is due, owing and unpaid at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly made and delivered by J. C. Russell and Alice S. Russell, his wife, mortgagors, to Wm. E. Richardson and Frank A. Day, mortgagees, bearing date the 25th day of February, 1893, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 15th day of March, 1893, at 8 o'clock a. m., in Book 68 of mortgages, on page 550, which mortgage and the debt thereby secured were duly assigned by said Wm. E. Richardson and Frank A. Day to the undersigned Eliot B. Norton, who is now the owner and holder thereof, by written instrument bearing date the 29th day of June, 1893, and duly recorded in the office of said register of deeds on the 2d day of July, 1893, at 4 o'clock p. m., in Book 83 of mortgages, on page 475.

And whereas said default is a default in one of the conditions of said mortgage, which contains a power of sale and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described and situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, to-wit: Lot number thirteen (13), in block number fourteen (14), in West End Addition to Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof, which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house of said county, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on Wednesday, the 15th day of July, 1896, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest together with twenty-five dollars attorneys' fee, stipulated in said mortgage to be paid in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale, as by law provided.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—

Whereas, A. E. Ebert and Mrs. J. E. Ebert (his wife), on the 5th day of May, 1894, mortgaged to Bernard Heller and Louis S. Loeb, the following tract or parcel of land lying and being in the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: The east one-half (½) of fractional lot number four (4), in block number forty (40), in Endion Division of Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof heretofore of record in the office of the register of deeds of said St. Louis County; the said tract or parcel being a strip twenty-five (25) feet in width off from the east side of said lot and extending the whole length thereof, to secure the payment of three hundred and twenty-one dollars, with interest thereon, at seven per cent per annum, in one year from May 5th, 1894. This mortgage was filed for record in the office of the register of deeds of said St. Louis County, on October 9th, 1894, and was duly recorded in Book 95 of mortgages on page 81.

On January 8th, 1895, the said Louis S. Loeb assigned to the said Bernard Heller all the right, title and interest he had in and to said mortgage and the assignment was filed for record in the office of the register of deeds of said St. Louis County on the 25th day of May, 1895, and was duly recorded in Book 147 of mortgages on page 31.

There is now claimed to be due and is due on the debt secured by said mortgage, for principal and interest, the sum of three hundred and sixty-seven dollars and twenty-two cents.

No action has been brought for the recovery of any part of the sum due from the mortgagors, and default has been made in the payment of the same.

Therefore, in pursuance of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the above described parcel of land will be sold by the sheriff of St. Louis County, Minnesota, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the county court house, in Duluth, Minnesota, on Thursday, the 16th day of July, 1896, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage and the costs and disbursements of this foreclosure including an attorney fee of twenty-five dollars of the amount therein provided in case of foreclosure.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., this 26th day of May, 1896.

WEST END

Hot Weather Is Bringing the Tramps to the Front.

Jailer Frank Fredell Had a Hard Tussle With One Yesterday.

Kept Two Others at Bay at the Same Time---Other News.

The tramps like the flies begin to thicken as the warm weather comes on particularly in the suburbs of West Duluth, and the police officers are kept pretty busy looking after the great American pilgrims.

Jailer Fred Fredell had a tussle with one big specimen of humanity yesterday afternoon who taxed the officer's strength to the utmost before giving in to the strong arm of the law. The man was intoxicated, but was not so badly under the influence of liquor but that he was ready to fight for his liberty. There were three in the party, but the officer kept two of them at bay with threats of using his shooting iron while he fought several rounds with the man who resisted arrest. Finally the obstreperous individual succumbed to the inevitable and was safely landed in the cooling off department of the police department. This morning he was taken to the municipal court on the charge of vagrancy and drunkenness. The man gave his name as James Carney and like George Francis Train, is a citizen of the world.

The Secretary Decides.

Secretary Hoke Smith has rendered a decision in the case of Elise Herbert vs. Cornelius Brownell. The latter appealed from the decision of the general land office cancelling his homestead entry for the s½ of se¼ of section 29, and n½ of sw¼ of section 32-66-10. The decision of the general office is affirmed.

Charles M. Smith vs. James H. Harrington has also been decided. Harrington appealed from the cancellation of his homestead entry for the e½ of ne¼ of section 20-46-18, by the general land office. The secretary affirms the general land office.

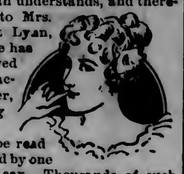
ASKING QUESTIONS.

IT IS A WOMAN'S PREROGATIVE, AND SHE USES IT.

Timely Questions and Prompt Answers Have Resulted in Great Satisfaction to Many Women.

Sensitive women hate to ask their physicians those delicate questions that only a woman understands, and therefore write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lyan, Mass., as she has ever proved their most accurate adviser, and knowing that their letters will be read and answered by one of their own sex. Thousands of such letters have been received within a few months from those afflicted with the various forms of female diseases, and it is needless to say the answers have brought comfort and relief.



That sense of dragging in the groin, dull pains in small of back, retention, suppression of menses, bearing-down pains, headache, nervousness, blues, etc., are symptoms that require prompt measures.

The cure is, in most cases, rapid. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be promptly taken, and Mrs. Pinkham will furnish any advice required, free. Following is another letter of thanks:—

"Please accept my thanks for the little book which you have sent me. It has opened my eyes, and told me that there is a remedy for suffering women. There is no need for women to suffer, if they will only take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I suffered for years with painful menstruation, thinking there was no remedy for it; but after reading your little pamphlet, I thought I would give your medicine a trial, and it is wonderful how quickly it relieved me. I recommend it for all women who suffer with painful menstruation."—Mrs. George Neuboss, Crittendon, Erie Co., N. Y.

NEW WAGE SCALE.

Amalgamated Scale to Take Effect Tomorrow.

Pittsburg June 30.—The new wage scale o fthe Amalgamated Iron and Steel Workers goes into effect tomorrow and all union mills where the scale has not been signed, will close down at midnight. The Keystone rolling mill, the J. Painter & Sons company, of Pittsburg, the Wheeling Iron company, Wheeling, and the Akron Iron and Steel company signed the puddling and finishing scales, and P. H. Laufmann, the oldest tinplate manufacturers in the United States, have signed the tinplate scale. Laufmann is not a member of the Manufacturers' association and is running independently.

The scale is not likely to be signed by many of the Pittsburg firms, as almost all are operating without it, but only a few will refuse to pay the scale wages.

BULLISH

Wheat Market Was Stronger Today Despite the Gold-bug Bears' Talk.

The Illinois State Crop Report Was of a Bullish Character.

Thoman's Estimate of Yield, Stocks and Demands Was Also Bullish.

There was a sharp reaction in wheat today. A more hopeful feeling was apparent regarding commercial matters in general and the prospects for a betterment in the price of wheat in particular before the opening of the session. The New York market was higher. Thoman's report was made public and was found to be more bullish than the meager information regarding it which some people claimed to have on the previous day. A special report of the Illinois department of agriculture, covering crop conditions up to June 20, gave a much worse condition of affairs than had been supposed. The condition was shown to be 68 and very bullish. On the other hand, cables were lower and harvesting weather was reported favorable.

Thoman estimates the yield of winter wheat at 271,000,000 bus and of spring 172,000,000 bus and the quantity of old wheat in farmers' hands at 43,000,000 bus, and if to those figures be added about 64,000,000 bus in Bradstreet's visible the total supply for next year, estimated as above, is 550,000,000 bus to meet the following probable demand Say bread for 70,000,000 people at four and two-thirds bus per capita, 325,000,000 bus; seed, 34,000,000 bus; allowance for export, 125,000,000 bus, making a total of 504,000,000 bus, which, deducted from supplies of 550,000,000 bus, would leave 46,000,000 bus on hand in all positions as compared with about 107,000,000 bus similarly placed now.

July opened on the Duluth board ½c higher at 54¾c and under the influence of the above bullish news soon advanced 1c to 55¾c. There was liberal buying by shorts and the price was soon up to 56¼c. Later it eased off ¼c but recovered and advanced to 56½c, with the last sale ¼c below those figures. The mills bought 20,000 bus of cash stuff at ¼c over July and shippers took 55,000 bus at the July price. The close was 1⅝c higher all round than yesterday. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 57¼c. No. 1 northern, cash, 56¼c; June, 56⅝c; July, 56⅝c asked; September, 56⅝c asked. No. 2 northern, cash, 52¾@53⅞c. No. 3, 51¼@52¾c. Rejected, 46⅞@52⅝c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 57½c; No. 1 northern, 56½c. Rye, 38½c. No. 2 oats, 16@16½c; No. 3 oats, 15½@16c. Flax, 70¾c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 533; oats, 29; rye, 14; barley, 53; flax, 21. Receipts—Wheat, 226,468 bus; corn, 186 bus; oats, 41,041 bus; rye, 11,077 bus; barley, 15,490 bus; flax, 15,333 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 326,961 bus; oats, 29,884 bus; barley, 125,236 bus.

ILLINOIS HARVEST.

Chicago, June 30.—The Illinois weekly crop bulletin issued today says: Wheat and rye harvest is finished, except in northern counties; most of the grain is in the shock, little being stacked or threshed yet. Some damage to the grain in the shock is reported by wet weather in the southern section. The oats harvest has begun in southern counties and grain is ripening fast in the central and northern. It is of a rank growth and some smut and rust are reported. Corn has made good growth, although fields are needing more work in Southern counties.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

New York, June 30.—The stock market opened stronger under favorable influence of the advance in London prices and a brisk inquiry for the foreign account. Burlington rose 1¼, Sugar and Rock Island 1, and Chicago Gas, St. Paul and Louisville ¾ per cent. The dealings were in large volume with Sugar the leader in activity, the opening transactions in the stock being for 5000 shares at 110½ to 111.

Further gains were scored in some of the leading stocks after 10:15, but the high level soon induced realizations in which some shares receded to below yesterday's closing. Tobacco exceptionally declined 2 per cent to 61¾ and Sugar figured for ¼ per cent. The reactionary movement seemed exhausted at 11 o'clock and a tendency toward higher prices was evident, except in a few instances. Foreign cables recorded a cheerful sentiment toward American rails and the absorption in this market for the European account thus far has been very heavy.

The volume of business was somewhat lighter during the second hour, but a decidedly strong tone prevailed and gains were made, the most important of which were in Sugar, Chicago Gas, the grangers and Louisville & Nashville. On the dealings covering of shorts was noted on an extensive scale. Prices current at midday showed improvements over yesterday's closing in the more prominent stocks of 1@2 per cent. The advancing tendency was then operative. The scale to noon were 164,900 shares.

HONORS TO VISITORS.

London, June 30.—It has been decided that a review of troops will be held at Aldershot camp in honor of the Honorable Artillery company of Massachusetts, now on its way to England. The date of the military turnout has not been fixed, but it is known that the matter was arranged at the suggestion of the prince of Wales.

This is the greatest compliment it is possible for the war department to pay the Americans, as reviews up to the present have never been held, save for the crowned heads. In addition, also, in honor of the American visitors, a military parade has been ordered at Woolwich, the headquarters of the Royal artillery.

AUSTRALIAN WOOL CROP.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (Central time), June 30.—Except local showers in Nebraska, where rain fell to the depth of .46 inch at North Platet, continued fair weather is reported at all stations, and the temperature has generally risen. It was excessively warm yesterday afternoon in the provinces north of Montana, temeperatures of 90 to 98 degrees being general.

The barometer has risen two to three-tenths of an inch in the southern part of the lake region, while a depression has moved southeast to Lake Superior. In consequence brisk to high southerly winds prevail this morning along the south shore, between Duluth and Marquette.

Depth of water in the Sault canal at 7 a. m. today, 14 feet 4 inches. Forecast for the next twenty-four hours: Stationary.

Duluth temperature at 7 a. m. today, 68; maximum yesterday, 80; minimum yesterday, 59.

Local forecast for Duluth and vicinity: Fair, continued warm tonight; Wednesday fair and probably cooler; brisk westerly winds becoming variable Wednesday.

JAMES KENEALY,
Local Forecast Official.

Chicago, June 30.—Forecast until 8 p. m. tomorrow: For Wisconsin: Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; warmer in southern portion tonight brisk southwest winds. Minnesota: Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; brisk southwest winds.

MORE ENCOURAGING.

The numerous bids received for the issue of water bonds and their favorable character must furnish encouragement to those who are engaged in the task of securing ways and means for the construction of the city water plant, despite the active opposition of the bondholders of the Duluth Gas and Water company. All the bids were conditioned, of course, on the validity of the bonds being certified to by the attorneys of the bidders.

The fact that there are suits pending attacking the validity of the issue naturally makes bond buyers timid about investing, but there is every reason to believe that the opinions made by the bidders' attorneys, after a careful investigation of the pending litigation, will be favorable to the validity of the bonds. Nearly all the points raised in the latest suits started to delay the construction of the plant are old and have been passed upon by the courts. The new points are so flimsy and untenable and it is so evident they were presented merely for obstructive purposes, that but little investigation will be necessary to show that they would not be sustained by any court in the country.

Meanwhile nothing should be left undone that will aid in the disposal of these bonds, the construction of the plant, and the consequent discomfiture of the obstructionists. The people of Duluth have declared, by an emphatic vote, that they want pure water and that they want an independent water plant that will furnish a supply of undoubted purity. The present supply may be pure or it may be impure. So long as the intake pipe is located in close proximity to sewers discharging their foul contents into the lake, there will be grave fears as to the purity of the water supplied to consumers, and the people are entitled to a supply about the purity of which there will not be the slightest doubt.

A SPECK OF MUD.

C. C. McCarthy, of Grand Rapids, says he can see nothing honorable or consistent in Mr. Towne's action in quitting the Republican party because it has reversed its attitude on the money question, abandoning the cause of bimetallism and declaring for the perpetuation of the existing gold standard, and charges Mr. Towne with inconsistency and a desire to "lift himself into place."

In imputing such motives to Mr. Towne, Mr. McCarthy will find few sympathizers. Heretofore, no one has questioned Mr. Towne's honesty and consistency and self-sacrifice for the sake of principle. It has remained for this Grand Rapids goldbug to descend to the mud-throwing tactics. And yet it is not a very long time since the attitude of Mr. McCarthy on the same money issue was questioned by his fellow goldbugs. Mr. McCarthy was chosen temporary chairman of the last district convention at Aitkin. When the committee on permanent organization met, several members, who were pronounced goldbugs, assailed Mr. McCarthy's record and asserted that he was a silver man. For that reason they objected to recommending him as permanent chairman.

What evidence they produced in support of their statement The Herald does not know, but it was sufficient to cause a lively wrangle in the committee. What promise McCarthy then made is not known, but finally he won out by a small majority. In view of these facts, Mr. McCarthy is hardly in a position to take up the cudgels on behalf of the goldbugs or to throw mud at Mr. Towne or accuse him of inconsistency.

Mr. Towne's courage and exhibition of manhood, in refusing to abandon his position on the money question, when by so doing he could be nominated unanimously, and in refusing at St. Louis an invitation to visit Mr. McKinley at Canton—where he undoubtedly would have been promised almost any honor he desired are known to all the people. That they honor and respect Mr. Towne for thus proving himself the embodiment of horor is shown by the great popular demonstrations of approval, and by the daily accessions to the ranks of prominent Minnesota Republicans who are taking their position alongside Mr. Towne in the pending great fight in behalf of the American people. Beside such an honbrable and brave man as Mr. Towne, creatures of hte McCarthy stripe, who see unworthy motives in every public man who strikes for political liberty, are but insignificant specks upon the political firmament.

THE DAKOTAS ALL RIGHT.

There is no doubt that North Dakota will give a good majority in November for the bimetallic tickets. No better proof of this fact can be found than the following account of the political situation in that state, published in the Minneapolis Journal, a gold standard advocate. The Journal says that the Democrats, Populists and silver party have about arrived at an agreement to hold their state conventions in Fargo on a date yet to be decided upon. Plans are about perfected for a fusion ticket to be chosen from the three parties, the campaign to be made upon a free silver platform.

So far no candidates for any position on the fusion ticket have been spoken of with the exception of ex-Governor Shortridge for the congressional nomination. He is an ardent free silver advocate and stands well with the people. Those opposed to him politically admit that he will make an exceptionally strong candidate. Johnson, who will be renominated by the Republican convention, will have the fight of his life if Shortridge is made the fusion nominee. Republicans everywhere admit that the fusion candidate for congress will poll a large vote anyway, and Shortridge would do exceptionally well.

There is another element at work among the fusionists, says the Journal. It is a feeling which favors putting up the strongest men in their ranks, no matter from what section or faction they come, as long as they are consistent silver men. This united stand means that not only Congressman Johnson, but the whole Republican ticket, will have an exceptionally hard time in bringing victory their way this campaign. The party must fight hard to win.

These are important admissions, coming from the goldbug side. What is true of North Dakota is also true of South Dakota. The great majority of the people there believe, with Senator Pettigrew, that the return of enterprise and prosperity depends upon the restoration of bimetallism, and they will vote in November to secure the rehabilitation of silver as standard money and again; the maintenance of the existing gold standard, which is steadily but surely carrying the nation towards bankruptcy.

Congressman Hartman of Montana has announced that he will stump the Sixth district in behalf of Mr. Towne, and Mr. Hartman is a bimetallist speaker of great power. In a speech at Butte the other day, when he was given a great reception on his return from St. Louis, Mr. Hartman paid a high tribute to Mr. Towne as "one of the most splendid characters" who have enlisted in the bimetallic cause. "Mr. Towne," he said, "came into the Fifty-fourth congress a new man. In seven weeks he rose from the foot of the ladder to the top round as the leading bimetallist debater in the house." Alluding to the threats of the goldbugs to defeat Mr. Towne, he added: "I am going there to help fight his battle, and let Montana take care of itself."

I. G. McGrew, who is state weighmaster here and a devout admirer and follower of William R. Merriam and all others who savor of gold, has rushed into print with a series of questions addressed to Mr. Towne. The Herald does not believe that Mr. Towne will waste valuable time on state officials who are merely endeavoring to show the Merriam machine to which they owe their appointments that they have taken the gold cure and are loyal and faithful followers of Banker Merriam and reverent believers in his financial views.

The day before the last county convention the Eveleth Hustler said: "We trust and hope that the Republicans of St. Louis county will heartily endorse the St. Louis platform in their convention tomorrow." The convention, the Hustler will no doubt be pained to learn, did not follow its advice. As soon as the resolution instructing Clough was passed, the goldbug managers rushed an adjournment, fearing that someone would introduce a resolution endorsing Mr. Towne.

Talking of an educational campaign on the money issue, why does not the News Tribune reply to the question which "Enquirer" directed to it, as follows: "If England, who preceded us in demonetizing silver, and France and Germany, who followed us, had all united with us in taking the same action in regard to gold, leaving silver the only money metal, would not the bullion price of gold have depreciated and the bullion price of silver be equal to its coinage value now?"

The Minneapolis Tribune says: "A Montana paper has its vision so dazzled by the silver outlook that it locates The Duluth Herald in Michigan." This is not astonishing, in view of the great revolution in both Minnesota and Michigan in favor of the rehabilitation of silver as standard money. The exodus from the Republican party in both states on account of the gold plank adopted at St. Louis is large and steadily increasing.

The Buffalo Journal, the leading Republican newspaper of Wright county, owned and edited by ex-Senator Eaton, refuses to subscribe to the gold plank of the St. Louis platform. The Journal favors bimetallism and says "the St. Louis convention was manipulated and controlled by a few bosses and millionaires."

The Minneapolis Journal warns the gold standard men that the nomination of any candidate who lives outside of Duluth against Mr. Towne would mean Mr. Towne's certain election. This being admitted, where is the Duluth man who thinks he has strength enough to defeat Mr. Towne?

If State Weighmaster McGrew will buy a copy of Mr. Towne's speech on the silver question he will find answers to nearly all his questions. If he has not the price, The Herald will present him with a copy.

If Mr. Towne should attempt to answer every question that will be fired at him by the state officeholders like Mr. McGrew, he would not have time for doing much else during the campaign.

C. C. McCarthy, of Grand Rapids, appears to have a very abundant vocabulary, but to be rather short on facts and deficient in logic.

How surprised Maj. McKinley must have been yesterday when "notified" that he was a presidential nominee!

MAN WITH CONVICTIONS.

Teller's Grandeur as Compared With McKinley's Weakness.

Detroit, Mich., News: How pitifully little they all look beside him—the time-serving politicians who conceal their opinions out of cowardice, or change them for advantage with every new chance that offers; the machine men who have no opinions at all, but follow the machine which-ever way it turns; the bosses, even the great ones, whose highest ambition is to control their states and crush their rivals, but not a great figure in public affairs; the wealthy dabblers in politics, who, having made a fortune in trade, with never a thought of the art or science of government and never an hour devoted to its study, suddenly rush into party management with a big purse, and, by sheer weight of dollars, force themselves to the front for the gratification of a silly and ignorant vanity; and even the front rank of the crowd who aspire to the presidency itself, or trade their aspirations for a place in the cabinet. How small, how contemptible they all appear when sized up alongside a plain, honest, simple-hearted, single-purposed man, like Teller.

How pitiful Maj. McKinley looks beside him. With the highest prize of American politics almost within his reach, he is so poor that he cannot afford to say his soul is his own, or that he has an opinion on the gravest question ever submitted to the American people. He would have taken the nomination with any pill of financial opinion the convention could have prescribed. Gold, silver, copper, iron, paper, mud—it was all one to him, so that he secured the sugar coating. But a few months ago, or was it a few years, he was loud, emphatic, but always platitudinous in his advocacy of bimetallism. He eats his own words now, and proclaims that he was a fool or a rogue, a short time ago—all for the sake of the bauble of the presidency, for it can be nothing more than a bauble for such a man as he. He has no other use for it than to wear it as an ornament.

But, Teller; there you have a man. His position on any public question is not the accident of political association, but the result of long and careful study and profound and conscientious conviction. He does not drift into an opinion, nor can he be dragged into one. His chief ambition is to be right, and for this purpose he strives to ascertain the very truth of every public problem by study as unembarrassed by prejudice as if it had no relation to politics or party. When he finds the truth, or is convinced he has found it, he does not surrender it for party or for interest, simply because he cannot. His brain is not built that way. When he has convinced his conscience and his intelligence that the welfare of the people is involved, party, friends, personal ambition count for nothing. To every appeal from such sources, he replies as MacMahon did on the Malakoff, "J'y suis; j'y reste."

* * *

The universal esteem in which Senator Teller has always been held will now be reinforced with the passionate love of the whole South and West, as well as of the whole body of the people who suffer by the gold standard, whose cause he so gallantly and unselfishly championed. The circumstance affords a great opportunity to the Democratic party, if it should be wise enough to take advantage of it. Henry M. Teller can be elected to the presidency if he should be nominated at Chicago. Michigan can be counted for him. We say this with full deliberation, and we have some knowledge of the instincts of the people of this state. It is much to ask of a great national party to set aside tried and true men who have fought its battles in adversity for years, and give its banner to a leader who has but just entered its ranks. It is possibly too much. But these are unusual times and unusual circumstances. They require unusual methods, unusual self-denial in politicians who would win.

FORTY PER CENT INCREASE.

Peoria, Ill., Journal: The result of the fight over the monetary standard among Wisconsin Democrats indicates that there is about 40 per cent more silver people in the state than the gold standard men accredited to it. This is about the proportion of increase all over the nation.

A HEARTY SILVER VOTE.

St. Vincent New Era: That Minnesota will cast a good hearty silver vote, is a foregone conclusion, when such men as John Lind, of New Ulm, who has been sent to congress two or three times by the Republicans, deserts his party, and possibly may be a candidate for governor on a silver ticket.

A CONVENTION ECHO.

Sellwood's Experience With the Ely Delegation.

Within about one month there will be another Republican convention in St. Louis county and the struggle for the control of this will be even greater than the one through which the Republicans have just passed. A great uneasiness is hovering around certain localities, one in particular, the fifth floor of the First National Bank building where the Right Honorable Joseph Sellwood has been wont to hold forth and issue his edict to the people of the range when convention time came around. He issued it previous to the last convention, but somehow or other it failed to connect in its usual manner.

A remarkable and unprecedented sight was presented before the last convention, just after the arrival of the Iron Range train. Mr. Sellwood was hustling among the delegates! Never before had such a thing been heard of. It had only been necessary for him to sit in his office and indicate his desire and it was done as he commanded.

The usual instructions were passed up to his henchman at Ely this time, and they responded "Aye, aye, sir," and proceeded to gather the boys in. But there was trouble ahead. P. R. Vail, Ely's popular mayor, had made up his mind that the people ought to rule and made a fight on the Sellwood crowd, with the result that he swept the city.

When the word came to Mr. Sellwood he was astounded. He buckled on his armor and at 12 o'clock on June 25 he proceeded to the St. Louis hotel. In a few moments "Paddy" Vail walked in, happy in the consciousness of a fight well won, and registered. Before he was ten feet away from the desk Sellwood button-holed him and waltzed him off to one side. The politicians watched the pair from a distance with great interest. After a moment or two a dark cloud passed over the face of Sellwood and it grew darker as he talked. Then he made a few emphatic motions with his right hand and as "Paddy" responded with some vigorous gestures with both hands the crowd grinned for they saw that he was determined to hold his own.

The "declaration of independence" having been made and carried through so well the Ely people do not feel disposed to put their neck under the yoke again and thus it is that Mr. Sellwood is uneasy. It is important for him to control the coming convention so that he may name the legislative delegation. It is very important for the Minnesota Iron company so have the right people in the legislature and its satellites be dependent upon to put them there if possible.

Lake County For Towne.

In an interview last night W. N. Moulton, of Two Harbors, said:

"I want to say that the sentiment of Lake county so far as I have any knowledge is tremendously in favor of Towne for congress. Just before I left home I took a poll of twenty-two men who came into my store one after the other, and out of the twenty-two, nineteen were for Towne. It happens that all of these men were Republicans.

"I am going to the Republican state convention and I am going to wear the biggest Town badge I can find. I want every man in the state to know that I believe in keeping an honest public official in office."

PHOEBE COUSINS.

California Women Will Send Her Home.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 30.—A very earnest effort is being made by the suffrage women of Los Angeles for the relief of Miss Phoebe Cousins, of St. Louis, who is in the city helpless and penniless. Miss Cousins arrived in San Francisco a few months ago with her brother, who was an invalid. While there she was attacked with acute rhumatism and was told that in the South she would find relief, but, on the contrary, Miss Cousins has grown steadily worse in Los Angeles.

A petition is being circulated by the women suffrage committee asking for contributions to a fund which is being raised for the purpose of assisting Miss Cousins and her brother to return to their home in St. Louis.

GLASS WORKS CLOSED.

Millville, N. J., June 30.—The glass factories throughout New Jersey will close down today for the summer, and 5000 workmen will begin a two months' vacation. The first part of the present season was a failure, but since the first of the year nearly all the firms have been in full blast. The entire trade has fallen off to a certain extent, the result of foreign competition. From the present indications the men will ask the manufacturers for an increased scale of wages for the next fire.

THE TIDE IRRESISTIBLE.

McIntosh Times: The country is afire for free coinage and neither McKinley's the St. Lous Republican goldbug conthe tide.

WILL SWEEP THE DISTRICT.

Roseau County Times: Congressman Towne, of the Sixth district, is being endorsed by leading Populists and Democrats all over his district and it looks as though he will be returned to office by the silver men with a sweeping majority.

THE HERALD'S WARNING.

Roseau County Times: The Duluth Herald, one of the ablest edited and progressive newspapers published in the state of Minnesota, and which has always been an advocate of the free coinage of silver, has virtually repudiated the platform of proteevtion nor Hobart's barrel can stem vention and will support Congressman Towne as an independent candidate for reelection to congress. The Herald warns McKinley to "beware of the ides of November."

At the Pavilion.

A large audience witnessed the production of "Olivette," by the Gonzalez Opera company, at the Pavilion, last evening. Miss Gonzalez wins laurels in the title role. She sings "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," which is introduced in the second act, in a way that is a revelation of the beauty and sweetness of the song and the sentiment. The other members of the company are excellent in their various parts. There will be a matinee on Thursday and Saturday. That on Saturday, will be a special performance, when the Hurtt living pictures, which are conceded to be the finest ever produced outside of New York city, will be presented.

A HOUSEHOLD TREASURE.

D. W. Fuller, of Canajoharie, N. Y., says that he always keeps Dr. King's New Discovery in the house and his family has always found the very best results follow its use; that he would not be without it, if procurable. G. A. Dykeman, druggist, Catskill, N. Y., says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best cough remedy: that he has used it in his family for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it. Why not try a remedy so long tried and tested. Trial bottles free at Duluth Drug company's drug store. Regular size 50 cents and $1.00.

HUNDREDS

An Immense Towne Club Organized at Last Evening's Meeting.

Fully Five Hundred Names Were Placed on the Membership Roll.

Among Them Were the Mayor, Five Aldermen and County Officers.

According to the theory that all those who are believers in bimetallism are afflicted with a silver "craze," Duluth is a gigantic silver Bedlam.

In the old postoffice block on Fourth avenue west last night a Towne club was organized, and in an incredibly short space of time 500 names were enrolled in the club, amid the greatest enthusiasm, and they are not the names of cranks or political buffoons or anything of the kind. They are good, solid business and professional men of all parties, with a number of labor leaders and a large sprinkling of members of the rank and file, the common people, whose votes are just as big and just as good as those of anyone in the land.

The list is not going to stop at 500, either. Almost enough additional names have been promised to bring the total up to 1000, where it will be within a few days. Each and every man who signed the club rolls agrees to support Charles A. Towne for congress with vote and voice.

A feature of the list which is especially notable is the number of men upon it who have been staunch Republicans from time long past, but who at this juncture have to pass up the party in favor of principle. Then there are not a few Democrats and some Populists and a very great many solid citizens.

OFFICEHOLDERS AMONG THEM.

The hall was packed last evening and the appearance of the audience would be a revelation to those who have prophesied that Towne would stand alone. Not only were there citizens and business and professional men, but there were officeholders. Among the officeholders who were there and who signed the list were Mayor Truelsen, Aldermen Sang, Krumsieg, Dahl, Harker and Rowley, Municipal Judge Boyle, ex-Chief of Police Armstrong, Sheriff Butchart, District Clerk Owens, ex-County Auditor LaVaque, County Surveyor Davis and others.

Every time that Towne's name was mentioned there was a howl that threatened to raise the roof, and because of this contingency it is said the owners of the hall have raised the rent. Sheriff Butchart was greeted with a cordial and hearty cheer when he entered the hall, at which the big-hearted sheriff blushed most deeply.

Only a temporary organization was effected last night. The hall was packed at 8:15 when C. E. Lovett called the meeting to order and presented the name of O. W. Baldwin for temporary chairman. He was unanimously elected, and E. E. Beebe was made temporary secretary. A motion was made to perfect a permanent organization, but this was withdrawn and a substitute motion providing for the appointment of a committee of twelve, consisting of four Republicans, four Democrats and four Populists, by the chair was introduced and carried.

The chairman announced that he would name the committee later, and when the meeting adjourned it was to meet again at the call of the committee. At that time a list of permanent officers will be presented by the committee for the club's action.

There were a large number of short speeches, all of which took much the same course. The speakers, after lifelong adherence to the Republican or Democratic parties, bade farewell to those organizations and pledged their honest and hearty support to the silver ticket, and especially to Charles A. Towne for congress.

LAKE COUNTY FOR TOWNE.

One of the first speakers was W. N. Moulton, of Two Harbors, where he is one of the leading citizens. He said: "I cannot answer for any person but myself. I cannot promise any support or votes but my own; but as for my vote and my support, it is for Charles A. Towne first, last and all the time. I will say, however, that I firmly believe that Lake county will give Mr. Towne more votes than it has ever cast before for a candidate for congress. We shall have a Towne club in Two Harbors in a few days."

Henry Truelsen said that he had had no occasion to change the views expressed by him at the Spalding on the occasion of Mr. Towne's return from Washington, and he reiterated those sentiments and pledged his support to Towne.

E. G. Cobb made a brief address, in which he spoke very highly of Mr. Towne's course and character, and pledged his support to him.

R. C. Mitchell said that he was always a Republican up to two years ago, but he had to pull out then, and he was glad to see so many companions. He roasted the party for its stand today and eulogized Towne for his courageous and manly stand.

J. W. Bull said that he left the Republican party some time ago because he thought that it would never fulfill its promises of free silver, and he was glad to see the younger generation coming to his way of thinking. He pledged his vote and support to Charles A. Towne and the ticket selected at St. Louis for the uniting of all the silver forces.

J. H. Baker said that he did not vote for Towne two years ago; in fact, he worked against him; but he wanted to be considered a Towne man now.

D. H. Morgan said that he had been a lifelong Republican, but he could not support the present platform. He would, however, support the silver ticket from top to bottom, and especially Towne for congress.

ARMSTRONG FOR TOWNE.

Harry R. Armstrong said that when he heard that a Towne club was to be organized he made up his mind to get into it, and he was proud to enroll himself as a member and to support Charles A. Towne.

Dr. V. Smith said that he was too old to talk, but he just wanted to say that he was leaving the Republican party, of which he had been a lifelong member, because its stand on silver is an entire change from what it has been. He would vote for the entire silver ticket, especially for Charles A. Towne.

Judge Boyle said that he had always voted the Republican ticket, but at this election, to his sorrow, he could not do so. He regretted that the Republican party had departed from its principles, but he could not accompany it. "It is queer," he said "that I should not now be considered a good Republican. Two years, four years, and in fact, ever since I first voted I have always been a good Republican, and although now, when I stand in the same position and for the same principles that I always did, I am not a good Republican. However, others may look at it, I still claim to be a Republican and I shall support the true Republican principles and vote the ticket bearing the name of Charles A. Towne for congress and the names of men pledged to bimetallism on the national ticket."

Sheriff Butchart made a few remarks in which he reiterated all that he had said before and again pledged his support to Charles A. Towne. He was heartily cheered.

COUNTY SURVEYOR DAVIS.

County Surveyor Fred Davis was called upon and said: "If I say that I am in favor of Towne for congress it will be saying what everyone knows and what I have had no hesitancy in saying before. I had not intended to speak of it at this time, but like my friend Butchart, I am not going to go before the Republican convention for a nomination on that ticket, (applause), but I shall work and vote for Charles A. Towne." This new convert from the ranks of Republican officeholders was heartily cheered for his stand.

John T. Dow said that he had some difficulty in locating himself as to Republicanism. His friends had asked him where he stood, and all he could say was that he was certain that he was for Towne and free silver first of all.

John Owens was called upon and he read a statement from the Minneapolis Journal to the effect that Towne stood all alone and that not a wheel would move unless he put his individual shoulder to it. Mr. Owens gave the lie to that statement in ringing tones, and he said that if God spared his life and lungs he would read it to 50,000 people before elections. He urged hard work upon those present, and pledged his own support for Towne.

He was enthusiastically cheered.

A number of other short speeches on much the same line were made. Among the other speakers were W. A. Pryor, John H. Brigham, C. E. Lovett, A. R. Merritt, Theodore Hollister, A. M. Kilgore, Dr. S. C. Maxwell, Capt. J. R. Randall, A. E. McManus, A. F. Rudolph and Jacques Bureau.

The meeting was one of the warmest enthusiasm, and the speakers were heartily cheered. After the motion to adjourn was carried three cheers were proposed for Charles A. Towne, and a volume of sound went up that echoed for blocks around. Then three cheers for Sheriff Butchart were called for. They were given with a will, and the noise was a close second to that called forth by the name of Charles A. Towne.

SOME WHO JOINED.

During the latter part of the meeting the club rolls were circulated, and fully 500 names were secured in a short time. A few of those who signed last night are given below:

Henry Truelsen, Alderman David Sang, E. A. Wilson, Fenton T. Bower, W. N. Moulton, W. H. Colton, A. R. Merritt, A. F. Rudolph, J. Allyn Scott, F. W. Lonegren, A. K. Newstrom, George N. THE BIDS

Council Received the Offers For Water Bonds Last Evening.

Only One Was Regular, Checks Not Accompanying the Others.

Mayor and Aldermen Quarrel Over Police Department Expenses.

Bids for the $1,106,000 issue of 30-year, 5 per cent water and light bonds were opened at the meeting of the council last evening. That of N. J. Upham & Co. is the only one that is regular. It offers par, accrued interest and a premium of 1 per cent, and was accompanied by a bond for $10,000. The other bids are as follows: W. J. Hayes & Sons, $3360 premium and accrued interest; Mason, Lewis & Co., $1321 premium and accrued interest; Edward C. Jones & Co., $12,000 premium and accrued interest; E. B. Underhill, Jr., $2000 premium and accrued interest.

The bid of W. J. Hayes & Sons was accompanied by a check drawn on their own bank and bearing a condition, in both of which particulars it is irregular. The others contained neither bond nor check. The bids all contain provisions making them contingent upon the approval of attorneys of the bidders as to the validity of the bonds. They were referred to the committee on auditing and finance. A meeting of the council will be held this evening to receive and act on the report of that committee.

POLICE APPOINTMENTS.

The question of confirming the appointment of Marcus Kasnier and William Walckowiack to the police force stirred up the hive and there was some angry buzzing for a time. The committee on public offices, officers and election reported a resolution that the appointment be not confirmed. The resolution was defeated. At this a smile appeared upon the face of the mayor, who was a spectator of the proceedings, but it was nipped by a killing frost in the shape of a suggestion from Alderman Olafson that possibly the motion had not been understood and a request that it be again put, to which request the chair assented. The argument now commenced.

Alderman Sang had been observed to adjust his spectacles and draw a copy of The Herald from his pocket. It bore the date of the day following the mayor's inauguration. Aldermen Krumsieg and Stevens glanced apprehensively at Alderman Sang's paper and successively urged that it should be presumed that the appointments were necessary and proper. It was of no avail. Alderman Sang's face wore a look of unmutable resolve, and when Krumsieg and Stevens had finished, he arose and shook the paper at the chair.

"I have here, Mr. Chairman, a copy of the mayor's inaugural address," he said, "and I will read from it." Mr. Sang then read a sentence from the address in which reduction in the police force were promised. He then went on to say that, counting the dismissals, there had been an increase of one in the force.

"Mr. Chairman," said Mr. Sang, waving the paper at the mayor, "is this retrenchment? If the mayor is not going to keep his promises, I for one, want to know it. There is the same necessity for retrenchment now as when the mayor was making his campaign speeches."

Alderman Krumsieg replied that Alderman Sang had not grasped the full sense of the expression used in the address.

MAYOR TOOK THE FLOOR.

The mayor now took the floor. He said the police pay roll for this month would be $435 less than the corresponding month last year. He pointed out that the West End and Park Point need protection. Residents of those localities have been clamoring for it. "If anybody says the expenses have not been reduced, he doesn't know what he is talking about," concluded the mayor, hotly.

Alderman Sang: "Well, how do you figure out a reduction?"

The mayor: "By a comparison with last year."

Alderman Sang now turned to the chair and waved the speech aloft. "Mr. Chairman," he said, "it was not last year when the mayor wrote this—it was last March."

The mayor replied that the force would be reduced next winter. He said that more men are needed in the summer.

Alderman Olafson said he would like to ask the mayor how it was that Mayor Lewis got along with the force no larger than when Mayor Truelsen was inaugurated. "Before election," said Alderman Olafson, "the mayor was howling around for retrenchment. Now he wants more men. He has some figure-heads on the force that he can just as well dispense with."

Despite the efforts of those opposed, however, the motion was lost, the vote being 7 yeas to 5 nays, the requisite two-thirds being lacking. No motion was made to confirm the appointments.

CONNECTIONS ARE UNSAFE.

City Engineer Patton put in an energetic protest against the authorization of any more sanitary sewer connections with storm sewers. He told the council that such connections are unsafe. At this, all pending requests for permission to make such connections were referred to the city engineer with authority to take immediate action.

A petition signed by P. J. Borgstrom and others was received, setting forth that Peter Foss had received injuries while travelling on the streets of Duluth Heights, the result of an accident due to the defective condition of the streets and the lack of lights therein, and asking that he be compensated for time lost in the hospital. The petition did not state the particular street in which the mishap occurred. It was referred.

A communication was received from the mayor, recommending that the council investigate the merits of the "Appleyard" or some other fender for street cars that danger to life and limb may be minimized. The communication was referred.

The city reported adversely on the claim of Anderson & Kauppi, for damages to stock by the flooding of their cellar during a storm, and also on the claim of H. C. Hanford for damages by back water in the sewer pipe.

An invitation from Gen. E. C. Mason and Hon. F. B. Dorran to take a page in the souvenir to be issued on the occasion of the thirtieth annual encampment of the G. A. R., the advertisement to cost $100, was referred to the committee on railroads and transportation.

Aldermen Hale, Harwood, Christensen and Hanson were absent.

THE ROAD RACES.

A Beautiful Day and Some First Class Events.

The Marshall-Wells Hardware company's road races yesterday were among the most successful ever conducted here. The time was not remarkably fast owing to the strong wind which was blowing directly down the course, retarding the riders greatly. The finishes in nearly all events were close and exciting, some of the races being won with the last twenty or thirty feet.

The day was beautiful, but it was rather hot on London road and the crowds on the stands which had been erected at the finish gently broiled under the hot sun. They were sheltered from the wind and the sun had full sway.

The special race committee of the Duluth Cycle club had charge of the races and the following were the members: W. H. Lowd, chairman; C. C. Evans, secretary and treasurer, and Frank A. Noble. Dr. McNulty made a very efficient starter, a difficult position to fill. Henry E. Harris was referee and Chris Tvedt clerk of the course. C. W. Cate, J. H. Davis and E. E. Esterly were time-keepers; P. Pastoret, H. E. Emerson and J. H. Poteet, checkers, and Ed Pugh, John Green, Frank A. Manneu, W. H. Ward, and G. L. Sterling, judges.

The mile handicap was the first race called and there were twenty-two entries. It was a hot race and three scratch men took the first three places. Ed Thompson, of Duluth, took first place, J. P. Burnett, of Superior, second, and Walter Murphy, of Duluth, third. A. N. Wall finished fourth, G. W. Potter, fifth; Edward McLaughlin, sixth; Charles Benson, seventh, and G. R. Neilson. The time was 2:22.

The quarter mile dash was a pretty race. There were two trial heats and the three winners in the two went into the final. In the first heat D. A. Burnett, L. R. Harris and P. L. Hasselblad finished in the order named and secured places in the final heat. In the other heat J. C. Taylor, J. P. Burnett and E. A. Thompson took the places. The deciding heat was close. A dog ran into the track and it looked as though an accident might occur, but he was hustled out of the way. It was claimed that Thompson had to slow up because of the animal being directly in front of him, but this hardly seemed to be true. Taylor won by no more than a foot. He made a tremendous spurt in the last twenty or thirty feet and forged ahead. The time in the first heat was 35¾ seconds, in the second 35½, and in the final 33 seconds.

The boys' races was a good one and rather comical in a way. There were all kinds of boys and all kinds of wheels. Some had high grade wheels and some were of the cheapest variety. They finished in the following order: George Pitcher, Richard Johnson, Lew Peterson, T. B. Bradley, George Rosenbusch, Fred Miller, Richard Mather, Willie Steinez, Ray Butchart. Time 3:13. One youngster fell over in a heap at the close and failed to come to his senses for several minutes.

The mile tandem proved to be a walk away for the Superior team, Messrs. Potter and Taylor. Laurenz Harris and E. A. Thompson were to have raced, but the latter was unable to go in and Henry E. Harris rode with his brother. The time was 2:35½.

The closing race was the event of the day, the 5-mile handicap. The finish between Taylor and Murphy, who led the scratch men was a beauty. They passed over the line so close that many thought it a dead heat. Taylor had a lead, however, but it was not more than six inches. Taylor won the first time prize, with Walter Murphy, second; J. P. Burnett, of Superior, third; Richard Smith, fourth; D. A. Burnett, fifth, and Charles Benson, sixth. The place winners were as follows: Charles Benson, first; S. D. Clark, second; John Lockling, third; David Kemp, fourth; W. B. Grubb, fifth; E. G. Palo, sixth. The winning time was 13¼ minutes.

The special race between Helen Baldwin, Mate Christopher and May Allen which was advertised did not come off owing to a misunderstanding.

THIRD'S SHARPSHOOTERS.

Several Duluth Men Qualified For the Medals.

A Lake City dispatch says that the sharpshooters of the Third regiment state guard competed yesterday at the new rifle range for the sharpshooters' medals. Each man, in order to obtain the rank of sharpshooter was compelled to make 166 out of a possible 250. Following are the scores: Company B, Sergeant Herrick, 175; Private Harrington, 177; Corporal Bird, 169; Corporal Geddes, 167; Lieut. Pratt, 178. Company C, Capt. Resche, 184. Company F, Lieut. Kaling, 167; Field and Staff Lieut. Dodge, 168.

Capt. Resche, of Company C, has the highest score made in the regiment during the encampment in skirmish shooting. Corporal Bird, of Company B, out of a possible 50 at 500 yards made 47.

CHRISTOPHER WON.

Race Given to Her and a Scrap Ensued.

There was a large crowd at the last session of the female bicycle race last night. There was lots of excitement, especially when May Allen was thrown from her wheel and Helen Baldwin cut in and finished before Mate Christopher. A foul was claimed by the latter and was upheld by the referee, much to the disgust of the crowd. The referee claimed that according to the rules laid down at the opening he was right, and though there was a tremendous protest he gave the race to Christopher with Baldwin second and Allen third.

It is said that in deference to the popular disapproval of his decision the referee took a short cut home by way of Hermantown rather than to go down with the crowd.

ANOTHER QUITS THE PARTY.

He Cannot Advocate the Gold Standard Policy.

To the Editor of The Herald:

To those kind friends who have promised me their aid in securing the Republican nomination for county superintendent of schools, I wish to express my sense of great obligation, but I must request that they discontinue their efforts to that end.

Believing, as I do, that the existing gold standard has been the abundant source of unnumbered ills to the American people, and that its continuance will cause suffering for which the past has no parallel, I cannot support the platform or candidates of the Republican party. Being unable to advocate the new principle of that party, I cannot in honor seek the support of its splendid organization. Very respectfully,

A. M. Kilgore.

THREE MEN KILLED.

Bad Cave-in at the Pioneer Mine at Ely.

A terrible accident, resulting in the instant death of three men and the injury of two others, one of whom is likely to die, is reported from the Pioneer mine at Ely. The Times says that at the time of the accident the injured men with several others were at work on the fourth level, when an immense quantity of ground came away from overhead. It may have been hundreds of tons, and crushed timbers and supports and buried three men and caught two others. The men who were buried were probably instantly killed. They were Victor Erickson, George Haycock and Frank Cramer. The two that were injured were Peter Morowitz and Isaac Stustrom. The latter was caught across the abdomen between some timbers and a tram car, which was standing on the track, and held fast, and it was eight hours before he could be released. He was taken to the hospital. He probably has suffered internal injuries that may prove serious. Peter Morowitz was caught by the arm between two timbers and held fast and was not released for twelve hours, when he also was taken to the hospital. His injuries are believed not to be serious.

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION

—OF—

Duluth & Southwestern Railway Company.

The persons whose names are hereunto subscribed hereby associate themselves together to become a body corporate under the laws of the state of Minnesota for the purpose hereinafter stated, and to that end hereby sign, adopt and publish the following articles of incorporation:

Article first. The corporate name of this corporation shall be "Duluth & Southwestern Railway Company."

Article second. The general nature of its business shall be the location, construction, purchase, lease, equipment, maintenance and operation of a line of railway of standard guage, with one or more tracks or lines of road, from a point on the southern boundary line of the state of Minnesota, to be hereafter selected by the board of directors, thence in a general northerly direction through the state of Minnesota, to the city of Red Wing, in said state, and thence in a general northerly direction through the states of Minnesota and Wisconsin, to and into the city of Duluth, in said state of Minnesota, together with such branch line or lines as may hereafter be deemed desirable by the directors of the corporation, and such spurs, switches, sidetracks, turnouts and lateral lines, as they may deem necessary, and the leasing, construction, maintenance and operation, acquirement, purchase and ownership of such equipment, right-of-way, machine shops, foundries, furnaces, car shops, warehouses, storehouses, elevators, depots, structures, piers, docks, slips, wharves, bridges and other property, as may be necessary for the proper management, operation or equipment of the corporation; also to lease, purchase, acquire and hold all such lands as may be necessary for the proper construction and operation of its lines of railway, to construct, maintain, operate and own one or more lines of telegraph in connection with its said lines, to lease, purchase, or otherwise acquire and adopt as its own the line or lines of any other railway or telegraph company constructed or partially constructed, and to unite into running connections with any such company in such manner as may be deemed necessary and expedient by said directors.

Article third. The principal place of business of said corporation shall be at the city of Duluth, Minnesota, but it may maintain such offices for the transaction of its business, both within and without the said state, as the conveniences or necessities of its business may require.

Article fourth. The time of commencement of this corporation shall be July 2, 1896, and it shall continue for the period of fifty years.

Article fifth. The amount of capital stock of this corporation shall be three hundred thousand dollars, divided into three thousand (3000) shares of one hundred dollars ($100) each, to be paid in from time to time in such manner and instalments as the board of directors may determine.

Article sixth. The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which this corporation shall at any time be subject shall be the sum of ten million dollars ($10,000,000.)

Article seventh. The names and places of residence of the persons forming this association for incorporation are as follows: Charles H. Graves, George W. Buck, James T. Hale, Percy S. Anneke and W. Buchanan, of the city of Duluth, Minnesota, and Lucius F. Hubbard, of the city of Red Wing, Minnesota.

Article eighth. The names of the first board of directors of this corporation are as follows: Charles H. Graves, George W. Buck, James T. Hale, Percy S. Anneke and W. Buchanan, of Duluth, Minnesota, and Lucius F. Hubbard, of Red Wing, Minnesota.

The government of the corporation and the management of its affairs shall be vested in a board of directors consisting of six persons, and in such officers and agents as such board may select. All of such directors and officers shall be elected annually on the second Tuesday in June in each year. The first meeting of this corporation shall be held at Duluth, Minnesota, on July 2, 1896, at which time directors and officers shall be chosen to serve until the said second Tuesday in June, 1897. If the organization of the corporation be not completed by said July 2, 1896, said meeting may be adjourned by any of the persons herein named as the first board of directors to such other time as may be most convenient for a majority of such board.

Article ninth. The number of shares of the capital stock of the corporation shall be three thousand (3000), and the par value of each share shall be one hundred dollars ($100.)

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and affixed our seals, this 19th day of June, 1896.

A CERTAIN CURE FOR PILES.

A New Preparation, Safe, Painless, Convenient and Lasting Cure For This Troublesome Disease.

We do not intend to indorse any except articles of real merit. We therefore take pleasure in calling attention to a new pile cure which has been remarkably successful in curing every form of itching, bleeding or protruding piles. The remedy is known as the Pyramid Pile Cure and is recommended by the best medical authorities on account of its absolute safety, ease of application and instant relief from pain.

The Pyramid Pile Cure contains no opium or other poison and does not interfere with daily occupation while using. People who believed nothing but a surgical operation would cure them have been astonished at the results from a single 50-cent package of the Pyramid.

Mrs. Mary C. Tyler, of Heppner, Ore., writes: One package of Pyramid Pile Cure entirely cured me of piles from which I have suffered for years, and I have never had the slightest return of them since.

E. O'Brien, Rock Bluffs, Neb., says: The package of Pyramid Pile Cure entirely removed every trace of itching piles. I cannot thank you enough for it.

The Pyramid Pile Cure is sold by all druggists at 50 cents and $1 per package.

Treatise on cause and cure of piles mailed free by addressing Pyramid company, Albion, Mich.

W. L. Phelps, representing E. S. Gray & Co., of Boston, is in the city to look after the interests of his house in connection with the sale of water bonds. The firm holds $250,000 worth of Duluth Gas and Water company bonds. Mr. Phelps has presented to the members of the council in an informal way the advisability of delaying action on the bids now in for a fortnight, in order that his firm may make an offer for the transfer of its holdings. The temper of the council is, however, against listening to any suggestion of this nature at this late day.

Carey-Barnes Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Harriet Belle Carey and Julius Howland Barnes took place at 1 o'clock this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Carey, of Lakeside. Misses Gertrude and Martha Carey were bridesmaids and H. B. Earhart and Lucien Barnes were ushers. Rev. M. Tice performed the ceremony.

BE GOOD TO YOUR WIFE.

Is good advice and the happiest wives in Duluth are those found in the homes where the Duluth Gas and Water company's gas ranges are used. They are good summer or winter, but in these hot days they are worth their weight in gold. Their cost is nominal, and at the low rate for fuel gas they are by far the cheapest range to use.

FINISHED

The Investigation of George R. Hall Was Concluded This Morning.

Quite an Insight Into West Duluth Politics Was Given.

Hall Is Much Given to Working at the Polls.

The testimony before the board of public works this morning, in the course of the investigation of the charges against G. R. Hall, the recently appointed street commissioner, throws a sidelight on West Duluth politics.

R. W. English testified that on the occasion of the election held in 1894 on the question of purchasing the water plant, he had seen R. Wells, who was then in the employ of the city, at the polls peddling ballots in favor of the purchase. Mr. Hall was street commissioner at that time and Mr. Wells was on his force. The witness said that Wells told him he had a snap; that Mr. Hall had told him that he need not work that day, that he had another job. The other job, the witness said Wells had told him, was to peddle tickets. The witness said that Wells might have hired a man to work his team in his place on that day for all he knew. Mr. Wells owned two teams. The witness had never worked for Hall himself.

There had been some feeling between them on account of what the witness termed Hall's obnoxious conduct at the polls. He said that Hall took a great interest in politics and was always around the polls. The witness mentioned one occasion when trouble was caused by the behavior of Hall and some of his supporters arose at the polls. The witness at that, as judge of election, had helped clear out the polling place and had ordered Hall's arrest, but the latter made his escape. The witness told how he went to the then county attorney and requested him to proceed against Hall. That official had told the witness that there was no case against Hall. A heated discussion followed and the county attorney, to use the witness' expression, "threw" the latter out of his office. After detailing this bit of political history, the witness said that he had known Mr. Hall for four or five years, during which time he had seen him nearly every day and had never seen him under the influence of liquor. As to his competency as a street commissioner, the witness said he was not competent to state.

Mrs. Wells stated that her husband was at home all of election day, with the exception of about two hours. He did not work on that day, she said, because of the illness of one of the children. The child was sick for some days both before and after election day, but Mr. Wells had worked every other day.

Mrs. Hall testified that Mr. Lacey, who said he did carpenter work in Mr. Hall's house on two days during working hours when he was employed by the city, only worked a little while one evening after 6 o'clock.

Mr. Hall turned in reports showing that the cost of the filling on Forty-first avenue was only $44.13. He said he did the work by order of the board. The sodding at Alderman French's had only cost $1.35.

Alderman Sang wanted to know about certain orders on Hall given by his men to O. T. Strand for supplies, which Mr. Strand charged had never been paid. Mr. Hall said there was only $3.50 in dispute, which the man who incurred the debt claimed had been paid. Mr. Sang said he was satisfied with the explanation.

This closed the examination of witnesses and the hearing adjourned. The decision of the board will be announced in a few days.

Two Scrapping Kids.

Officer Kinney this morning arrested two bootblacks of minute size, who were scrapping away like two enraged grasshoppers on Superior street, near Third avenue west. The boys, who gave their names as Sam Levine and Louis Gonzalin, were locked up for twenty minutes and were then let off after a lecture from Capt. Thompson. They promised to fight no more and went down the street arm in arm.

Mullin-Waste.

About twenty invited guests witnessed the nuptials yesterday evening of Miss F. A. Mullin and William P. Waste at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. McMartin, 206 Fifth avenue west. Miss Mullin was formerly of Ottawa, Ont., where she enjoys a large circle of acquaintances. Mr. Waste is a popular young gentleman in the civil service at Sparta, Wis. At 8:30 o'clock the bride and groom accompanied by Miss Mage, the bridesmaid, and groomsman, entered the parlor to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march. Mr. Waste, a brother to the groom, acted as groomsman. Rev. Dr. Humason officiated. The room where the wedding took place was very pretty, being decorated with garlands of flowers. The bridal party stood beneath an arch formed of green and roses. Mr. and Mrs. Waste left on the North West today for Ottawa, Ont. They will make their home in Duluth.

Donation Acknowledged.

The board of managers of the Women's and Children's home most gratefully acknowledges the generous gift of the Imperial Mill company of $10 in cash and a barrel of flour monthly. The donation is to be continued for one year.

Mrs. J. H. Crowley,
Secretary.

YOU OUGHT TO HAVE ONE.

A gas range such as the Duluth Gas and Water company are selling at actual factory prices. They are the best range procurable and the families now using them have no desire to return to the old style coal or gasolene stoves. The reduction in the price of fuel gas makes them the cheapest stove one can use, and if you are interested in economizing you will be well repaid by inspecting one at the office of the Duluth Gas and Water company, 216 West Superior street.

WOULD MARRY HENRY.

Crazy Woman Has Designs on the Mayor.

Judge Ayer had two insanity cases booked for examination this afternoon and one for tomorrow. The most interesting case was that of Kate Croushay, who imagines, like many lunatics, that she is being pursued by her enemies with designs upon her life. She relates a thrilling story of how a band of her enemies took after her and tried to kill her, but when they shot they missed her and killed Detective Donavan. At this point in her fervered imagination the gal runs Mayor Truelsen stepped in and saved her life. She is profoundly grateful, and she proposes to marry the mayor as a recompense for his timely aid. She is to be examined tomorrow.

Andrew Gustafson, from Biwabik, was to be examined this afternoon. His is a mild case, and his mania manifests itself principally in a meditative mood in which Andrew smiles to himself in a very amused manner. Raynard Cromarty, a colored man, was also to be examined this afternoon for insanity.

Clough Delegates Travel Free Over the Great Northern.

The Great Northern passes for the delegates to the Republican convention at St. Paul arrived here as expected and the delegation left at noon today over that road. That is most of them did. There is a nice little row on in the delegation. When Sam Fullerton left here after the convention last Thursday it was understood that he would send the tickets to Burt Marshall to be distributed. Instead of that they went to B. F. Howard. Mr. Howard was reported at the head of the delegation and is said to consider himself chairman. There are a number of delegates who contest this and say they will make things red hot at St. Paul and show Mr. Howard his place. A number were complaining at noon that Mr. Howard had sent them no word of having any tickets.

When the train left today about five or six of the Duluth delegates went on the St. Paul & Duluth road, paying their fares. The Itasca county and Lake county delegations did the same thing. These delegations are not for Clough.

HEALTH DESTROYING VAPORS.

Water impregnated with the seeds of malaria, produce incalculable misery throughout vast portions of the North and South American continents. The most effective medicinal defence against these producers of physical mischief is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Wherever the great endemics, chills and fever, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake are prevalent, the Bitters is alike the chosen preventive and remedy. In Mexico, Guatemala, on the Isthmus of Panama and in South America, no less than in the United States, it has demonstrated its superlative efficacy, and has received the commendation of the medical profession. It remedies rheumatic, kidney and stomachic ailments, nervousness and debility, and counteracts a tendency to premature decay and the troubles attendant upon advancing years. Appetite and the ability to sleep are both aided by it. Use it with persistence, as it well deserves to be used, and the trial will avail you much.

WILL BE MARRIED IN AUGUST.

The wedding day of two of the most prominent young people in this city has been set for Aug. 10. The prospective husband at the request of the young lady's father arranged this morning with the Duluth Gas and Water company for a gas range. They are as the father said the most complete range of the day and the only one young housekeepers should use, being so simple and yet able to do all the work required of them in a few minutes. Since the reduction in the price of gas it only costs one-half to run them as compared with coal or gasolene.

"CORONATION OF THE ROSE"

At Turner hall Wednesday evening. Don't fail to come and see the children. Master Hawkins Jacobson will sing.

Miss McKenzie Home.

Miss Rebecca McKenzie, soprano, returned yesterday from her tour of the Pacific coast, in company with Mr. Renard, manager of the company. Said Mr. Renard today: "We closed the season last Saturday about three weeks earlier than I had expected. I had some good engagements in summer resorts in and around the great lakes, but our pianist, Miss O'Reilly, became suddenly ill and we decided to end the tour at once. The trip to the coast was a most agreeable one. The company created almost a furore wherever we went. Miss McKenzie's own personal success increased as the tour progressed. Double and treble encores were the order for her. In fact, I know of no young singer who in so short a time has made the artistic success that she has. The tour has been of much benefit to her. Her voice has become larger and fuller without losing any of that peculiar sympathy that it always possessed. She has gained that self-assurance that can only be acquired by singing before different audiences. She has sung in the same cities shortly after older and perhaps more famous singers, but she has always come out with flying colors. Of course, this has only been a beginning for her, and she will rise to the very zenith of fame. During the summer she will remain at home and continue her study for the operatic field."

The Court Filings.

The executors of the will of Nelson Beardsley have begun suit in district court against William Roche to recover $500 on a note. Richardson & Day are the attorneys.

The Mutual Benefit Life Insurance company, of Newark, N. J., has sued A. Miles et al to foreclose a mortgage given to secure a note for $20,000 on lots 49, 51 and 53, block 50, Duluth proper, Second division. F. W. Sullivan is the attorney.

VISCOUNT SUDLEY'S TRIP.

Liverpool, June 30.—Among the passengers about to sail for New York tomorrow on board the White Star line steamship Teutonic is Viscount Sudley, who recently successfully defended the suit for $75,000 brought against him on the ground of breach of promise of marriage by May Gore, the actress, who was at one time a member of the "Little Christopher" company in America under the name of Stewart.
